Daily Chronicle.

The Earthquake in Hong Kong.

The Hong Kong papers unite in describing the phenomenon which visited the colony on the morning of the 23d of June, as having been an unmistakable shock of earthquake. The first impression caused by it was that the gunpowder stored at Stonecutter's Island had exploded, or that a steam boiler had burst. The rumbling and trembling of the earth lasted fully fifteen seconds, bringing down cornices in houses on the Praya, while at the Hong Kong Fire Insurance Station the engine ran out of the house on to the Praya. At the Police Court there was a loud noise as if heavy weights were being drawn across the floor. Bells in private houses were rung, and so great was the oscillation that the large bell at the Central Fire Station boomed twice, while in the Police compound the earth was observed to roll as a wave, causing much alarm.

The harbor was much disturbed, and several sampans were capsized, while masses of jelly fish rose to the surface, disappearing again when the shock had passed. The Chinese population showed great fear, and rushed from their houses into the streets. Two small Chinese houses in the Hollywood road were thrown down and the occupants buried in the ruins. They were fortunately rescued with little injury beyond bruises. At the joss-house some workmen were engaged in hanging a large ornamental glass candelabra, when, without any cause or notice, they suddenly found themselves prostrate before the two dragons which guard the entrance, while the candelabra lay smashed into a thousand pieces. The men got up, and ran into the building, where they prostrated themselves before the joss figures, yelling at the top of their voices.

In a few minutes the joss-house was filled with a frightened crowd of devotees, who were praying to the idols to ward off the anger of the Genius of Fungshuey. Mothers placed their babes on the altars, and bowed to Joss, while many others were heard lamenting this visitation of the "Tealong," or "Earth Dragon," to whose movement in changing his position beneath the surface they attribute the shaking and rumbling noises of an earthquake.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1874.

The Ku-Klux Revival.

The democratic papers of the North, particularly of New England, persistently denied the existence of the Ku-Klux Klan, as a regularly organized democratic agency for carrying the Southern elections by violence and intimidation, until after the conviction of many members of the Klan, and the confessions of others, had made hopeless any further attempts to conceal the truth. Now that the Ku-Klux has been revived under the name of "White Leagues," and for its original purpose—to carry the elections in the South for the democratic party, by wholesale murder if it can be done in no other way,—the democratic press of the North sings the same old song, viz., that the tales of brutal outrages on the blacks by the whites are republican lies got up to afford an excuse for Federal interference in the South, that the White Leagues are not organized for the purpose of oppressing the freedmen or depriving them of their political rights by force, and that negro aggressions are the cause of all the "so-called outrages" by the Southern democrats, who really act only in self-defence. Now it is quite possible that the democratic papers of the South,—including the White League organs of the districts where terrorism is most complete,—may be as well posted concerning what the White Leagues have done and mean to do as the New England papers; and as the former speak right out in meeting for the purpose of firing the Southern heart, while the latter care only to avert the damaging effect on the democratic prospects in the North which such outrages must have, we give a few extracts from the Southern democratic press that our republican readers may judge for themselves whether or no the White Leagues have been misrepresented.

The following is from the New Orleans Times' report of McEnery's speech at a White League ratification meeting in that city: "The Republican, he said, had called him an incendiary, and accused him of having stirred up the people of North Louisiana to agitation. Of this he was guilty; and the same advice he gave to the people of the Red River parishes he now gives to the people of Orleans. The white people owed it to their dignity to get rid of the existing Government, and he counseled them to do so at the coming election, 'peaceably if you can, forcibly if you must."

The Shreveport (La.) Times says: "There has been some red-handed work done in this parish (Caddo) that was necessary, but it was evidently done by cool, determined and just men, who knew just how far to go, and we doubt not if more of the same kind of work is necessary, it will be done."

The Natchitoches Vindicator addresses the negroes as follows: "On the other hand should you imagine that the teaching of your former rulers is correct, and you elect to attempt, for it will only be an attempt, to continue their rule—then you must take the consequences. For we tell you now, and let it be distinctly remembered that you have fair warning, that we intend to carry the State of Louisiana in November next, or she will be a military territory."

The Alexandria Democrat remarks significantly: "The people have determined that the Kellogg government has to be gotten rid of, and they will not scruple about the means as they have done in the past."

The Mansfield Reporter says: "There is nothing to be gained by pleading or concessions, but everything is within our reach, if we will move forward and grasp it. Let our actions be such that everybody will know what we want, and let them see that we are in earnest and are determined to carry out the programme regardless of consequences."

The Georgia papers are as generous as those of Louisiana in exposing the aims and plan of action of the White Leagues. The Atlanta News, endorsed by the Savannah News, says: "The struggle at the South is not one between opposing political ideas. It is one in which the social welfare of the South is involved. Either the white must be forced down to the level of the negro or he must subordinate the negro to him. The battle is one without gloves. Northern insanity and negro insolence have provoked a war (September 2d, 1874,) into which the Southern whites have entered, stern and resolute in purpose. We have drawn the sword and thrown away the scabbard. This country must be ruled by white men. They who cannot say this must breast the storm as best they may."

And again, from the Atlanta News: "On but one condition, can the whites and blacks live amicably together. The whites must be rulers, and their position must be that of superiors both socially and politically. When the blacks are placed in their proper position of subordination to the whites we will not hear of any more violence toward them."

The democratic papers of Mississippi also talk plainly, as witness the following:

From the Westville News: "The white man's party is the only salvation for the State. Show the negro his place and make him keep it. If we can't vote him down we can knock him down, and the result will be the same."

From the Vicksburg Herald: "If our political prosperity demands it the negro population must be thinned out to give place to white labor."

Possibly the above extracts may bear out the assertions of the New England democratic papers concerning the White Leagues, and they are welcome to all the good they will do their cause. But while the Northern democratic papers either deny the existence of organized terrorism at the South or charge it against the republicans, some few of the Southern democratic papers not only acknowledge the perpetration of gigantic crimes by their Southern brethren but boldly denounce them. The St. Louis Republican, a paper of strong democratic and conservative inclinations, says: "We can tell the Southern people that these conflicts, if not suppressed, will reradicalize the North, give the republican party a new lease of power, defeat the democracy in every Northern State, insure the enactment of the civil-rights bill, and provoke from Congress a harsher supplement of reconstruction than has yet been witnessed." And the Louisville Courier-Journal in despair cries out: "We give it up. There was a chance that the next House of Representatives would not be radical. That chance is gone. The outbreaks in Kentucky and the massacre in Tennessee settle that much. No people, no party could stand under such a load as the people of the South and the democratic party of the North are forced to carry."

Readables.

Lest our readers charge us with inconsistency, we will state that a brief allusion uncomplimentary to Mr. Francis D. Moulton in these columns during our temporary absence contained sentiments which we neither endorse nor believe in. Throughout the controversy we have endeavored to prevent any prejudices against Theodore Tilton from being extended to his friends. As for the chief actor in the scandal, we fail to see that he is as much a "lion at bay" as a sheep without pluck. No two persons in Mr. Moulton's position could act alike, and before we blame him for withholding the facts it is best to learn what those facts are.

A severe shock of an earthquake was felt at Yokohama, August 20, but no damage was done.

The ship Euxine, while on the voyage from Shields for Aden, took fire and was destroyed. Twenty-one members of the crew, who escaped in two boats, arrived at St. Helena after a perilous voyage of over 1100 miles, during which neither boat saw the other. A third boat, containing the remainder of the crew, has not been heard from.

The reports concerning the prevalence of yellow fever in the Gulf and Atlantic ports are denounced as untrue, and a cotton-jobbing canard.

"Rule or Ruin" seems to be the motto of the White Men's Leagues.

M. François Pierre Guillaume Guizot, the eminent French author and statesman, is in a comatose state and death is imminent.

Caleb Cushing writes from Madrid to say that the reports of his ill-health are entirely without foundation.

Mr. Hoker, German consul at Hakodadi, Japan, was murdered and his body horribly mutilated by a native.

Moulton's long promised statement occupies eleven columns of the Boston Journal. He charges Beecher with rape!

The Boston and Athletic base ball clubs played their first game after arriving here from England, at Philadelphia on Thursday, the Bostons winning, 5 to 4.

John Costley, of Braintree, Mass., has been indicted for the murder of Julia Hawkes. It will be remembered that the woman's body was found in the water, with a bullet hole in the head, last June, and that Costley, a hotel-keeper, was at once arrested on suspicion.

State News.

The supreme court room at Nashua has been crowded for a day or two with people watching the case of a man accused of stealing a girl. A man named Bixby hired a Swedish girl of a Boston agent three years ago, and paid $50 for her passage to this country, but on her arrival, with others one Dunlap changed the tags on the girls, and thus got possession of Bixby's girl. Dunlap was fined $140. This with costs will make the defendant's bill about $1000.

The residence of Mr. Asa Symonds in Hancock was entered on Monday morning last, and about $230 in money taken. The thief was caught, and most of the money recovered.

An army of caterpillars is devouring the foliage of the oak trees near Nashua.

Louis Leminecarry was recently fined by the supreme court, at Nashua, $100 and costs and one year in jail for pulling his horse's tongue out.

Mrs. Alvin Reed of Manchester met with an accident on Wednesday afternoon, while at a picnic in Reed's Grove. She was passing by the head of a horse when he whirled on a sudden and kicked her, fracturing her right thigh just above the knee.

The opening of the Nashua and Rochester Railroad, which forms a junction with the Concord and Portsmouth Railroad at Epping, sixteen miles from Portsmouth, will afford the people of Nashua and vicinity a new avenue to Portsmouth. Already residents of Nashua are prospecting along the shores of Rye for lots upon which to build cottages for occupancy next summer.

Recently, Nathan M. Barker, Esq., of Stratham, had an attack of bleeding at the nose, which continued without intermission for the space of forty-four hours.

Mrs. Esther Berry of Rye, aged 95 years, is as hale and hearty as she was twenty-five years ago and is the mother of thirteen children, several of whom are living in Rye. The old lady knits more stockings than any person, old or young, in the town.

John B. Clarke of Manchester has established at Dartmouth College four prizes of $40, $30, $20, and $10, for excellence in declamation. There are to be sixteen contestants, two from each class in the academic and scientific departments; each class to select one from its own number, regard being had only to his merits as a speaker, and the faculty of the college to select another in like manner. The contest is to take place during commencement week.

LIBEL FOR DIVORCE.

STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, ROCKINGHAM, SS.

TO the Circuit Court next to be holden at Portsmouth within and for said County of Rockingham on the third Tuesday of October A. D. 1874.

ANNA E. PUDNEY, a resident of Portsmouth aforesaid, complains against CHARLES W. PUDNEY and says that she was married to him November 9, 1869, at New York City, by the Reverend Mr. Gallandet, then and there a regularly ordained Episcopal clergyman; that after their said marriage they lived in said New York City until December, 1872, when they removed to Brooklyn in the State of New York, where they resided until November, 1873; thence your libellant removed to Portsmouth aforesaid in the winter of 1873, where she has since continued to reside, up to the time of the filing of this libel. And your libellant has always conducted herself as a faithful and dutiful wife towards the said Charles, but that he, regardless of his marriage obligations, has been guilty of extreme cruelty towards your libellant so as seriously to injure her health from the first day of March, 1870, up to the filing of this libel. In March, 1870, he was in the habit of leaving her for several days at a time alone, without food or the means of procuring the same, while she knew nothing of his whereabouts and tried in vain to find him, and was constantly neglecting her in destitute circumstances and has ever since so continued to treat her. In the autumn of 1872 he threatened to sell the household furniture and turn herself and children out of doors if she did not leave him.

In the month of February, 1872, he struck her and knocked her down senseless, then shook and pounded her until she was severely bruised. In the Autumn of 1873 he struck and pushed her into an adjoining room, knocked her down and seriously bruised and wounded her, cutting a deep gash on her head. At another time he pointed and cocked a loaded revolver at her, threatening to kill her, and as she believes, would have done so had she not fell fainting before him.

That she now is and long has been in constant fear of her life being taken by him, that he has repeatedly told her in the most threatening language that she should never live in New York City or State, that if she attempted to do so he would "hunt her down" and "abuse her to death."

That in the month of September, 1873, he sold all the furniture, and turned herself and children out of doors in the most cruel manner, with the violent threat that they should not only live out of doors but out of New York State, and that if she lived there he "would eternally abuse her if not kill her." That your libellant being in mortal fear of the said Charles, and fully believing that he would execute his threats, came to Portsmouth where she now claims to be a resident. That she has frequently begged of him, through the assistance of friends, to support her or to treat her kindly so that she might live in New York, but that he has constantly refused to do so, and still persists in the threats, that if she attempts to live anywhere in New York he "will put a stop to her home there at once," meaning, as your libellant fully believes, to kill her in case she so attempts to do. That he has frequently since her residence in Portsmouth attempted to find out if she was in New York, threatening to kill her if she was to be found there. That since September, 1873, he has had no home for himself or family, and has been a common vagabond, bent only upon the one thought of abusing or killing his wife. And your libellant further says that the said Charles W. Pudney on divers days and times since their said intermarriage and the commencement of the filing of this libel has committed the crime of adultery with divers lewd women, whose names are to your libellant unknown. And your libellant further presents that she has had by the said Charles two children who are now living, viz.: Carrie L. Pudney and Thomas N. Pudney. Wherefore she prays that the bonds of matrimony between her and the said Charles may be forever dissolved, and that the care and custody of said two children may be committed and entrusted to her.

ANNIE E. PUDNEY.

The True Issue.

We trust that republicans generally fully appreciate the great importance of Monday's election, and that there will be less disposition to "scratch" objectionable names, if there are any, from the tickets than in times past. Personal considerations should have little weight against party nominations. A more flagrant outrage than that perpetrated by the democratic majority in the legislature in abridging the terms of the present city officials before half the time for which they had been elected had expired, and in removing the selectmen from office who had been chosen by a majority of the people and substituting a reckless set of men who are expected to do the dirty work of the democracy without sense of shame or fear of consequences—cannot be imagined.

In voting for republican candidates let the true issue not be forgotten. A vote for Moses H. Goodrich is a vote to endorse the redistricting of the city. A failure to vote for the republican nominees on personal grounds carries with it such consequences that we trust every republican will deliberate ere he erases a name from his ballot. We have no fault to find personally with the democratic nominee for Mayor. His character is beyond reproach. He does represent however the old rebel element which rejoiced over Union defeats, and the present policy of the democratic party to win by fraud that which they cannot secure honestly. A defeat of the republican candidate for Mayor would be a defeat of the republican party. At best, under the infamous gerrymander, the republicans can elect but half of the aldermen and councilmen should they carry four of the seven wards. The casting vote of the Mayor is all-important. Let no vote be withheld from the entire republican ticket because of personal considerations. Principles are at issue—not men!

Revision of the Check-List.

The selectmen of Wards Four and Seven met for the revision of the check-list on Friday. The selectmen of the other wards meet to-day for the same purpose, as follows: Ward One, at Franklin school house, from 10 to 12 o'clock, A. M.; Ward Two, at Walker school house on Hill street, from 7 to 9 o'clock, P. M.; Ward Three, at South ward room, at 7 o'clock P. M.; Ward Five, at Court House, from 10 to 12 o'clock, A. M.; Ward Six at State street ward room, from 7 to 9 o'clock P. M. It is important that every republican whose name is wrongfully left off the check-list should attend the first meeting of the selectmen in his ward, to claim his legal rights, for the action of the democratic selectmen so far indicates that many republican legal voters will be disfranchised if it can be managed by any kind of hocus-pocus, and the time of the last session for revising the checklists—on the morning of election day—is limited. Republicans, look sharp after the check-lists if you would not be defrauded of your rights to vote,—most of your other rights have already been legislated away by the democracy.

City Council.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, on complaint of Mrs. S. E. C. Tilton, two nuisances in the shape of pig pens of James Lane and John Sullivan were ordered abated.

Relay of sidewalk was granted John Walker, Daniel street.

The harbor master bill was referred.

On petition of Joseph B. Locke and others for widening Woodbury street at land of estate of Amos Twombly, a hearing was granted.

Voted, That committee on streets have power to put Sagamore Bridge in a passable condition.

Voted, That the Health Officers be requested to rigidly enforce the quarantine law on all vessels arriving here from ports where malignant diseases prevail.

Laconics.

The republicans completed their nominations for city and ward officers Friday evening. We give the full list, and invite all decent citizens to inspect it.

Coeur de Lion Commandery of Knights Templar, of Charlestown, Mass., are to pay a complimentary visit to E. Sir Daniel E. Chase one of the Past Commanders, at the Wentworth House, Newcastle, on Thursday the 17th.

A republican furnishes us with a list of forty names that appear on the check-list of Ward 3, every one of which should be stricken off by reason of death or non-residence. We received the list too late for publication to-day.

Dispatches from the steamship Faraday, engaged in laying the Direct United States Cable, states that she had paid out 453 knots at noon on the 8th, and on the 10th successfully completed the work of shifting the paying out of the cable from the fore to the after tanks. All was going well.

The absurdly false and falsely absurd report of the Mayor's few words of acceptance of the renomination, at the caucus on Tuesday evening, as given by the opposition sheet, has not been deemed worthy of notice; the cause which needs bolstering up by such contemptible means is a base one indeed.

Betton & Co. will sell by auction at noon to-day, at the Congress street auction store, a horse and jump-seat carriage,—sound and kind, both of 'em.

Does the democratic party desire to inaugurate in Portsmouth, the knock-down and drag-out system of politics which has obtained in Little Rock, Louisiana and Biddeford? If not, on what other supposition can some of their movements be accounted for? Fair play is a jewel, the world over, and the republicans ask nothing more; but we think they know their rights, and knowing, dare maintain.

Duprez & Benedict's Minstrels give an entertainment at the Temple, Monday evening. The show will be a good one, for Lew Benedict alone is well able to give a good show, and the troupe is large and well selected. Reserved seat tickets can be procured to-day at Preston's without extra charge, but if not purchased till Monday 25 cts. will be added to the price of each.

When the war was upon us, and rebellion was so near at hand that blood actually ran in our own streets, where then was found the present democratic candidate for Mayor? On which side were his sympathies? It was always understood, and never denied that we heard of—that this gentleman and another now high in office in our county of Rockingham did not stand up very strong for the old flag, but rather apologized for, if they did not foment, the draft riot which disgraces our history. We have no desire to revive old issues or harp on the past; but was Benedict Arnold's treason ever forgotten or forgiven, and should traitors ever be put in power? And all should remember, no matter what the personal character of any candidate,—that the issue for Monday is actually, are we capable of self-government or shall we be led and driven about like dumb dogs?

Burke's Tableaux of Erin drew a good audience, Friday evening, and deserved a crowded house. The tableaux are beautiful, the singing and acting pleasing, the paintings well done and well worth looking at, and the lecture instructive and entertaining. There will be an exhibition this afternoon at half past 2 o'clock, at which children will be admitted for 10 cts. each, adults 25 cts.; and an evening performance also. See advertisement.

At the meeting of the selectmen of Ward 7, Friday, two names were stricken from the check-list and twenty were added. Eight were laid over to Monday. Four names already on were laid over for consideration, the republicans proposing that they be stricken off for non-residence. The check-list now numbers 314. In Ward 4, six names were added.

Messrs. Tufts & Leonard, the popular young hatters, cordially desire their many friends in this vicinity to call at their cosy new store, 212 Washington street, when in Boston. They are always up to the times in everything novel or "nobby" in the hat line, and sell at reasonable prices. See their card elsewhere.

Mr. William Plaisted will run a carriage every hour on Monday from eight o'clock to eight, between South Mill Bridge and Dennett's store, Christian shore. Fare five cents each way.

New Book of Poems.

We have received from the author, Miss Harriet McEwen Kimball, a neatly printed and elegantly bound copy of poems, modestly entitled "Swallow-flights of Song," the writer adopting in her title page the beautiful lines of Tennyson:

"Nor dare she trust a larger lay,
But rather loosens from the lip
Short swallow flights of song, that dip
Their wings in tears, and skim away."

There is a vein of sadness running through the most of Miss Kimball's songs, yet they are so full of touching pathos and exquisite tenderness that one forgets their seriousness and is at once lifted from the low sensualism of the day into the purer atmosphere of a refined spirituality. The gifted author, however, is so favorably known at home and abroad that she needs no further commendation from us than the mere announcement of the publication.

Business Notices.

The Stomach as an Avenger.

For every breach of the laws of health that we commit the stomach inflicts a penalty. Headache, biliousness, nervous tremors, constipation, colic, heartburn, nausea, debility and mental depression are only a few of the punishments which an outraged stomach is capable of imposing upon us. To bring back this vengeful organ to its normal condition—to placate, invigorate and regulate it—there is nothing in the wide world so potent as a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Under the operation of this beneficent vegetable corrective and tonic, the gastric juice becomes a pure and healthy solvent and resumes its natural flow. The effect is the same on the biliary secretion, and in fact on all the fluids of the body, and the final result is the removal of every painful or unpleasant symptom occasioned by the rebellious action of the digestive organs.

THE fine country residence and farm formerly occupied by Rev. John F. Adams,—buildings in thorough repair, land well divided into mowing and tillage; fine fruit orchard, etc., well known for the large quantity of splendid strawberries produced. The house has an evergreen hedge around it and the buildings are in thorough repair. There is a fruit orchard of 300 apple trees, 30 cherry trees and as many pear trees—and a nursery with 1300 young apple trees. From the grape vines on the place fifteen bushels of fruit have been sold in a season, besides abundance retained for home use. Part of the land is well wooded and there is a great quantity of muck on the estate. In the pasture there is a never-failing spring. The farm is situated midway between depots of Eastern and Concord railroads. For sale at a bargain, if enquired for immediately,—of O. G. ROBINSON, on the premises, or Butler & Laighton, Market Square, or Bailey & Co., Market street. jel

The Water Rat.

An observant student of nature thus writes of the habits of the water rat: There is no more timid creature in existence. Every one knows, who has walked by the side of such deep sedgy brooks as the animal haunts, how it will only venture a foot or two from the element in which it finds its safety, and how, at the approach of the lightest footstep, it will drop into the water and dive rapidly to reach the subaqueous entrance of its burrow; and yet the little beast, if it be taken unhurt, will lose its shyness in a day, and in a week feed fearlessly from the hand. He will make his little sharp cry of pleasure at his master's approach, and loves to be stroked and fondled. His long chisel-like teeth are never used traitorously. He will dive and play towards nightfall in a tub of water, and seems to delight in being watched. I once caught one in a net, and though half drowned and stupid from his immersion in the water, he quickly recovered, and got exceedingly tame and friendly. The food of the water rat is exclusively vegetable. Mine used to be fond of lettuce, or cabbage, and carrot-tops; bread he would rarely eat, but boiled potatoes were his particular delight. In his native haunts this charming little creature can do nothing but good, for he will not touch (as he is fabled to do) fish spawn, or even water insects, as I have proved more than once. He eats every kind of water weed, except those which have a rank smell, therefore he must be invaluable in such sluggish streams as he frequents, in keeping a free channel for the water and preventing its collection into pools, the formation of marshes, the ruin of fields, and the spread of fever and ague. To kill the water rat as a destructive vermin, which ignorant people often boast of doing, is consequently a foolish as well as a barbarous act.

AYER' SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhœa arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure, health returns.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the principal one of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.

It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color.

It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE, CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or Inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Research makes to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.

JOHN TAGGART."

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or animal substance, or any other nuisance capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No owner of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any state meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about the stalls or stores every night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any seller of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall cleanse bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by order more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for such refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city. m25 d3m

Daily Chronicle.

An Old Maid's Romance.

"It's only Madge Olcott, the ugliest little old maid in town!"

And Rosamond River's soft laugh rang out high above the tones of all the other girls as she spoke.

I stood and heard it without a word. It made me wince a little, of course; and yet I knew the words were true. I was "little." Yet was I to blame—was I to blame that God in His All-Seeing Providence had seen fit to cast me in this unshapely mould!

Rosamond Rivers, of course, didn't know that I had heard her words. She meant nothing—only a lovely, gay young girl does not always stop and pick and choose her words when she is speaking of one whose bloom is over. What do the fresh crimson rosebuds reck of the wilted flowers whose first glory and beauty are past? And I never was pretty; neither was I rich nor accomplished.

So I had quietly made up my mind to live single and alone in the world, earn my own living, and do my best to help along those who were poorer and weaker than myself.

My uncle Charles had left me the little brown farm-house under the elm trees, with the apple orchard on the side built toward the trout brook and the sunny pastures where the wild strawberries ripened first; and that was all I had.

"Better sell it," advised my friends. But I had no idea of giving up my home for the few hundred dollars that its money value would represent.

"What can you do with a farm?" said everybody. I thought it over and came to a conclusion.

"I'll take summer boarders."

And this accounts for Paul Castleton being a resident under my humble roof that eventful July.

He came there with his two gold-haired little girls and their African nurse, who looked so picturesque with the big hoops of yellow metal hanging from her ears, and the rainbow turban twisted about her open brows—a handsome, stately widower. The little girls had drooped in the sultry atmosphere of their Southern home, and he came to seek their health and welfare more than his own. Rosamond Rivers had recommended him to come to Elm Farm—he was a friend—nay, I was almost disposed to think him an admirer—of hers.

"I am much obliged to you, Rosie," said I, fervently.

"You needn't be," said Rosamond. "I wasn't thinking of you at all, although, of course, I'm glad you're to have the twenty-five dollars a week; but you see it wouldn't do at all for him to have gone to the hotel?"

"Why not?"

"You silly little goose, don't you see?" said Rosamond Rivers, laughing. Belle Martyn boards at the hotel, and Dr. Milton's pretty daughters, and they'd any one of them be sure to make a dead set at Mr. Castleton. At the farm, you know he's perfectly safe."

It was true enough, what she said, yet it cut me to the heart. Belle Martyn was a stately beauty. Dora and Dessi Milton were piquant, coquettish little creatures, with dark, liquid eyes, cherry mouths and complexion of snow and carmine. I was only a brown, ill-favored little old maid. Yet I had feeling too and the color mounted to my cheek as Rosamond spoke. I strove, however, to govern myself.

"Is he your lover, Rosie," I asked.

"My lover! What nonsense!" and she bridled up and tossed her pretty head, "But there's no telling what will happen. Of course he won't always remain a widower—and he did ask me twice to go to the opera with him when I was in the South last winter. Such an elegant place in Richmond as he has!"

I listened, not enviously, but sadly. The little russet winged moth is not supposed to be envious of the blue and gold butterfly; but it must sometimes perceive the force of the contrast between them. I knew that Rosamond was beautiful and talented—that it was for her to build all sorts of aerial castles, none of which were too bright to be real. As for me—well I must plod along as best I could on the shady side of life's road

I admired Mr. Castleton very much. Who could help it? There was something so chivalrous and noble in his way of adapting himself to my poor little house, homespun ways, and being pleased with everything I did.

"He's a real gentleman, sure," said Bridget, my maid of all work. It's the quality as never demeans themselves by grumbling."

The little girls, Bell and Violet, were charming, and old Venus beamed like the sun of her own tropical clime.

"Didn't never s'pose the Norf was so nice," said old Venus. "Clar to gracious it's equal to ole Virginny."

And on pleasant summer evenings Rosamond Rivers and her brother, the young lieutenant of artillery, who was at home on a furlough, would row up as far as the apple trees on the river, moor their boat, and come up for peaches and cream, or syllabubs, or blackberries and milk, just as the state of the pantry permitted. Lieutenant Lewis smoked his cigars on the piazza. I played with Violet and Belle among the red clover-blossoms, and Rosamond sat on the lawn with Mr. Castleton, or made believe to play croquet, until the purpling twilight warned her that it was time to return to the village.

"Dat young lady, she's a-making eyes at my Marse Paul," said ole Venus one night with a nod of the head that set her great gold ear-hoops to rattling! "But tain't no use! Laws! De watched kettle neber boils! No good a spreadin' sazres afore the berry eyes and noss of de birds as the Scripter says. Marse Paul knows better."

But Venus did not look at beautiful Rosamond Rivers with a man's impassioned eyes. And Mr. Castleton did. Of course he did. How could he help it?

It was very foolish of me to fall into the river. I was reaching out for Violet's pocket handkerchief, which had accidentally dropped in, when I lost my balance and fell.

The river was not deep just there, but of course I was frightened. Venus uttered a yell which might have aroused the Seven Sleepers. Violet and Bell shrieked at the top of their shrill little voices and the first I knew, Mr. Castleton had sprung in after me and dragged me to land.

"Madge!" he cried out, breathlessly, calling me for the first time in my life by my Christian name — "Madge, tell me that you are not hurt!"

I was crying with a fright and chill—a very ridiculous thing for me to do, of course; because every one knows that crying reddens the eyelids and swells the nose—but I managed to sob out:

"No, not hurt, thank you. I—I am very sorry I was so stupid!"

"Thank God!" he murmured. "Oh, Madge, if you had died, I believe I should have perished with you!"

"Mr. Castleton!"

"Is it possible, Madge, that you have been blind to my love! For I do love you, my little modest daisy. Nay, I will not detain you now; you are wet and cold and trembling. But to-night, if I am to call you mine, wear a knot of these white roses in your breast."

I crept up to my room and cried through my great happiness. Oh, such blissful, sweet tears! It was like a glad dream, too perfect to be true!

I wore the roses in my breast when I went happy and blushing, down to tea. How could it be that such a homely little brown sparrow as I could attract the love of a prince among men, like Paul Castleton?

This is my romance. This is how my summer of keeping boarders ended. And Rosamond Rivers declares it would have been better policy for her to have let Mr. Castleton go to the hotel, after all.

"For who would have dreamed of suspecting you, you sly, little grey-eyed puss?" said she.

But I believe she is sincerely gratified with my good fortune, after all.

And Venus is delighted.

"'Taint everybody as I'd trust my little cossets wid," said she. "I neber did believe in de step-mother doctrine. But you'll love 'em as they deserve to be loved, Miss Madge."

At all events, I intend to try.

Maine election to-day.

Advices from Great Britain report a terrible collision on the Great Eastern Railway, near Norwich. Fifteen persons were killed and thirty injured, some it is feared fatally.

Hon. Ebenezer Knowlton of Montville, Me., was drowned in a stream near his residence, Thursday. He went in to bathe, and, it is supposed, was attacked by heart disease and died instantly. He was representative from his district to Congress in 1855 and 1856. He was a Baptist minister, had held some of the highest offices in the State, and was about sixty years old.

The experiments with heavy artillery were resumed in Boston harbor on Thursday, the guns being placed on Nut Island and the target (which is 12 inches thick and weighs 96,000 pounds) on Prince's Head, 1650 yards distant. The firing was mainly to get the range. Each gun was loaded with 140 lbs. of power and a 460 lb. shot, and the guns were pointed at a low elevation, but the great velocity of the projectiles carried them over Prince's Head and two miles beyond it, to the great surprise of the army and navy men present.

A new feature in the rapid distribution of great through mails is receiving favorable consideration by the Post Office department, which consists, substantially, of the employment of exclusive mail trains which shall have the right of way in preference to all others.

The death of Professor Blot recalls a story of "real thrift" on the part of a Boston domestic. A lady, at her own expense, sent her domestic to Professor Blot's school and was delighted with her progress. At the end of the course she was surprised to learn that that functionary was engaged in looking for pastures new. "Why, Bridget, you are not going to leave me; if you had not intended to remain with us, I should not have sent you to learn cooking." "And indade, mum, you don't expect me to cook in the new way on the old wages."

State News.

The boating interest at Dartmouth is at a high pitch. Class crews have been selected, and are in training for a college regatta, this fall, on the river. The college crew will be in training all winter, that being thought preferable to the method of the past two years, when training was begun in May, as soon as the river was open. It has been found that eight weeks' training is not sufficient to make even the giants of Dartmouth equal to those who have practised continuously for ten months.

The Governor and Council have confirmed the nominations of Clinton W. Stanley of Manchester as associate-justice of the circuit court, and the nomination for justices of the police courts for Littleton, Farmington and Rochester. John Nesmith was nominated as special justice of the police court of Dover. The following bank commissions were appointed: Frank A. McKean of Nashua, Amos L. Jenness of Deerfield and Joseph M. Folsom of Belmont.

A block was recently taken from the gold mines at Lisbon which yielded over $400 in gold.

New Hampton academy opened its Fall term with nearly 125 students, less than last year, but much above the average.

Some malicious person entered the picker-room of the Winnipesaukee cotton mill at Tilton, Thursday evening, during the absence of the watchman, and flooded the room with the patent sprinkler. The damage is estimated at about $1000.

A Gubernatorial Letter on Babies.

The Kalamazoo (Mich.) Agricultural Society having arranged for a baby show at their forthcoming fair, appointed Governor Bagley one of the committee. Having advised the governor of the honor conferred upon him, the genial chief magistrate responds as follows:

STATE OF MICHIGAN, EXECUTIVE OFFICE, DETROIT, Aug. 8, 1874.

Frank Little, Secretary: Dear Sir—Your favor of the 27th, notifying me of my appointment as one of a "committee on babies" at your coming county fair, is at hand. The position is certainly a delicate, and to a man in public life a dangerous one. Suppose, for instance, I was a candidate for office, would not every father whose baby failed to receive a premium vote square against me? Would not every mother whose baby has failed to receive the attention of the committee use her powers of persuasion in inducing her neighbors to vote for the "other man"? Providence has very kindly implanted in the heart of every crow a decided belief that its "baby crow" is the blackest of all crows—and no argument or counsel could ever convince the mother crow to the contrary,—and this is right. Were it otherwise, our babyhood would not be the reign of kinghood and queenhood that it is. If our parents had not believed us to have been the brightest and best of the human family, and that we were born to be presidents, or at least congressmen, we should have been drowned like kittens before we had reached our teens.

But were I to undertake the duty you request of me, other objections loom up before me. I do not know the opinions of my fellow members of the committee on "babies." I should want to know what sort of babies they have had if they have had any. I want to know whether they like fat babies or lean babies, whether blue-eyed or black-eyed, gray-eyed or hazel-eyed, boys or girls, blondes or brunettes. Above all, I should like to know whether they like babies at all. I do not suppose for a moment your society would have been so careless as to select a committee, any member of which did not like babies, yet you may have done so. If by accident you have, then you have spoiled the job. I could n't serve with any such persons. Their judgment wouldn't be worth a straw. Again, I want to know if there is any member of the committee who never owned a baby of his own. I should most certainly object to serving with any such unfortunate individual. What would he know about babies? How much weight would his opinion have on the important question of which was the "finest and handsomest baby not exceeding eighteen months of age?" A decision made by such a one would be laughed at by every mother in Michigan. I have seven babies of my own. Some of them are too old to be called babies by the outside world, but to me they are and ever will be babies. Now, I try to be fair and decently honest in my judgment of men and things, but when it comes to babies I can't do it; I know I can't; I shall be making comparisons constantly, keeping my own babies before me as a standard of excellence. It is of no use. I can't serve and do my duty to myself, my wife, my babies, my State, my neighbors and my prolific fellow-citizens of Kalamazoo County. Your friend,

JOHN J. BAGLEY.

—It is related of General Phil Kearney that during the hottest part of the day at Seven Pines, when his division were putting in their very best "licks" in holding back the Confederate column, the colonel of a certain regiment of infantry that was hurrying forward galloped to the American Bayard and asked him where he should go in? "Oh! anywhere, colonel, anywhere. It's all the same. Lovely fighting along the whole line."

The Stomach as an Avenger.

For every breach of the laws of health that we commit the stomach inflicts a penalty. Headache, biliousness, nervous tremors, constipation, colic, heartburn, nausea, debility and mental depression are only a few of the punishments which an outraged stomach is capable of imposing upon us. To bring back this vengeful organ to its normal condition—to placate, invigorate and regulate it—there is nothing in the wide world so potent as a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Under the operation of this beneficent vegetable corrective and tonic, the gastric juice becomes a pure and healthy solvent and resumes its natural flow. The effect is the same on the biliary secretion, and in fact on all the fluids of the body, and the final result is the removal of every painful or unpleasant symptom occasioned by the rebellious action of the digestive organs.

LIBEL FOR DIVORCE.

STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, ROCKINGHAM, SS.

TO the Circuit Court next to be holden at Portsmouth within and for said County of Rockingham on the third Tuesday of October A. D. 1874.

ANNA E. PUDNEY, a resident of Portsmouth aforesaid, complains against CHARLES W. PUDNEY and says that she was married to him November 9, 1869, at New York City, by the Reverend Mr. Gallandet, then and there a regularly ordained Episcopal clergyman; that after their said marriage they lived in said New York City until December, 1872, when they removed to Brooklyn in the State of New York, where they resided until November, 1873; thence your libellant removed to Portsmouth aforesaid in the winter of 1873, where she has since continued to reside, up to the time of the filing of this libel. That your libellant has always conducted herself as a faithful and dutiful wife towards the said Charles, but that he, regardless of his marriage obligations, has been guilty of extreme cruelty towards your libellant so as seriously to injure her health from the first day of March, 1870, up to the filing of this libel. In March, 1870, he was in the habit of leaving her for several days at a time alone, without food or the means of procuring the same, while she knew nothing of his whereabouts and tried in vain to find him, and was constantly neglecting her in destitute circumstances and has ever since so continued to treat her. In the autumn of 1872 he threatened to sell the household furniture and turn herself and children out of doors if she did not leave him.

In the month of February, 1873, he struck her and knocked her down senseless, then shook and pounded her until she was severely bruised. In the Autumn of 1873 he struck and pushed her into an adjoining room, knocked her down and seriously bruised and wounded her, cutting a deep gash on her head. At another time he pointed and cocked a loaded revolver at her, threatening to kill her, and as she believes, would have done so had she not fell fainting before him.

That she now is and long has been in constant fear of her life being taken by him, that he has repeatedly told her in the most threatening language that she should never live in New York City or State, that if she attempted to do so he would "hunt her down" and "abuse her to death."

That in the month of September, 1873, he sold all the furniture, and turned herself and children out of doors in the most cruel manner, with the violent threat that they should not only live out of doors but out of New York State, and that if she left there he "would eternally abuse her if not kill her." That your libellant being in mortal fear of the said Charles and believing that he would execute his threats, came to Portsmouth where she now claims to be a resident. That she has frequently begged of him, through the assistance of friends, to support her or to treat her kindly so that she might live in New York, but that he has constantly refused to do so, and still persists in the threats, that if she attempts to live anywhere in New York he "will put a stop to her home there at once," meaning, as your libellant fully believes, to kill her in case she so attempts to do. That he has frequently since her residence in Portsmouth attempted to find out if she was in New York, intending to kill her if she was to be found there. That since September, 1873, he has had no home for himself or family, and has been a common vagabond, bent only upon the one thought of abusing or killing his wife. And your libellant further says that the said Charles W. Pudney on divers days and times since their said intermarriage and the time of the filing of this libel has committed the crime of adultery with divers lewd women, whose names are to your libellant unknown. And your libellant further presents that she has had by the said Charles two children who are now living, viz.: Carrie L. Pudney and Thomas N. Pudney. Wherefore she prays that the bonds of matrimony now existing between her and the said Charles may be forever dissolved, and that the care and custody of said two children may be committed and entrusted to her.

ANNIE E. PUDNEY.

Drowned.

Saturday night about eleven o'clock, while Capt. A. H. Nickerson, Peter Morrill, Joseph Crabb, Chas. H. Doane, Robert C. Ferguson, and John McDermott, of schooner Blondel of Provincetown, were crossing from Curtis' wharf, Newcastle, to their vessel, which was within a stone's throw, they playfully commenced to rock the boat to tease an elderly man who could not swim. After taking in water, Capt. Nickerson ordered them to quit, but the boat began to sink stern foremost and they were all thrown into the water. Crabb was assisted by one of the crew and two swam to the vessel, two others remaining by the boat. Chas. H. Doane, who belonged at West Harwich, was drowned, not being a swimmer. He was 24 years old. His body was recovered near the vessel about nine o'clock Sunday morning. He was the only survivor of four brothers, all of whom were drowned. The selectmen of Newcastle had a rigid investigation of the cause of the accident, and elicited the foregoing facts. Young Doane was a quiet, steady young man, never addicted to drink.

On Sunday afternoon, a boat in which William Hayes, Thomas Brooks and a son of Mr. John S. Wendell were sailing, was capsized a mile outside Fort Point. Hayes and Brooks were rescued by people from Newcastle, but Wendell was drowned. Hayes did not recover his senses until he had been brought home.

Laconics.

The selectmen of the various wards will be in session this morning from 7 to 9 o'clock. See that your name is on the check-list.

Boatswain Francis Butland is ordered to the Receiving Ship Sabine. Lieut. Chas. H. Rockwell is ordered to U. S. S. Plymouth.

We call especial attention of voters to the fact that the law provides that the first name of candidates for office should be spelled on the ballot. A vote for C. Dwight Hanscom, F. W. Miller, D. Webster Barnabee, C. Morris Tredick, E. Washington Brown, etc., is simply thrown away.

Burke's Tableaux of Erin is the best show of the kind travelling, beyond question. Fine paintings of beautiful scenery, good dancing and singing and an interesting and instructive lecture make up an entertainment attractive and pleasing to Americans as well as to exiles from the "ould Dart."

The Times of Friday desires the CHRONICLE to state when Francis Drann, who it says was naturalized in Dover the day previous, first had his name put on the check-list of old Ward Two, intimating that he had voted before being naturalized. Mr. Drann desires us to say that he was naturalized in 1858, lost his papers off Cadiz in 1867, and took oath before the selectmen of Ward Two to that effect before his name was placed on the list. Fearing the democratic selectmen of his Ward would deprive him of the right of suffrage, he went to Dover and obtained a new set of papers.

Republicans, be early at the polls. Let there be no tardiness by which a vote will be lost. Deposit your ballots before three o'clock, if possible.

Voting commences at nine o'clock and is liable to close at any hour. See that your vote is cast in season.

Pay Director Charles W. Abbott is detached from duty as inspector of provisions and clothing at the navy yard, and will be succeeded by Paymaster Ambrose J. Clark.

Scattering votes will not prevent a choice for Mayor to-day. Either Frank W. Miller or Moses H. Goodrich will be chosen, a plurality of votes electing.

On Friday, at the meeting for revising the check-list in the fourth ward, the democratic selectmen, or the fuglers behind them who made up the check-lists, having left off the name of a son of ex-alderman D. H. Spinney, he in protesting against this action told the board that the reason for the omission was that his son served on the Union side through the war, and is now serving under the old flag!

The Cape Ann Advertiser, in speaking of the opening entertainment of Duprez & Benedict's Minstrels in Gloucester, says "the performance was number one in every respect. The programme was entirely new, introducing specialities and novelties, which were received with storms of applause. The new and amusing farce of 'An Awful Plot,' proved a regular side-splitter, while the musical extravaganza entitled 'Africanus Blue-Beard,' and the mirth-provoking farce, 'My Wife's Visitors,' gave genuine satisfaction. The singing, dancing and banjo playing were all first-clas, and the company commence the season of 1874 under the most favorable auspices." This troupe will appear at the Temple this evening.

To-day the republicans have to fight the influence of the Eastern and Concord railroads, the breweries, and in some wards the rascalities of desperate men who have no sense of fairness. Vigilance must be used or a victory won against such combined odds may be neutralized by false counting. Let republicans inside and outside the boxes watch every movement.

The selectmen of Ward Five added thirty-three names to the list on Saturday and struck off four, leaving nine others for consideration. The republicans of this Ward express themselves satisfied that Messrs. Parker and Adams have been impartial in perfecting the list—in marked contrast to the conduct of the democratic selectmen of Ward One, who although they added thirty names to the list, struck off but four, although there are a score on that do not belong there. In Ward Six, the boldest frauds were perpetrated, the democratic selectmen acting as dummies for the democratic wire-pullers, who proposed names of men who never had a legal residence in the Ward and had them put on without question, while republicans who were entitled to vote were obliged to be present in person. Sixty names were added to the list. There are forty names on this check-list of persons who have no legal right to vote in Portsmouth.

Capt. William Lester of this city has received from T. Clarke, Esq., U. S. consul at Callao, a letter concerning the death of the late Capt. David Gorham Lester, in which he says "every attention was given to him during his last sickness and his eyes were closed in death by attending friends." Capt. Lester died at Lima on the 8th of August and was buried in the Protestant cemetery near Callao on the 10th. The first report stated that he was killed near Callao by being thrown from a horse beneath a train of cars, which cut off both his legs and caused death in a few minutes, and that a few days before his death he was paid $7000 by the Peruvian government as a reward for discovering a large deposit of coal; but consul Clayton makes no mention of any accident or any reward, and says Capt. Lester's effects realized scarcely enough to pay the expenses attending his sickness and funeral.

The Times has found an individual so anxious to part with his money that he is willing to bet the Times' report of Mayor Miller's speech of acceptance was correct. We are willing to wager that whatever Mr. Miller might have said would have been distorted and falsely reported by the Times for the sake of political effect. Republicans who heard the speech and read the Times' report of it inform us that the latter was grossly exaggerated. The Times backs out of its slander on Assistant Marshal Entwistle and would win the respect of its readers better by telling the truth than by misrepresenting political opponents.

No wonder republicans and all other decent men are disgusted with the election to-day,—but let that disgust be expressed by a defeat for the democracy and not—as the democracy would like—by staying away from the polls. Vote early, and get out your neighbors and acquaintances.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE, CORDIAL

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by "one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

For Sale in Greenland.

THE fine country residence and farm formerly occupied by Rev. John F. Adams,—buildings in thorough repair, land well divided into mowing and tillage; fine fruit orchard, etc., well known for the large quantity of splendid strawberries produced. The house has an evergreen hedge around it and the buildings are in thorough repair. There is a fruit orchard of 300 apple trees, 20 cherry trees and as many pear trees—and a nursery with 1000 young apple trees. From the grape vines on the place fifteen bushels of fruit have been sold in a season, besides abundance retained for home use. Part of the land heavily wooded and there is a great quantity of muck on the estate. In the pasture there is a never-failing spring. The farm is situated midway between depots of Eastern and Concord railroads. For sale at a bargain, if enquired for immediately,—of O. G. ROBINSON, on the premises, or Butler & Leighton, Market Square, or Bailey & Co., Market street. jel

—High times they had in Iceland: Bayard Taylor's mule throwing his rider over his head for instance.

—Within the past ten years the screw has entirely replaced the paddle in transatlantic navigation; the weight of marine engines has decreased one-half; the steam pressure has quadrupled, and the consumption of coal has diminished two-thirds.

—Mary Kyle Dallas says love-making is always awkward. "A stolen kiss, if seen, creates a laugh; a squeeze of the hand, if detected, is a great joy. I myself, who claim to be romantic, did grin at a shadow picture cast upon the wall of the white garden fence, next door, by unenvious gaslight when I saw the shadow of the young lady with much waterfall feed the shadow of the young gentlemen with no whiskers with sugar plums and then kiss it, but the shadows were very black and took odd cranks in their noses as they moved to and fro, and that may have been the cause of my mirth."

AYER' SARSAPARILLA,
FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.
This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Erup tions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhœa arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure, health returns.

OF
WILD CHERRY!
THE GREAT REMEDY FOR
CONSUMPTION!
And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all
LUNG COMPLAINTS.
This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of ever forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of
COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.
CONSUMPTION
CURED
By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.
Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry
Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.
CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,
And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.
BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER!
This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.
Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever. It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.
By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.
As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.
Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."
BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,
FOR THE WHISKERS.
This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."
"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

QUAKER BITTERS.

These celebrated Bitters are composed of choice Roots, Herbs and Barks, among which are Gentian, Sarsaparilla, Wild Cherry, Dandelion, Juniper and other Berries, and are so prepared as to retain all their medicinal qualities. They invariably cure or greatly relieve the following complaints: Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Liver Complaint, Loss of Appetite, Headache, Bilious Attacks, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Ague, Cold Chills, Rheumatism, Summer Complaints, Piles, Kidney Diseases, Female Difficulties, Lassitude, Low Spirits, General Debility, and, in fact, everything caused by an impure state of the Blood or deranged condition of Stomach, Liver, or Kidneys. The aged find in the Quaker Bitters a gentle, soothing stimulant, so desirable in their declining years. No one can remain long unwell (unless afflicted with an incurable disease) after taking a few bottles of the Quaker Bitters.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And owners or occupiers of premises having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any waste meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about the stalls or stores over night, or another them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier shall said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode, shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 9. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 10. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter house, or for trying tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green hides or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of the city.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

Enforcing the Dog Law.

[N. Y. Sun.]

In Tim Cafferty's saloon in East Thirteenth street, one of four young men drank the toast, "Here's at us, fellers, and here's the good health of the dog-catchers; may they never wan't a dog to catch, and may they live to eat the hen that scratches over their graves."

"Are you a dog-catcher?" asked the reporter.

"You're right, we are, young feller. We are the boss dog-catchers. This is Capt. Jack O'Neil's gang. Capt. Jack, the Bowery trapper. We're the boys as can take in the kiyoodles."

"What district do you work in?"

"Anywhere where there is a dog. We've got a general permit. But we most always goes up the Yorkville and Harlem way."

"I'd like," said the reporter, "to go out with you and see you catch dogs. What do you say?" "Say, why, come along, of course. We can show you fun. You couldn't strike a better crowd. Come to-night, can't you? We start at twelve. If you'll promise to come we will wait for you at McQuade's. Be sure and be on hand and we will show you how it's done."

At midnight the reporter was on the ground. The night was warm and still, a few stars twinkling lazily in the heavens. East Thirteenth street seemed deserted save by the long lines of trucks and drays that turned up at the sidewalks. No sound was heard except the tramp of a solitary policeman and the tinkle, tinkle of the distant car bells. Capt. O'Neil and his subordinates were not at McQuade's, but a young man there thought they were sleeping in their wagon across the street. They were asleep, fast asleep, as their sonorous snoring testified. The young man volunteered to arouse them, and proceeded to do so by punching indiscriminately between the slats of the box with a piece of board. Grunts, kicks and profanity answered every punch. At length, Capt. Jack, thoroughly aroused, sat upright, rubbed his eyes and like another Richard, exclaimed:

"Where's the horse? Hain't the Dutchman brought out that horse yet? Petey, go and stir him up." Petey went. Then there was an hour or more of weary waiting, much running from wagon to stable, much fixing of horses and discussion of plans. The vehicle looked like a dilapidated chicken coop on wheels. The locomotive power was an ancient steed, constructed on the principle of a hat rack and looking enough like Rosinante to be that famous quadruped's own brother. They called him Dexter.

"All aboard!" shouted the jolly Captain, as he and three of his followers sat down in the bottom of the pen. "Hudup—goutothis—gelang—stiddy be jerks—sail on Dexter—now we're off—haoule," and the expedition moved up Thirteenth street, turned into Third avenue and commenced its journey Harlemward. The driver had no sinecure. He who handled the ribbons was expected to keep Dexter moving, to keep him off the sidewalks, to keep him from falling down, and to do this was forced to keep tongue and arm in rapid and vigorous motion. For half an hour the trappers moved on, keeping a sharp lookout for dogs, but not a cur stirred. It was after two o'clock. The milk carts were beginning to rattle down the avenue.

"Stop! there's a dog; go for him, Matt," whispered the Captain, as a small cur darted across the street. Mat and Pete went for him but soon returned without a dog.

"It's no use chasing these fellows; they know us too well. Gracious but how we've thinned them out down here. We used to get a load without going beyond Seventieth street, but we'll have to go over the bridge this time. Keep him going, Bob; we shan't get to Morrisania to-night."

Thus admonished, Bob energetically urged Dexter until he actually got him into a gentle trot.

Suddenly Mat jumped from the wagon, hurried to the side-walk, and returned with a plump little dog.

"Fifty cents in and not turned a hair, gelang, old boy."

At Sixty-eighth street another halt was made.

"Now, fellers, we'll try the rocks and shanties. Go slow, and don't make any noise." With stealthy steps the party threaded their way among the shanties.

"Look out you don't get in any holes. Hi, there's a dog." But the pup scuttled under a shanty and from his retreat set up a tremendous yelping. In an instant the air was full of howls and bark. "It's no go, fellers. They won't come out. They are used to us," said the Captain; then, turning to the reporter, "but we've had some high old times up here before the dogs got afraid of us. One night we had a whole family—old woman and daughters—out after us in night clothes, just 'cause we'd caught their confounded little dog 'Give me me dorg; give me me dorg,' yelled the old woman, and the young ones all howled and called us everything they could think of. They keep their dogs shut up now."

At three o'clock the party were at Harlem bridge with only three dogs in the cage.

"You'd better go to Morrisania," said a man at the stables. "There's dead loads of dogs there." But Morrisania didn't pan out much better. Now and then a dog was seen, but it was wild and defied all attempts at capture.

"We may as well stop right here," said the Captain, "and wait for daylight. The purps are all in the houses or asleep, and won't stir for an hour or so." Dexter was driven up to the sidewalk out of the way of the great beer wagons that were beginning to rumble toward the city, and the dog-trappers all went to sleep, some in the cart with the dogs, others on convenient door-steps.

At daybreak the dogs began to come forth to whiff the morning air. Then the dog catchers arose and began to "gather them in." Each man was armed with a small lasso, which much practice had made formidable in his hands. The unsuspecting Spitz, while aimlessly gazing at the lounging stranger passing near, suddenly found himself in the dog cage, while his frantic mistress followed, vainly bemoaning the loss of her pet. "Gimme me dog—come, Jacky—let him go, you loafer. You hain't no right to take him off before me very eyes."

"Can't help it, lady. You'd better have muzzled him. You've got to go to the pound to get him now—foot of East 16th street."

"I'll get an officer and then we'll see," and off the irate dog owner hurried to the nearest policeman, and poured forth a tale of woe.

"Too late mom. You can get your dog by paying $3 at the pound. Don't you think a muzzle would be cheaper?"

Mat and Petey found an immense dog sitting on the door step. "She's a bad one, Petey," said Mat; "but we must take her in, I guess. Go for her, and I'll knock her brains out if she goes to bite."

Pete approached slowly, looking her straight in the eye. The hugh beast snarled savagely and showed a mouth full of threatening teeth. Pete didn't budge. Stepping closer, he stood a moment watchful; then with a sudden movement the rope was thrown over her head, and choking and growling, the dog was dragged to the cart and tumbled in.

The cage was nearly full. A fine Newfoundland looked over the top slat, seemingly to "shake hands" with Bob, whose business it was to tie and watch the dogs. Bob evidently loves dogs, for he treated them tenderly, called them pet names and only when an ill-conditioned cur was unusually demonstrative did he use his whip. A poor little poodle crouched under a big nondescript, trembling and whining. Somebody's pet was in bad company. But most of the dogs were worthless and would not find friend to deliver them from the hands of Cap. Marriott. A large crowd assembled around the wagon, chaffing and scolding. "That's right, take 'em in. I wish they'd clean out every dog in the town. They're a confounded nuisance." "Poor little fellow, it's too bad to take him, just see him tremble." "A nice piziness for a lot of dirdy loafers ony vay. Dey petter nod ged my tog. I tells 'em dot." A pretty girl, with anxious face, hurries up to the officer, who stands near. "Can't I have my dog? please let me have him. That's him; that little black dog in the corner. That great big dog is stepping on him. Oh, you big brute. Poor little Princey, poor little fellow. Won't you please make them give him to me?"

"I can't do it, Jenny," says the officer kindly; "you will have to go to the pound." Jenny turns sorrowfully away, but stops to give Princey a farewell pat. Then a scramble and a wild rush, and Princey bounds to the front of the wagon, tumbles heels over head to the ground, and flies toward his home, while his young mistress, with her face like a sunbeam, is not much slower. Bob examines the rope, and angrily says, "Who cut that rope?" The crowd laugh. Nobody knows. "That ain't cut," says one, "it's all wet. He chawed it off, hisself; bully for him." Whether cut or chewed, Princey is safe and will be decorated with a muzzle to-morrow.

And now the wagon is full. Dexter is turned around and the homeward journey begun. Occasionally a small dog is captured and added to the number, for there is always room for one more in a dog cart as in a street car. At 2 o'clock the dogs are unloaded at the pound and carefully scrutinized by Capt. Marriott. A puppy is thrown out as under six months old, and the rest paid for at the rate of fifty cents a head.

Five minutes later the trappers were ranged before Tim Cafferty's bar with the money that the city had paid for twenty-seven dogs.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1874.

The State Fair.

This autumnal festival, which is known not only as the largest and happiest gathering of the year in New Hampshire, but as representing and enjoying the support more fully than any other of all sections and all classes in the State will commence in Manchester on Tuesday, September 29, and continue four days. Of the location selected little need be said, for the Manchester Riding Park is generally known as accessible, well appointed and convenient and as the site of the most successful exhibitions the State has ever seen.

The officers of the society under the auspices of which the fair will be held are hard at work, determined if possible to make it more completely successful than any previous one, and to this end will be sparing neither of efforts nor expense.

A large force is already busy putting the grounds in good condition and providing accommodations for all the departments, thus obviating the necessity of giving a portion of the exhibition in halls away from the grounds, which has in past years marred somewhat the symmetry of the display and in a degree detracted from the comfort and satisfaction of visitors. Among the improvements and extensions now in progress on the grounds are the erection of two exhibition buildings each 25 by 162 feet, in which will be displayed the fine arts, fancy and needle work manufactures, and miscellaneous articles, and all the thousand small things which go to the fair. Three capacious tents will also be provided in which will be arranged the agricultural implements, the poultry and the babies, and other smaller tents for the use of officers.

Stables and sheds to accommodate 200 horses, 300 cattle and 100 sheep and swine will be, before the week of the Fair, put in good condition, and the grand stand will also be extended seventy-five feet. The halls at present on the ground are to be put in good repair, and all other needful preparations made to receive the largest and finest display ever seen in the State.

As an inducement for the choicest products of the farms, shops and mills, and the finest specimens from the flocks and herds to come forth and be seen, the society had largely increased its premium list, not only increasing the old premiums but adding new ones. The list now offers the largest premiums for poultry ever opened in the State, new prizes for working oxen and horses and very liberal ones for all animals and articles which are likely to be found in competition. In addition to this, all stock and articles for exhibition will be transported free by the principal railroads and will be admitted to competition free by the society. The expense to exhibitors is thus reduced to the lowest possible point while the premiums are largely increased. The trotting premiums aggregate about $2500 and promise to be well filled, affording some well contested and interesting trots. These inducements offered by the managers will be heartily seconded by the people of Manchester, who will do their best to make the visits of all who may go pleasant and profitable. For the information of those interested, we give the following notes from the premium list: There will be nine trots and a running race; the trotting purses are offered to 2:30, 2:34, 2:37, 2:44, 2:50, 3 minute, grocers', butchers' and milkmen's cart horses and two horses to trot nearest four minutes. Entries must be made on or before Sept. 21.

There will be a running race.

A prize of $100 will be paid the county or town agricultural society the members of which shall make the largest display and take the largest amount of single premiums. The baby-show prizes will be paid in cash, if desired by the winners. The baby-show will be given on the grounds. Entries must be made in writing, on or before Sept. 25, to Aaron Young, at Manchester.

The ox-premiums include $100 for county teams of oxen, $50 for county steer-teams, and $80 for town teams; also $15 for steers trained by boys.

Notice of intention to exhibit stock or articles should be sent to the officers on or before Sept. 21.

Readables.

The District of Columbia safe-burglary case has resulted in the indictment for conspiracy of Harrington, Colonel Whiteley, Nettleship, A. B. Williams of the police court, and Michael Hays.

Dr. Joseph Treat has brought suit against Mr. Jordan, heretofore counsel of Mrs. Woodhull, for libel, laying his damages at $10,000. Dr. Treat is the author of a pamphlet which has been sold in the streets lately, entitled "Beecher-Tilton-Woodhull, the Creation of Society." This purports to be an expose of alleged sin and wickedness of the parties named. In the final article Mrs. Woodhull is made to acknowledge the receipt of $5000, cash, from Mr. Beecher as hush-money, and a promise of still another $5000. Mr. Jordan took exceptions to this statement and published in Hull's Crucible, a Boston sheet, a card over his own signature, insinuating in rather plain language that it was not the truth and that Dr. Treat lied; hence this suit.

The republican State committee of Missouri unanimously recommend that no State ticket be nominated by the party. Unanimously, it recites in strong terms the pledges by which the party is in honor bound, and commends the people's State ticket as immeasurably superior to that of the Bourbons in personal merit and political aims.

The Richmond Whig declares that the Virginia negro of to-day has ten-fold more real solid privileges than the New England negro.

The temperance camp meeting at Old Orchard Beach broke up Monday morning.

M. Guizot, the eminent French statesman and author, died on the 13th.

The Dutch barque Henrietta Mario went ashore on Magdalen island while on a voyage from Quebec to Amsterdam, and the mate and five men were drowned.

The Old Stage Houses.

B. F. Taylor says in the Examiner and Chronicle: The first landlord I ever saw is yet alive. He is rugged; he believes in water; he is a Baptist. He kept a stage-house on the old State road as far back as 1828, as far north as the Black River country. It was an old-time inn, with a long, low hospitable stoop, pulled down over the lower row of front windows, like a broad-brimmed hat, a world too big, fallen over an urchin's eyebrows. Along the wall beneath the stoop was a hospitable bench. Within the wide door was the bar-room, with a great hospitable Franklin, and chuckle-headed andirons, with slender, crooked necks craning away from the maple logs as if they were afraid of burning their brains out. Across the room from the fiery cavern was "the bunk," a seat by day and a bed by night. Above it hung a stage driver's whip, with an open-mouthed tin horn in the act of swallowing the handle, and the stock coiled about like the hapless Laocoon, by a long and snaky lash with a pink silk tail. Beside the whip a shaggy overcoat, a long red muffler, a buffalo robe, and a tin lantern tattooed like a Polynesian. Upon the wall the tatter of an old menagerie show-bill, where a spotted leopard, partly loosened from the plaster, wagged his tail in a strangly familiar way in the little breath of air from the ever-opening door. But the marvel of the place was the bar—a cage of tall, sharp pickets, and within it "black spirits and white, blue spirits and gray." In the fence was a wicket-window that lifted like a portcullis; and upon the little ledge beneath it a half grown tumbler of green glass was set forth, and a portly decanter of some amber liquid, wherein rolled lazy lemons or cherries, or sprigs of tansy, a little pale from drowning—or a blood-red port that came across the sea, or something bluish from the Indies. "Crusaders" were not yet. In the dining-room there were no table waiters, and no bills of fare with impossible combination of letters naming improbable things, but good and abundant food—sugar that looked as if it had been quarried, and white as Parian marble; pure coffee fit for Turks, and tea for mandarins. And withal a hearty welcome. When bedward bound, a pair of sheepskin slippers were produced from a closet in the bar, and "the brief candle" Shakspeare mentions, and you were shown to a bed fat as Falstaff, to which whole flocks of geese paid featherly tribute. Mattresses were not yet. That first landlord was a hero to me. He linked the small village to the big world. He extended them the freedom of the city for two shillings a meal.

State News.

John Petit, a Frenchman, who was arrested a few days ago for stealing a large quantity of goods in Manchester and escaped, has been rearrested and bound over in the sum of $1300 for trial in January next.

The balloon which ascended at the fair at Claremont, on Thursday last, landed at Marlow.

George B. Hale and George H. Blanchard were pardoned from State prison on Thursday last.

Caleb Hutchins was arraigned at Manchester on Friday for receiving a horse stolen over a year ago from J. T. Brownell in New Bedford. Hutchins claims to have bought the mare by auction for $50, but sold her immediately for $150. Brownell established his claim, and Mr. Howard, the purchaser, surrendered the property.

The annual parade of the Nashua fire department took place on Saturday, and the Union hook and ladder company of Marlborough, accompanied by the Marlborough brass band, and the Manchester fire department, accompanied by Dignam's brass band, were their guests.

The house and barn of David Wills, in Nashua, were burned on Sunday. Loss $7500; insured $1800.

The Stomach as an Avenger.

For every breach of the laws of health that we commit the stomach inflicts a penalty. Headache, biliousness, nervous tremors, constipation, colic, heartburn, nausea, debility and mental depression are only a few of the punishments which an outraged stomach is capable of imposing upon us. To bring back this vengeful organ to its normal condition—to placate, invigorate and regulate it—there is nothing in the wide world so potent as a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Under the operation of this beneficent vegetable corrective and tonic, the gastric juice becomes a pure and healthy solvent and resumes its natural flow. The effect is the same on the biliary secretion, and in fact on all the fluids of the body, and the final result is the removal of every painful or unpleasant symptom occasioned by the rebellious action of the digestive organs.

—A pensive young man in Wisconsin, while singing "Come, love, come," beneath his dulcinea's window, had love, music, wind and everything else knocked out of him by a something in a long, white garment that fell out of a chamber window. It proved to be nobody but his girl, who, in her anxiety to know who was serenading her, leaned too far over the window sill; hence the result. He says when he sings "Come, love, come," again, he will keep away from under the window, as his system can't stand many such shocks.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 2 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

The Municipal Election

Came off on Monday as provided for by those champions of local self-government, the democrats. The Selectmen of Wards One and Six manipulated the check-lists to their hearts' content, and in the whole city several hundred names were put on the lists of persons who had no legal right to vote. The republicans were sure of carrying Wards Five and Seven, and put their most zealous efforts into Wards One and Two. Early in the day, it became evident that Ward Two was won, the sturdy republicans of that Ward making a grand capture of the doubtful voters at the start and polling a heavy vote for their time-honored standard bearer, Hon William H. Y. Hackett.

Great interest soon centered in Ward One, the key to the enemy's position, the republicans making such a charge at the earliest outset as to create a panic in democratic ranks. The contest did not cease till the polls were closed, the varying fortunes of the opposing candidates keeping up a fever-heat of anxiety. In this ward Mr. William F. Fernald led his republican associates on the ticket, polling quite a number of democratic votes. All these efforts were vain against the influx of illegal voters in the Ward, the democrats electing their candidate for Alderman by five majority, thus securing for the first time since 1858 a majority in both branches of the city government.

Ward Seven declared its vote at 5 o'clock, Ward Two at 6.30, Ward One at 7, Ward Six at 7.45, Ward Five at 9.15 and Ward Three at 9.45 o'clock.

The republicans of Ward Five had a lively time maintaining control of their Ward in the evening, the democrats from other portions of the city appearing in force to close the polls. It was not until Moderator Butler was urged to be just that he decided to vote on questions before the meeting by check-list, in each instance the republicans being largely in the majority. After a half dozen ballots on motions to close the polls, the democracy gave it up, and matters being quieted down, the republicans closed the polls with 207 majority for Mayor Miller. The democrats of Ward Three then had 116 majority to throw for their candidate to elect him, and repeated the Marvin experiment of 1873, declaring 127 majority for Mr. Goodrich, thus electing him by 11 majority. A hundred or more illegal votes were thrown for the Mayor elect.

Laconics.

An immense sword-fish was captured off Boon Island on Friday by the crew of the Swampscott schooner Laughing Water, Captain John Higgins. Three of the crew, Joseph Simonds, David Bowen, and Charles Jones, were out in a dory, when one of them drove a barb into the fish's back, which caused him to leap out of water several times, and though they had but thirty fathoms of line he was held on to and secured. When dressed the weight was 690 pounds, or about 1000 pounds when alive.

Among the incidents of the election in Ward Three is the choice of Mr. Charles W. Gardner, a republican, as a member of the school committee by nine majority.

Richard Walden, after 21 years' service as Moderator of Ward Three, retires, much to the delight of the republicans. Augustus Walden, Esq., the capable and always obliging Clerk of the same Ward, who has served faithfully for thirteen years past, we regret to say declined another election.

The republicans cast 1196 votes in this city, Monday, and the democrats 1089.

The Cœur de Lion commandery, Wm. H. Kent, E. C., of Charlestown, and the Palestine commandery of Chelsea have accepted an invitation from Daniel E. Chase, a brother knight, to visit him at his new hotel, the Wentworth, at Newcastle, on 23d instant, accompanied by Brown's brigade band. They will reach their destination at five o'clock, and remain until the next afternoon.

Benj. P. Chandler, U. S. N., oldest son of Civil Engineer B. F. Chandler, died at Pensacola navy yard on Saturday, of yellow fever. Mr. Chandler was acting as civil engineer of that yard at the time of his death. He leaves a wife and four children.

The democrats celebrated their victory, Monday night, by ringing the South ward-room bell, building a bon-fire on Market Square, letting off a few fireworks, and marching in procession with the Naval Band to the residence of the Mayor-elect, who on being introduced spoke as follows: "Gentlemen: I thank you for the honor you have conferred upon me, and shall endeavor to administer the duties of the position to the best of my ability, and, I trust, to your satisfaction." [Voice in the crowd—"I want something to drink."] Cheers were given for Mr. Goodrich, Daniel Marcy, Charlie Welch, Bart. Holland, Frank Jones, Marcellus Eldredge and the democracy of Portsmouth. A pleasant feature of the occasion was the presence of His Honor Mayor Miller, who made a congratulatory call on the Mayor-elect. The processionists visited various democratic worthies before their enthusiasm abated and were treated to several vain-glorious speeches.

Mr. Samuel Peirce, of Kittery, who was so severely injured by a fall at the navy yard a week or two ago, still remains in a precarious condition, not having recovered his senses since the accident. Slight hopes of his recovery, however, are entertained by his physican. The workmen at the yard have contributed $200 to the relief of his family.

The navy yard "shut down" at noon on Monday, to give the workmen a chance to vote, State election in Maine coming off that day, as well as the municipal election in this city. The gangs of workmen were small in the forenoon, there being but a limited number of men now employed on the yard, and a large proportion of those who are employed staying away on account of the election.

There is a project for building a lighthouse on York Nubble, near Cape Neddick. The lines of coast steamers ask for it. The Nubble is owned by a party of gentlemen in Boston and other cities who visit it for fall shooting.

Michael Walsh, son of the proprietor of the "Plains House," and John Buckley, who lives on Bow street, had a drunken squabble on Sunday and Buckley was stabbed by Walsh. The wounded man will probably recover.

Schooner Exeter, Capt. Pendleton, lost an Italian sailor named Peter Prun overboard on the 10th, while on the passage from this port to Rockland. The mainsail jibed unexpectedly and the boom knocked him into the sea, also carrying away the schooner's wheel. The schooner was hove to for two hours, but no trace of the man was seen.

Dr. C. A. Norton was seriously injured on Monday by being thrown from a carriage on Union street.

Monday night, as the democratic celebrants proceshed about town to glorify the election of one of the sturdiest opponents of the war for the preservation of the Union, and to serenade others of similar sentiments, they came out good on the chorus of "Sherman's March," and hurrahed for the flag that set you free when "we" were marching through Georgia, in fine style!

—"Can't the Chinese be trained to eat the grasshoppers?" is the question which agonizes the heart of one section of the great West; while another is riven with anguish over the dread inquiry: "Can't they train the grasshoppers to eat the Chinese?"

—A lecturer on natural history was called upon to pay for a live rabbit he had in a basket in a railway carriage, and which the ticket collector said would be charged the same as a dog. The lecturer vainly explained that he was going to use the rabbit in illustration of a lecture he was about to give in a provincial town; and indignantly taking a small live tortoise from his pocket, said: "You'll be telling me next that this is a dog, and that I must pay for it also." The ticket taker went for superior orders, and on his return delivered this lecture in natural history; "Cats is dogs, and rabbits is dogs; but a tortoise is a hinsect."

The White Leaguers Responsible.

[New Orleans Times, democratic.]

Is it not about time to stop our mild deprecation of the outrages now being perpetrated in this State, and not only apply to them their proper names, but take measures to put a stop to them? The telegraph brings the news—and there is little doubt of its truth—of the murder of four or five men on the road between Coushatta and Shreveport, by a band of political highwaymen. The names of the men were Dewees, Twitchell, Edgerton, Howell, Holland, and Willis, all, if we mistake not, white Republicans, of Red River parish. They had been arrested as the "ringleaders" of the Coushatta riots; but their ringleadership seems to have consisted in having refused to resign their offices—some of them were parish officials—when called upon by a volunteer committee to do so. They were afterward confronted by a superior force and "arrested," and were being transferred to Shreveport. We charge distinctly that this atrocious deed is the direct and legitimate outgrowth of the violent Red River White League organizations, and for it the able and diabolical White League organ, the Shreveport Times, is in a large measure responsible.

—Lancaster, Pa., boastfully records the building of a "large shoe factory" within its limits, but its pride is abashed by a Maryland critic who observes that of course there would be no market for small shoes there.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA. DEBILITY. DROPSY AND HUMORS,

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

WISTAR'S BALSAM
OF
WILD CHERRY!
THE GREAT REMEDY FOR
CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION
CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever. It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color.

It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,
FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE, CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AYER' SARSAPARILLA,
FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermins health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucborrhœa arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure, health returns.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

Instead of the necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them as early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

DR. FLINT'S

QUAKER BITTERS.

These celebrated Bitters are composed of choice Roots, Herbs and Barks, among which are Gentian, Sarsaparilla, Wild Cherry, Dandelion, Juniper and other Berries, and are so prepared as to retain all their medicinal qualities. They invariably cure or greatly relieve the following complaints: Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Liver Complaint, Loss of Appetite, Headache, Bilious Attacks, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Ague, Cold Chills, Rheumatism, Summer Complaints, Piles, Kidney Diseases, Female Difficulties, Lassitude, Low Spirits, General Debility, and, in fact, everything caused by an impure state of the Blood or deranged condition of Stomach, Liver, or Kidneys. The aged find in the Quaker Bitters a gentle, soothing stimulant, so desirable in their declining years. No one can remain long unwell (unless afflicted with an incurable disease) after taking a few bottles of the Quaker Bitters.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies so may require, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores overnight, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give a written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such buildings, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 13. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city. m25 d3m

Daily Chronicle.

The Typical American Soldier.

A writer in an English magazine published the following description of the "Vermont Brigade," a short time after the close of the war:

They were honest farmers turned vagabonds. They were simple countrymen turned into heroes. They were quiet townsmen that had become rovers. They stole ancient horses and bony cows on the march. They pillaged moderately in other things. They swept the dairies and they stripped the orchards for miles where they travelled. They chased rabbits when they went into camp after long marches, and they yelled like Indians when neighboring camps were silent through fatigue. They were ill-disciplined and familiar with their officers. They swaggered in a cool, impatient way, and looked down with a patronizing Yankee coolness upon all regiments that were better drilled, and upon that part of the army generally that did not belong to the Vermont Brigade. They were strangely proud, not of themselves individually, but of the brigade collectively; for they knew perfectly well they were the best fighters of the known world. They were long of limb and could outmarch the army. They were individually self-reliant and skilful in the use of arms, and they honestly believed that the Vermont Brigade could not be beaten by all the combined armies of the rebellion.

They were veterans in fighting qualities almost from their first skirmish. This was at Lee's Mills. They crossed a narrow dam under a fire, made the attack they were instructed to make, and came back wading deep in the water with a steadiness that surprised the army. They were an incorrigible, irregular, noisy set of rascals. They were much sworn at during their four years of service; yet they were at all times a pet brigade. There were but two things they would do—march and fight; and these they did in a manner peculiarly their own. They had a long, slow, swinging stride on the march which distanced everything that followed them. They had a quiet, attentive, earnest, individual way of fighting that made them terrific in battle. Each man knew that his neighbor in the ranks was not going to run away, and he knew, also, that he himself intended to remain where he was. Accordingly none of the attention of the line was diverted from the important duty of loading and firing, rapidly and carefully.

When moving into action and while hotly engaged they made queer, quaint jokes, and enjoyed them greatly. They crowed like cocks, they ba-a-ed like sheep, they neighed like horses, they bellowed like bulls, they barked like dogs, and they counterfeited with excellent effect the indescribable music of the mule. When, perchance, they held a picket line in a forest it seemed as if Noah's ark had gone to pieces there.

In every engagement in which this brigade took part it was complimented for gallant conduct. One of the most remarkable of its performances, however, has never appeared in print, nor has it been noticed in the reports. After the battle of Gettysburg, when Lee's army was in the vicinity of Hagerstown and the Antietam, the Vermont brigade was deployed as a skirmishing line, anticipating a general engagement. The enemy had evidently determined to attack.

At last his line of battle came forward. The batteries opened at once, and the skirmishers delivered their fire. Our troops were on the alert and stood watching for the skirmishers to come in and waiting to receive the coming assault. But the skirmishers would not come in, and when the firing died away it appeared that the Vermonters thus deployed as a skirmish line had actually repulsed a full line-of-battle attack. Twice afterwards the enemy advanced to carry the position, and were each time again driven back by this perverse skirmish line. The Vermonters it is true were strongly posted in a wood, and each man fired from behind a tree. But then everybody knows that the etiquette in such matters is for a skirmish line to come in so soon as they are satisfied that the enemy means business. These simple-minded patriots from the Green Mountains, however, adopted a rule of their own on this occession; and the enemy, disgusted with such stupidity, very properly retired across Beaver Creek.

When the Vermonters led the column on a march, their quick movements had to be regulated from corps or division headquarters, to avoid gaps in the column as it followed them. If a rapid or a forced march were required, it was a common thing for Sedgwick to say with a quiet smile:

"Put the Vermonters at the head of the column to-day, and keep everything well closed up."

After the riots in New York, when it was found necessary to send troops to the city to prevent a recurrence of the outbreak, the Vermont brigade was especially named by the War Department for this duty. Within two hours after the receipt of this dispatch the command was en route for the city. They occupied the public squares there for some time, enjoyed themselves not wisely, nor yet virtuously; and returned to the army of the Potomac sadly demoralized in all but the two great essential qualities of fighting and marching. It was a fortunate thing for the New York mob that it avoided a conflict with the New England troops at that time.

Upon the return of the brigade to the field, they quietly held on to their old routine of life and maintained to the close of the war the splendid reputation they had won at the very outset.

There were many regiments equal to the Vermont regiments in actual battle, and some that, like the Fifth New York Volunteers, not only equaled them in fighting qualities, but greatly surpassed them in drill, discipline and appearance on parade. As a brigade, however, they were undoubtedly the best brigade in the army of the Potomac, for they not only fought as well as it was possible to fight, but they could out-march, with the utmost ease, any other organization in the army.

It was the intention of the writer only to refer to this brigade as furnishing the best type of the American soldier, but this article has grown beyond its intended limit, and we have therefore not the space to examine the causes of this superiority.

Two, however, may be briefly stated. First, that the regiments from Vermont were brigaded together. This rule, strange to say, seemed to work well only in regard to the smaller States, like Vermont and New Jersey. Second, the fact that Vermont during the first year of the war recruited for her regiments and kept them full. Regimental and company officers, knowing that their ranks would be filled up, discharged men freely, and thus managed to get rid of their weak and worthless soldiers.

For these reasons the Vermonters were good men. They were fortunate, moreover, in having such commanders as Gen. W. F. Smith, and Gen. W. T. H. Brooks. It naturally resulted from the combination of circumstances that they became a great power in battle, and earned a reputation of which every man and woman in Vermont may well be proud.

Maine Election.

The general result may be summed up by saying that Governor Dingley will have over 11,000 majority against 9530 last year; the election of all the republican representatives to Congress by an aggregate majority of 12,000, and the choice of probably 30 of the 31 senators, and two-thirds and probably three-quarters of the house of representatives.

Dingley has 226 majority in Augusta, 161 in Portland, 234 in Lewiston, 169 in Auburn, 23 in Alfred, 73 in York, 519 in Bangor, 201 in Saco, 28 in South Berwick, 4 in Elliot, 19 in North Berwick, 43 in Wells, 14 in Kennebunk, and 327 in Kittery. The democrats carry Biddeford by 127.

The White League War.

The White Leagues at the South are bent on mischief. A mass meeting at New Orleans called on Gov. Kellogg to abdicate, which the Governor very sensibly declined to do. Then the White Leagues got up a riot, eight citizens were killed and the U. S. troops interfered and stopped the lawless proceedings. This was on Monday. Tuesday morning the White Leagues, under command of "Lieut. Governor" Penn., captured the State House, arsenals, etc., Gov. Kellogg and Gen. Longstreet taking refuge in the Custom House, which is held by U. S. troops. The President in compliance with the Governor's call for government protection has issued a proclamation ordering all armed bodies to disperse within ten days. The 3d U. S. regiment of infantry is ordered to New Orleans at once.

Readables.

Captain O'Brien of the barque Templar reports that on the 7th instant, in latitude 40, longitude 47, passed a large quantity of wreckage, and the same day passed a vessel of 300 tons, bottom up, newly coppered, and apparently not long in that condition.

William Burnet of Boston has been appointed by the President supervising inspector-general of steamboats.

Rev. H. W. Conant, State agent of the Rhode Island Temperance Union, was assaulted and severely injured by an unknown man, near his residence in Providence, Saturday. The ruffian is supposed to have committed the daring assault at the instigation of liquor dealers.

A barn containing sixteen head of cattle was burned in Ayer, Mass., on Sunday night.

Rear Admiral Rodgers, for three years past chief of the naval bureau of yards and docks, is to take charge of the Naval Academy at Annapolis as superintendent, Commodore J. C. Howell taking charge of the bureau of yards and docks.

The Boston base ball club received a whitewashing from the Chicago club in Boston on Monday, the score being—Chicago 10, Boston 0.

Barque Aurelia, Capt. Horace Brooks, 475 tons register and carrying a crew of eleven persons, sailed from Baltimore for Queenstown, Ireland, January 2d, and has not since been heard of. Two casks, fully identified since as part of the Aurelia's cargo, were picked up near the Western Islands in May, and there is no doubt she is lost with all on board. She was owned by J. Henry Sears & Co., of Boston.

News from Lima, Peru, to the 27th of August, states that there was quite a sensation about 4.30 P. M. of the 22d. The city was thrown into consternation by the news that a handful of desperadoes had attempted the life of the president. Various letters had been received, stating that there was a conspiracy to murder him, but the president refused to pay any attention to them. The attack was made as the president was leaving the palace to walk to his house, a few blocks from the government building. A number of men had posted themselves for the onslaught, but either the immediate action of three officers with the president and bystanders, or a sense of the criminality of the deed they wished to execute, so overpowered them as to render their weapons useless in their hands. One fact is certain, that of the many shots fired not one struck his excellency. The leader of the movement was wounded and captured after a hand to hand conflict with Colonel Santa Maria. The other conspirators fled, but thirteen of them have since been captured, and will be submitted to a vigorous trial. The plot was no doubt a widespread conspiracy among the discontented, unemployed military officers. The people assembled in great crowds before the president's house, and cheered him and his escape. He has become more popular than ever.

News from Brazos Santiago, is to the effect that all the property on the island, including the government light-house, is totally destroyed. Besides the French barque reported lost, the schooner Joseph Rudd and the steamboat Sellers are high and dry one mile from the water. The number of lives lost cannot be estimated. The loss of property in the late storm includes the ports of Clarksville, Texas, and Bagdad, Mexico. A quarter of a million dollars will probably cover the whole.

State News.

A fashionable wedding, largely attended, took place at the Universalist church in Concord Monday afternoon at 5:30. The parties were J. R. Leeson of Newton Centre, Mass., and Miss Georgie, daughter of General Walter Harriman, naval officer at Boston. The ceremony was performed by Rev. James Freeman Clarke, assisted by Rev. E. L. Conger. A reception occurred in the evening.

Mr. A. L. Brown and wife of Whitefield, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding on Saturday.

A Successful "Make-Up."

Don Platt, describing a visit to a cosmetic establishment, says:

"What," we asked, "are the articles that go to make the beautiful woman?"

"Well, first of all is our vegetable enamel, perfectly harmless, that gives the most delicate white—I may say, dazzling—complexion known to the female world." See, he continued, taking a china pot from the counter, "this is put on easily with a small sponge. Permit me, madam; it is soon removed and leaves no trace," and saying this he applied a small quantity to the forehead of our companion. The result on the face of a clear brunette was startling. The marble smoothness, and at the same time the satiny texture, if we may use such an expression, was marvelous. Then he took another sponge and applied a most beautiful blush, a rose color, upon the white, that was perfectly charming in its natural and soft flush.

"And now," he went on, "here is an exquisite instrument with which we trace the delicate blue veins that, when done, defy the microscope of science."

"But how is it possible to make the new face and old shoulders match?"

"By making all new. The face, neck, shoulders and arms have to be treated all alike."

"And does this artificial process end here?" we asked.

"Oh, not at all; we are only just beginning. The eyelashes and eyes have to be treated. The eyebrows receive special attention. We cannot illustrate with you, madam; nature has done so much."

He might well say this, for it is only once in a million such beautiful eyes, eyelashes and brows are given a woman. He called to a young lady of the establishment and said, "Miss Blank, will you permit me?"

She pleasantly assented, and taking a small ivory tablet he placed it under the eyelashes of one eye, and then touching them dextrously and at the same time with the most delicate art, he made the lashes so decided, so pronounced, they seemed to actually grow. He then penciled the brow, and when done the effect was most decided. The young lady was a blonde, and with one eye treated and the other not treated the result was very decided.

"Certainly this is all," we said.

"Not all. We give a delicate tint to the ear, a rosy, steel color to the nails. We have powders for the teeth. We leave nothing uncared for that goes to make perfection of a beautiful woman."

"And are these things in general use?"

"Certainly; you can not find a brilliant complexion that has not been made so by art. We read with great pleasure of the beautiful women of the fashionable circles of Washington and the summer resorts, for we know where they come from."

London Threatened with an Ant Plague.

No little anxiety, says the Pall Mall Gazette, has been caused in the neighborhood of London during the last few days by the sudden appearance of myriads of ants. A vanguard of these insects have been seen marching over Waterloo Bridge, and it is impossible to deny that our position is at the present moment one of extreme peril. At any moment the invading army may be upon us, and we shall then be exposed to all the horrors of an ant plague. Those who are accustomed to look on the ant as an industrious but insignificant creature will probably smile at the idea of its presence, even in swarms, being a source of serious inconvenience. Without any wish to cause an unnecessary panic, but merely with the view of preparing Londoners for possible contingencies, it may be as well to call attention to the proceedings of an army of ants that some years ago invaded the island of Grenada. The ants on that occasion descended from the hills like torrents, and the plantations, as well as every path and road for miles, were filled with them. Rats, mice, and reptiles of every kind became an easy prey to them, and even the birds which they attacked whenever they lighted on the ground in search of food, were so harassed as to be at length unable to resist them. Streams of water opposed only a temporary obstacle to their progress; the foremost rushing blindly on to certain death, and fresh armies instantly following, till a bank was formed of the carcasses of those which were drowned sufficient to dam up the waters, and allow the main body to pass over in safety. Even fire was tried without effect. When it was lighted to arrest their route, they rushed into the blaze in such myriads as to extinguish it. To such straits was the unfortunate island reduced by the ants that a reward of £20,000 was offered, but in vain, for an effectual means of destroying them; and it was not until a hurricane in 1780 came and blew them away, and drowned them—doing, by the way, almost more mischief than the ants—that Grenada was freed from these terrible destroyers. Happily, in London we have the steam roller, which should be kept ready for action in the face of the calamity with which we are now threatened.

The Stomach as an Avenger.

For every breach of the laws of health that we commit the stomach inflicts a penalty. Headache, biliousness, nervous tremors, constipation, colic, heartburn, nausea, debility and mental depression are only a few of the punishments which an outraged stomach is capable of imposing upon us. To bring back this vengeful organ to its normal condition—to placate, invigorate and regulate it—there is nothing in the wide world so potent as a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Under the operation of this beneficent vegetable corrective and tonic, the gastric juice becomes a pure and healthy solvent and resumes its natural flow. The effect is the same on the biliary secretion, and in fact on all the fluids of the body, and the final result is the removal of every painful or unpleasant symptom occasioned by the rebellious action of the digestive organs.

FRANCES L. KENT, vs. FRANK KENT.

TO THE CIRCUIT COURT,
ROCKINGHAM, SS.

RESPECTFULLY represents FRANCES L. KENT of Newton in said county, that she was lawfully married to FRANK KENT of Hampstead in said county on the twenty-sixth day of November, A. D. 1862,—that she and her said husband after the said intermarriage resided together in said Hampstead, in Haverhill in the State of Massachusetts, and in South Berwick in the State of Maine, until the summer of 1870, when they removed to Rollinsford in our county of Strafford, and that she has since resided in the State of New Hampshire,—and that she now resides in said Newton.

Said libellant had one child by her said husband, who is now living, viz: George E. Kent; who is nearly eleven years of age. And said Frances L. Kent avers that since the said intermarriage she has always conducted herself as a faithful, chaste and affectionate wife toward her said husband; yet, the said Frank, wholly regardless of his marriage covenant and duty, at said Rollinsford, on the fifth day of September, A. D. 1871, and more than three years before the filing of this libel, without sufficient cause, and without her consent, abandoned the said libellant, and now refuses, and during all the time since her said abandonment has refused to cohabit with her.

And said Frances L. Kent further avers that said Frank Kent on said fifth day of September, 1871, at said Rollinsford, without her consent, willingly absented himself from her, and went away to some place to your libellant unknown, without making suitable provision for her maintenance and support, and ever since that time, for more than three years together, has continued to so absent himself, without making such provision.

Wherefore, she said Frances L. Kent prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony between herself and said Frank Kent may be decreed, and that the custody of said George E. Kent may be committed to her.

FRANCES L. KENT.
O. H. KEY, Solicitor for Libellant.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT,
ROCKINGHAM, ss.

THIS Libel having been filed in the office of the Clerk of said Court this eighth day of September A. D. 1874: it is ordered that said Frances L. Kent notify the said Frank Kent to appear at the next term of said Court, to be holden at Portsmouth on the third Tuesday of October next, then and there to show cause, if any he has, why the prayer thereof should not be granted, by causing a true and attested copy of said libel and this order thereon to be published one week in the Portsmouth Daily Chronicle, a newspaper printed at Portsmouth in our County of Rockingham, the last publication whereof to be at least one week before said term. By special order of Hon. WILLIAM L. FOSTER, C. J.

Attest, C. G. CONNER, Clerk.

A true copy of the original libel, and of the original order thereon.

Attest, C. G. CONNER, Clerk.

TO MY PATIENTS AND THE PUBLIC.

During my absence from Portsmouth,

Dr. L. A. Johnson

will have entire charge of my office business.

My patients are assured that he is trustworthy and reliable, and will perform all he undertakes to the satisfaction of those giving him their confidence.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

Schooner Annie Lee, Capt. D. W. Look, from Lingan, C. B., for this port, on Sept. 7th, in lat. 44.28, lon. 61.33, encountered a heavy gale from the East, backing into the Northward and blowing a tornado for five hours. Had boat, water casks and every movable thing swept off.

Mr. A. D. Brown will commence the construction of the new telegraph line from Rye Beach to Boston to-day. It is to be finished in thirty days, in season to connect with the Direct Atlantic Cable, the laying of which will be completed by that time.

In the U. S. Circuit Court, Tuesday, Judge Clark decided that the case of Jeff C. Rowe vs. the Eastern Railroad should be tried on the general issue. The Court affirmed the decision of the jury in the case of U. S. vs. Patten.

Mayor Miller desires us to say that he did not call upon Mr. Goodrich, the new Mayor elect, and congratulate him upon his election. On the contrary, he would have been ashamed to be found in any such rabble; and while he has long had the most pleasant personal acquaintance with the incoming Mayor and esteems him as a gentleman and citizen, he could not congratulate him nor any other decent man upon his accession to a position to which he was elected (and could be elected) only by the most glaring partisan frauds, however guiltless he may be of any other complicity therein except the acceptance of the nomination under such circumstances.

The new city government will be sworn in on Tuesday of next week. The new charter provides that the City Clerk shall be elected on that day and other officers during the month of October.

Republicans abroad may appreciate the position of their brethren here by the following illustration. On election day a democratic official opposed putting the name of a voter on the check-list because during an illness from which the voter had recovered he had been delirious. Drawing himself into an attitude of dignity, the official replied to the request to put the name on, as follows:"——, don't you know that the Revised Tactics of New Hampshire do not allow a foolish man to vote?" The chap who gave utterance to the foregoing sapient remark was the chairman of one of the democratic boards of selectmen!

The Ward Two republicans did handsomely on election day. The democrats were confident of holding the Ward, and offered to bet money on it, but the republicans worked like beavers, capturing three of the democratic committee at the outset, securing all the doubtful before noon and polling ten more than half the number on the check-list, before three o'clock. A little of the same pluck in Ward Three would have reduced the democratic majority there—but instead thirteen republicans voted the democratic ticket and eighteen stayed away from the polls.

Bloodgood's Comique Allience (Harry Bloodgood, Jennie Benson, Baby Benson, the Wilson Brothers and others) appears at the Temple on Friday evening. Harry Bloodgood needs no introduction, and concerning two other members of the company the Peoria (Ill.) Times speaks as follows: "The gems of the evening were the clog dance by Miss Jennie Benson and the wonderful performance of Baby Benson. Either of these is worth the price of admission, and to see the latter is the event of a lifetime. We think, for real precocity, Baby Benson never had an equal. Beautiful as a picture, graceful as a fairy, and as active as the veriest spirit, she carried the house by storm."

We advise every reader to purchase a copy of Harper's Magazine for October, for sale at the book-stores. It has a very readable article on Portsmouth by T. B. Aldrich, liberally illustrated by views about town; also an article on the Isles of Shoals, illustrated, by John W. Chadwick.

Josiah H. Morrison, partner in Frank Jones's brewery, and Patrick Hennessey, liquor dealer, are the first Irishmen ever chosen to the city council, being elected aldermen. The new mayor is a native of the city, 65 years old, a well known tanner and successful business man.

Widow Ham, of Rye.

[Manchester Mirror.]

A clear, bright August morning,—on one side rolling fields, rich farms and wooded slopes,—on the other "old ocean" with its ceaseless roar and tumult, a grand accompaniment to one of the most thrilling tragedies ever enacted on this world's stage;—an old, weather-beaten, decaying cottage in contrast with New Hampshire farms in general,—a group of gay, careless girls in the enclosure surrounding, how lifeless and empty are words to convey any accurate impression of this central figure of the group. If Meg Merrilles ever had any real existence outside of the author's brain,—and a visit to widow Ham would dispel any such doubt, she could surely never have rivalled in filth and squalor, in her witch-like apperance and witch-like apperance and wildness of demeanor the old crone of to-day;—but the strong intensity of life and action, the deep vitality which attracted while it repelled in the stern prohetess of Harry Bertram, is entirely wanting here. A poor, crushed, loathsome, trembling wretch, her scant rags scarcely covering the pitiful figure, bent double with age and infirmity, and leaning for support on the witch's true insignia of office, a broomstick, short gray hair flying about the wrinkled, seared, repulsive face, from which all traces of humanity have long since fled,—if ever witch existed, calculated in every respect to furnish material for the wildest dream of the poet, she lived in the widow Ham. Truly, truth is stranger than fiction. In whatever light I should show her to you, whether crooning over her hearthstone of sixty years, or sitting patiently in the old chair with the accumulated cushions of nearly half a century, or writhing in bodily agony upon the low bed, you could not but be impressed with the pitiful repulsiveness and terrible isolation of the poor wretch; but to me, looking over the many changes which I saw take place in her, the picture of the bright August morning recurs most vividly, and in strongest contrast to the gay, busy world around. We stood about her crowded close together, fascinated, yet afraid, watching every motion as she threw her withered arms about, croaking in hoarse, rough notes, telling of her own lost youth, when she was gayer and handsomer than any of us there,—what a bitter mockery it seemed,—approaching now one, now another in her wierd, witch-like way, reminding us that as she once stood in our places so we in our turn might, nay, if we lived, must grow to be like her, wrinkled, repulsive—and who knows?—perhaps deserted, solitary, scoffed at, friendless and alone. A fearful thing to contemplate; better not be born than live to meet such a doom! Growing more excited as she looked at our eager faces, and as her youthful memories surged upon her, she commenced in a cracked voice to sing one of her old songs:

"To-morrow will be the twentieth of May,
The fields and the flowers will be brilliant and gay,
I'll crown him with roses,
I'll deck him with posies,
And I will rejoice in my love's birthday."

Retreating as she sang she stood under the old porch where, relinquishing her impromptu crutch, she waved her withered hands and rocked her body in parting salutation, then shading her eyes watched us as we slowly disappeared, still under the charm of her strange spell. This was my first visit to the widow Ham. After that we made her almost daily visits; she looked for us with eagerness and hated to have us leave. It would be utterly impossible to give you any idea of the state of her house; for thirty years, says one chronicle, it had not been cleaned,—everything that can be conceived of and much that cannot, was crowded into one room,—every variety of cooking utensil in the last stage of dirt, every bit of crockery or tinware that she had ever used in housekeeping, thrown into the corner when too old for use; in short, the only things which were lacking were articles for the improvement of her toilet. We were seized with an insane desire to do something for her. Some of the ladies made her a large apron and neck kerchief and we, not wishing to be outdone, bought her a dress and displayed great zeal in taking her measure and making all preparations for a series of sewing circles of which she was to be the object. Next we proposed having her room cleaned, but such a storm of abuse as we had to endure from her for hinting at such a thing succeeded in frightening us out of any such intention. "She did not know what we meant, she could clean herself up, she would be willing to hire anyone to come and stay with her, would give a good home and board and fifty cents a week to the right person, but have a strange woman come into her house disturbing of her she wouldn't, so there was an end on't!"

Relinquishing all idea of reforming the poor thing, we continued to make her constant visits and generally found her in good spirits, although at times very weak and helpless. About three weeks ago on entering her house we discovered her entirely unnerved, by her side an empty bottle. We remembered rumors that had reached us of the poor widow's infirmity and made up our minds that she was intoxicated, nor could we find it in our hearts to censure deeply the poor, suffering, crazy creature for seeking forgetfulness for a time from her trouble if the means were afforded her. On the following day, Sunday, we found her the victim of extreme bodily suffering. "I've had a good many aches and pains in my day," she said, "but never anything like this." She seemed to be laboring under strong muscular pain, for she tossed herself restlessly from side to side, and could not remain quiet. It was the impression of many who visited her that there had been some foul play, her symptoms seeming like those of a poisoned or drugged creature. A day or two later it was thought necessary by the authorities to, as they explained it, "clean her out." It will not be hard to believe that every one was eager to be present to witness the ceremony, and "her gals," as she called us, were not behind hand in procuring "front seats." The poor creature's distress and anger at being so roughly handled were extreme, but force, in the shape of three strong men, prevailed, and struggling, screaming, swearing some say, but overpowered, she was removed from the room and law and order were gradually evoked from the chaos of thirty years. What book would be large enough to contain an inventory of its contents? It was as if the united junk shops of the whole State had sought a resting place in that quiet spot. After two days of steady work and a large bonfire on the seashore the house was declared finished, the widow, as well cared for as she would permit, still suffering excruciating pain, tossing her arms perpetually, and writhing and groaning, was restored to her room. The poor creature was evidently approaching her end. She could not endure such torture. The physician who had been summoned at the commencement of her illness, ordered her friends to be sent for.

For nineteen years she had been the sole occupant of the house; for so many years the old place had never reflected other light than the few straggling beams which found their way through the filth and gloom of the low windows. Now, unwonted sight, a faint gleam of light was seen to burn through the night, the bed-side was never deserted, strange but kind hands ministered to her last requests. During the week a niece of the old woman's arrived. She had not seen her for twenty years, but was conscious at the time of her arrival and called her by name. From that time she sank slowly and perceptibly; she gradually lost her wild, restless manner and would lie quite still, conscious of people and things about her, and waiting for the end. This came very slowly; for several days she lay in a state of lethargy, her senses left her, she was, as far as outward things were concerned, quite dead. On Saturday morning at three o'clock, she stopped breathing,—Mary Ham, aged 92 years, was dead. Probably no life of this prosaic nineteenth century has seen more changes or been more eventful than that which was now closed. Poor, decrepid, palsied, shattered, time was when she was the lightest, merriest lass of them all.

Oh, that the dead could speak to disclose to us the story that must forever lie shrouded in mystery! A kind and thoughtful burial awaited her, funeral services were held at her own house, and the body was then sent to Rochester, N. H., where by the side of her husband's dust she is forever at rest.

It was the opinion of many that among other peculiarities the widow was miserly and had hoarded in her old room the savings of years. They were doomed to disappointment, however, for with the exception of a small sum, no buried treasure was brought to light. But to the lover of romance a greater treasure than gold or silver was discovered, a package of soiled, time worn, tattered love letters, cherished through long years of suffering and changes—the one oasis in the parched, burnt desert of her life.

They tell a pathetic tale of their own, a quaint little pastoral of sixty years ago, crowned with the tragic end of to-day. Ninety-two years ago Mary Foss was born, a well-to-do farmer's daughter, the oldest of three sisters. When she was still quite young, the family removed to Rochester, N. H., where her youth was passed. Here we can fancy her leading the rustic beauties in the sports of the time, brilliant and pleasing, and if the collection of curly locks found among the letters means anything, "a complete coquette." At the age of twenty she had not settled her affections upon any of her faithful swains, but continues trifling with them, when, in the course of time, she is caught in her own amorous nets and becomes a victim of Cupid. Her letters to her favorite adorer can only be imagined, but that she was really fond of him her after life clearly proves. The spirit of coquetry still possesses her, and Charles soon tires of his fickle betrothed. "I understand that there has been a gentleman to see you," he writes, "and that you have set your affections upon him very much. I do not wish to wright anything to discourage you from forming acquaintance with him if you please. My affections are grate to you indeed. I cannot express them to you in wrighting. I address myself to you in these lines of poetry. Charles Waldron." Here follows an ode with more rhyme than reason, more sentiment than poetry, but touching when we consider to whom it is addressed. Perhaps Molly, in her assurance, took advantage of this permission to pursue her acquaintance with her gentleman friend. Charles is evidently tired of her, for he writes, "I wright to say that I dismiss you. I cannot afford to take to myself a wife at present. Charles Waldron." This letter broke her heart. Flirt, coquette as she was, she had bestowed her whole affections upon the ungrateful Charles, and his unceremonious dismissal completely crushed her. Henceforth her life was a wreck. Too proud to disclose to the world her broken heart, she put on a brave face and determined to snatch at the first chance that was offered her to show Charles her indifference. She made the acquaintance of a reckless, dissipated, but fashionable young gentleman, of a higher station. Talented, accomplished, son of a noted sea captain, young John Ham had four times made a trip around the world, seen the wonders of other lands, spoke fluently five languages. He was a complete scape-grace, ran away from Dartmouth, where his father had placed him, and finally "sat his affections" upon a beautiful girl in Portsmouth. Opposed in his desires in this quarter, in a fit of recklessness he met Molly Foss, offered himself, was accepted, and before his famliy realized it, had married her.

His father, enraged, intended to cut him off penniless, but died before altering his will, and John inherited the most of his father's property, which was soon nearly squandered in riotous living.

John Ham and his wife soon found that their dispositions were not harmonious. She, soured and bitter over her first disappointment, regarded with contempt her fine gentleman abandoning himself to the delights of the "flowing bowl." Like Maud Muller "her thoughts still cling to the mouldering past."

"For him who sat by the chimney log,
Grumbling and doing over pipe and mug,
A manly form at her side she saw,
And joy was duty, and love was law,
Then she took up her burden of life again, Saying only—It might have been."

But, unlike the poetic heroine, wanting resignation, she became a shrew. After living some years in Rochester, they removed in 1840 to Rye near what is now called Straw's Point, then Lock's Neck. Here they continued to live together until the time of Mr. Ham's death, of heart disease, nineteen years ago, and since then she has been completely alone, childless, friendless—her brothers and sisters marrying and drifting apart, until her death-bed summoned one of her surviving relatives to her side. For years she had lived her solitary, helpless life, sinking lower and lower in the depths of filth and desolation, until at last worn out, wearied in mind and body, she met a death as horrible as her life was hard. A further investigation of her death revealed nothing leading to the belief of poisoning. An autopsy disclosed a diseased brain, and the breaking up of a strong constitution occasioned the fearful struggle which attended her last illness. The summer residents of Straw's Point have taken a lively interest in her welfare for years, visiting her and offering what relief was in their power. One kind-hearted gentleman, we are told, a few years since sawed and split with his own hands a cord of wood for her winter's use, and all aided in some measure to relieve her sufferings. But the bitter loneliness and desolation of the poor, disappointed life cannot be measured.

THE fine country residence and farm formerly occupied by Rev. John F. Adams,—buildings in thorough repair, land well divided into mowing and tillage; fine fruit orchard, etc., well known for the large quantity of splendid strawberries produced. The house has an evergreen hedge around it and the buildings are in through repair. There is a fruit orchard of 300 apple trees, 20 cherry trees and as many pear trees—and a nursery with 1500 young apple trees. From three grape vines on the place fifteen bushels of fruit have been sold in a season, besides abundance retained for home use. Part of the land heavily wooded and there is a great quantity of muck on the estate. In the pasture there is a never-failing spring. The farm is situated midway between depots of Eastern and Concord railroads. For sale at a bargain, if enquired for immediately,—of O. G. IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA. DEBILITY. DROPSY AND HUMORS,

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, and easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills, simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of ever forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind but is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever. It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color.

It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE, CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AYER' SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearances on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leuchorrhœa arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure, health returns.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them as early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

DR. FLINT'S

QUAKER BITTERS.

These celebrated Bitters are composed of choice Roots, Herbs and Barks, among which are Gentian, Sarsaparilla, Wild Cherry, Dandelion, Juniper and other Berries, and are so prepared as to retain all their medicinal qualities. They invariably cure or greatly relieve the following complaints: Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Liver Complaint, Loss of Appetite, Headache, Bilious Attacks, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Ague, Cold Chills, Rheumatism, Summer Complaints, Piles, Kidney Diseases, Female Difficulties, Lassitude, Low Spirits, General Debility, and, in fact, everything caused by an impure state of the Blood or deranged condition of Stomach, Liver, or Kidneys. The aged find in the Quaker Bitters a gentle, soothing stimulant, so desirable in their declining years. No one can remain long unwell (unless afflicted with an incurable disease) after taking a few bottles of the Quaker Bitters.

SUMMER is coming! I want a piece of ICE; where can I get it? Why, just send a boy to Perkins', No. 30 South St., and you are sure of it. The Subscriber, having purchased the entire interest of the Portsmouth Ice Co., would take this opportunity to thank his old customers for their past patronage, and would solicit the continuance of the same as well as that of the public generally. Situated as I am, with a large Ice House on Mt. Vernon St., I am prepared to deliver ICE cut from pure spring water, in any part of the city, on the shortest possible notice. By strict attention to the wants of the public and by selecting honest and accommodating drivers, I mean to merit and hope to receive a large share of the public patronage. Special attention given to delivering ICE to the Ships. Orders from fishermen promptly attended to.

N. B. Hoping all misdemeanors of drivers will be reported to the subscriber before other steps are taken, I promise that all complaints will receive immediate attention. ORDER SLATE at H. M. Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including that of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for carrying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city. m35 d3m

Lovely Savages.

[The Wonderland of the Antipodes.]

These Samoans are the most lovely race of savages with whom it has been my fortune to meet; they have not the flat noses, thick lips, and frizzled hair of the negro type, but have distinctly European features and a very pleasing expression. The color of their skin is a rich golden; their whole costume is limited to a light fringe of grass around the waist, and the women confine themselves in the way of tattooing to a couple of thin blue lines across the lips. The men are of great physical strength and enormous stature; they have a queer disdain for us whites, and say that while we employ brute force, e. g., Armstrong guns, etc., like a bull, they have the reason and intellect of the child who runs away from the bull. They live a happy, graceless life; the earth unasked produces her treasures in abundance; they have no need to dig when all is ready to their hand. They bask in the sunshine, or bathe in the cool waters of some retired cove, and cannot understand why we should come to thrust our business worries upon them, to buy their land and grow cotton and sugar, and disfigure the romantic picturesqueness of their island with convenient but intrusive roads; and, above all, why we should send missionaries, who can't agree among themselves, and who attempt to introduce all-concealing garments, of which the want was before unknown. It isn't half as pretty a dress as the garlands of fresh flowers with which they love to adorn themselves in their artless and primitive simplicity. They are not moral, according to our ideas—far from it, but they have a strong sense of the æsthetic, and chastity does not rank as a virtue among them, where the reverse is no sin. They are very clever at hammering out shillings into rude silver rings between a couple of stones, and they also bring for sale little tortoise-shell ornaments inlaid with silver. Their coiffure might have come from Paris or London, for when I was there bright red hair was in vogue with both sexes. They plaster their heads over with lime for a few days, which destroys the original color of the hair, and produces a loud saffron tinge. When a man becomes engaged, the fair fiancee often clips her flowing locks, and brings them to her Adonis, who plaits them in elaborately with his own, producing a most elaborate headdress. The disgusting way in which they prepare kava, an intoxicating drink, by chewing, has often been described, and I do not care to repeat it. Strangely enough, the Samoans are just one day behind all the rest of the world. Their Sunday should be the same day as in New Zealand and Australia, but, as their missionaries came from the east of them, and forgot to miss out a day in their reckoning, they have perpetrated a mistake. It was Monday on board the Nevada when we touched at Pangopango, but with them it was still the Sabbath, and in consequence we were unable to trade to any large extent.

LAWS

Of the State of New Hampshire,

PASSED JUNE SESSION, 1874.

Daily Chronicle.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1874.

Maine Election.

The returns to the Kennebec Journal office from 224 towns give Dingley 37,713, Titcomb, 29,051; Dingley's majority, 9662. In the same towns last year Dingley's majority was 7963.

The majority for Hon. John H. Burleigh, republican, in the 1st Congressional district, is 1400. Speaker Blaine has 3000 majority.

The White League War.

Senator West has urged that troops be sent down the river from Memphis, and that the third infantry be concentrated at once in New Orleans, and that, besides, a naval vessel be sent into the river. He also has suggested that troops be sent immediately from the Indian territory into northwestern Louisiana.

Lieut. General Sheridan has been telegraphed by the President to await orders to proceed to New Orleans. Orders have also been issued to the commanders of infantry regiments in the South, West and Northwest to hold their commands in readiness to move upon the receipt of orders. The Quartermaster General has also been instructed to see that there is no delay in furnishing the necessary transportation, while the Navy Department has received orders also to have the iron clads at Key West in readiness to be towed to New Orleans. All there is available of the army and navy will be concentrated at New Orleans in the next five days. The President declares that he will rout the whole party, if he has to take the field in person. The Attorney General acquiesces, saying that the time for lenient measures has ended. If the authority of the Government is to be asserted it should be done promptly and decisively. It is evident the White Leagues, in making their calculations about this second democratic war, overlooked the fact that James Buchanan no longer occupies the presidential chair.

Readables.

Judge Benj. R. Curtis died in Newport, R. I., on Tuesday aged 65 years.

The Globe intimates that it is "the most complete newspaper" in Boston.

David Barker, the well-known poet of Maine, is dead.

The death of General Foster of New Hampshire leaves only two survivors among the officers who garrisoned Fort Sumter at the outbreak of the rebellion, namely, General Doubleday and General Truman Seymour.

State News.

The house and barns of William Smith, in Dalton, were burned on Monday evening, with 20 tons of hay and a portion of the household furniture.

Engineers are laying out a carriage road from the Crawford House over Pleasant Mountain to the Tip Top House on Mount Washington.

Sandown thinks it has an argument against woman suffrage in the fact that the woman who was elected Superintendent of Schools last spring has resigned her position, married and left town utterly regardless of the public weal.

There are sixty-seven children living under the roof of a certain house in Newmarket village.

Hon. Nathaniel Gordon has given to Phillips Exeter Academy one thousand dollars, in addition to the same amount given in October, 1872, to found a scholarship.

Dr. Wm. Berry, an eminent and aged physician of Exeter, fell on Saturday afternoon while descending a flight of stairs at his residence, and broke his leg between the ankle and the knee. He is 86 years of age.

Rev. Jacob Chapman, of Kingston, is preparing a genealogical record of the Folsom family in New Hampshire, which it is claimed will prove beyond doubt to be the largest family, not only in this State but in all New England. The head of the American branch of the family landed at Hingham, Mass., in 1632; a house which he built at that time is still standing.

A. H. Martin lost his forefinger by a jigsaw, in the Jackson Company's repair shop at Nashua, on Thursday.

Wilfred L. Fitz, the Lowell youth whose astounding feats as a somnambulist made him famous, died last Thursday in Worcester at the Insane Asylum. He had been suffering acutely of late from rheumatism, and morphine had been administered to ease his pain. Wednesday evening he went alone to the bath room for ablution, and it is thought the drug had made him oblivious, for he turned on the hot water, and scalded himself quite badly. From these injuries he did not, however, die. He was recovering from their effects when convulsions seized him, and ended a career as peculiar as it was melancholy.

"Think of it, Hanner."

[Detroit Free Press.]

On the train the other day were a very confiding old man and a very innocent old lady. They had passed away five-sixths of their lives hidden away behind the hills of Vermont, and were going to western Michigan on a visit to their son. After a little skirmishing round the old gentleman pitched into me about "crops" and "sile," and when I found how innocent he was, I gave him all the information I could. All at once, as he rode along, the wife caught his arm and exclaimed:

"Look out, Samuel, or you'll be forgetting that place where they fit!"

The old man explained. He said that a young man who came down from Canada with them, told him to look out for the battle-field of Braddock's defeat as soon as he left Detroit.

I was going to reply that the young man was an infernal liar, but the old lady seemed to have set her heart on seeing the spot, and the old man was so anxious that I couldn't bear to disappoint them. When we got down into the woods I pointed out the "battle field," and they put their heads out of the windows and took in the scene.

"Think of it, Hanner," exclaimed the old man, as he drew in his head; "think of them Injuns creeping through them woods and shooting Mr. Braddock down dead!"

"My soul!" replied the old lady, seemingly overcome at the idea, and she kept her eyes on the woods until I thought she would twist her neck off.

We got along all right for about five miles more, and the old man wanted to know if we weren't down pretty near the spot where Tecumsch fell.

"Where?" I yelled, and he said that the same young man had informed him that the railroad ran close to the identical spot where the great Indian warrior fell and slept.

"It'll be a powerful favor to me an' Samuel if ye'll only point out the spot," urged the old lady, placing her hand on my arm.

How could I go back on what that brazen young man had said? The old folks had made up their minds to see the spot and if I didn't show it to them they might worry for weeks, and they might think the young man had lied, or that I wasn't posted in the historic spots of my own State. Lor' forgive me, but a mile further on I pointed out a hill and said:

"Behold the last resting place of the great Tecumseh."

"Think of it Hanner—just think of it!" exclaimed the old man; "right there is where they got him!"

"Mercy! but it don't seem possible!" she ejaculated, and she had to get out her snuff-box before she could recover from the shock.

The old gentleman said he had a particular interest in seeing the spot, because he knew the man who had killed Tecumseh—used to live right by him.

"He must have been an awful Injun!" broke in the old lady, "for the young man said he didn't die till they had cut off his head, and feet, and hands, and blowed the body up with a barrel of powder!"

I wanted to get away after that, fearing that something worse was coming, but she insisted upon my taking a pinch of snuff, and so I kept my seat. We were just beyond Brighton, when the old man came at me like a steamboat, with:

"Now, then, how fur is it to the spot where they found the Babes in the Woods?"

I wanted to get out of it, but how could I? That young man had deliberately lied to those nice old folks, and I hadn't the moral courage to tell 'm so, and thus had to make a liar of myself. It's awful to deceive any one, especially a good old man and a motherly old lady, on their way to the tomb.

"That's—yes—that's the spot!" I said as we came to a dark piece of woods.

"Think o' that, Hanner!" he said, his head out of the window; "think of them babies being found in there!"

"Yes, it was fearful!" she replied; "seems as if I could almost see them stubbing about in there now.

There was another historic spot of which the young man had told them, but they had forgotten it, and I was never more thankful. They kept quiet until the brakeman yelled out "Lansing" and then the old man bobbed up and exclaimed:

"Lansing—Lansing—why, here's where they hung Tom Collins, ain't it?"

He explained that Tom Collins, a Chicago desperado, had murdered eleven old women and drank their blood for his liver complaint, and after being hunted for miles and miles, had at length been captured at Lansing, cut to pieces by the infuriated populace, and then left hanging to a tree.

I had to point out the tree. It was a tree near the depot, and the tail of a kite had lodged in its branches.

"There's whar' they hung him, Hanner!" said the old man stretching his neck.

"And there's some of his shirt left yet!" exclaimed the old lady, and as I backed out of the car, the good old man was remarking that he was going to ask the train boy if he didn't have the pamphlet "Life of Tom Collins," so that they could get further particulars.

Baffling the Interviewers.

The only three persons on record who have completely baffled the interviewers are Charles Francis Adams, Mayor Havemeyer and Susan B. Anthony. When Mr. Adams returned from Europe, he was boarded, if not at sea, at least before the ship had cast anchor, by an enterprising reporter, who expected to make out a column or two of his views on European affairs, and to anticipate the State department in a few diplomatic secrets. The disgusted man returned with no further information than that the ship had had a smooth passage, and Mr. Adams had not been sick. He filled out the space reserved for the interview with an account of the Adams family, beginning with the minister's grandfather. All that the interviewer got out of Susan B. was that she was fifty-five years old, and did not care who knew it. It was plain that a woman who made that avowal was not to be wheedled or frightened, and he abandoned her. It was not even an object to invent an interview for her. Mayor Havemeyer, while engaged in the examination of important papers, and looking over, not we fancy with the most amiable temper, certain vexatious reports, was approached by an interviewer who modestly inquired if he had received the decision of Governor Dix touching the proceedings for the Mayor's removal from office. The sturdy old Dutchman answered that when he sent a communication to the Governor the Governor could do what he pleased with it, but that when the Go vernor sent a communication to him, he kept it to himself, with which important information touching the Mayor's habits and with a lesson in politeness, which might as well have been given to a horse, the interviewer started for a more accommodating victim.

Buster's Extraordinary Engineering Feat.

Buster, an ingenious youth of four, went out to look at the street contractor one day last week. The man set up boulders in the gutter, and sprinkled sand over them, then another man took his driver and pounded them down solid. Buster reflected on this with some solemnity. You may remember that it rained on Saturday. Buster was confined to the house. He was driven to distraction nearly by his labors in keeping his maternal parent out of mischief during the day. Toward evening the maternal parent went to take a little nap, leaving Buster at liberty. That rising young engineer then went to the storeroom, with his father's best beaver, and gathered up six or seven dozen eggs. He set them all up nicely on the parlor carpet, as he had seen the man do with the boulders, making a tolerably straight gutter from the left foreleg of the piano along the edge of the rug, through the curiosities and knickknacks which had been piled up by the maid when she dusted in the morning. Buster then went back and filled the hat with corn meal, which he sprinkled over the eggs, as the man sprinkled sand over the boulders. Then he pulled off his velvet jacket and laid it down on the edge of the gutter and looked for something that would do for a driver. His business-like glance fell on a roll of valuable pictures, brought from Europe on a substantial wooden roller, which seemed to be about the thing desired. Probably there never was such a case of civil engineering seen as Buster made of that amateur gutter in about three minutes. That night there were two things wanted by the house of Buster. First, Mrs. Buster wanted to hear of some preparation that would remove battered egg and corn meal from carpet rugs, piano legs, velvet clothes, pictures, shell works, Japanese toys, Indian curiosities, mosaics, wood carvings from Nuremburg, Interlachen, and a thousand or two other articles of bijoutry and vertu. Secondly, Master Buster would like to know what will remove or mollify the effects of sudden and violent percussion, rapidly and pertinaciously developed.

Take Courage, Invalids.

Pain and weakness produce despondency, and the invalid who is laboring under bodily torture, debility and mental depression at the same time is indeed in a pitiable condition. But let all who are thus situated take heart. A balm is provided, both for their physical and mental infirmities, in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Among the commonest sources of pain, uneasiness and melancholy are the diseases which affect the stomach, the liver, the alimentary canal, the nerves and the muscles, such as dyspepsia, bilious disorders, constipation, headache, hysteria, and rheumatism, all of which yield readily to the regulating, invigorating and purifying influence of this peerless vegetable tonic, stimulant and restorative. Take courage, sorrowful invalids; you will find the help you need in Hostetter's Bitters.

Ayer's Hair Vigor.

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair re-grows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its graceful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

Damon Lodge, No. 9, Knights of Pythias, of this city, to-day receive as guests members of Olive Branch Lodge of Dover, Squamscot Lodge of Exeter, Saco Lodge of Saco, Mavoshen Lodge of Biddeford and King Philip Lodge of East Boston. The Portsmouth Knights will form in procession at 8 o'clock, with the Naval Band, and proceed to the depot to escort the visitors to the hall on Market street in which a collation has been prepared. At 1 o'clock P. M. the procession will reform and march through the principal streets, to the music of three bands, to the State street ward room, where dinner will be served at 4 o'clock. Immediately after dinner there will be a dress parade, after which the Knights will be dismissed to meet at Congress Hall at 8:30, for a dance. M. T. Betton is Chief Marshal, with W. O. Sides and E. D. Coffin as aids. Among the distinguished guests expected are S. S. Davis, Supreme Chancellor of the Order throughout the world, Albert Story, Grand Chancellor of New Hampshire, R. H. Ingersoll, Past Grand Chancellor of Maine, and A. J. Sides, Past Grand Chancellor of this State.

Portsmouth City Election.

[Boston Transcript.]

The triumph of the democrats in the city election at Portsmouth, makes Mayor Miller less than a yearling in the office, the democratic legislature having thought it proper and, having the power, an advantage to the party to hold an election only six months following the inauguration of the present City Government. Taking the estimate of the local republican paper, it is quite probable that a very good man,—with perhaps some discount for his war record,—has been elected to succeed Mayor Miller. He ought to have good municipal qualifications to replace the present incumbent, who was defeated as a candidate for reelection.

It was not generally supposed that the citizens of Portsmouth could afford to do without Mayor Miller in office for at least a couple of years, but it appears that they are contented to prostrate themselves to party power, and dispense with the services of a tried, active, thorough public spirited man as mayor after only a six months' term, by about a dozen plurality. That is their business, not ours, and it is n't purposed to do any lecturing here on the subject—simply to say that the defeated is not a politician in the low acception of the term, and that it is quite certain that he will not feel so bad about his defeat as many of his friends and the well-wishers of Portsmouth prosperity will. The result is far better as it is, than if, as was almost sure to be the case under the present democratic arrangement of the wards of the city, a republican mayor only had been elected, and there should have been responsibility without power to or support of the incumbent.

Laconics.

The first post-office in New Hampshire was established at Portsmouth, probably May 18, 1775, and five days later the Provincial Congress voted "that there be a post-office in Exeter." The only mail at first was sent by a rider, between Portsmouth and Exeter, but soon after the Massachusetts Congress ordered their post rider to Haverhill, to extend his route to Exeter to meet the rider from Portsmouth.

Joshua L. Foster of Dover was knocked down and beaten by James W. Henderson on Tuesday for attacking Henderson through the Democrat. Foster was considerably injured and Henderson was fined $19.

The wife of Civil Engineer B. P. Chandler died of yellow fever at Pensacola on the day after her husband's death. The two children are ill with the same disease.

Chief Engineer R. M. Bartleman is detached from the navy yard at Boston, October 1, and ordered to the Saranac at San Francisco.

The democrats in fixing up the slate for city officers find among the most prominent candidates Hon. John R. Reding for City Clerk, Joseph R. Holmes for Street Commissioner, Gen. Josiah G. Hadley for Collector of Taxes, Israel Marden for Superintendent of the City Farm and Geo. S. Leach for City Marshal.

The U. S. S. Ticonderoga, Captain R. T. Renshaw commanding, arrived at quarantine in this harbor on Tuesday evening, after a passage of seventeen days from Key West. The passage was made under sail alone, and was prolonged by light head winds. There are fourteen persons sick on board, four of whom have yellow fever, from which they are rapidly recovering. No deaths have occurred since leaving Key West. The ship will remain at quarantine until cold weather, when she will probably be brought to the Yard for repairs.

Because we stated that Patrick Henessey was the first Irishman ever elected to the city council the democratic hand-organ calls it a Know Nothing fling.—as if being an Irishman were cause for shame! Poor Times!

A little son of Mr. Wm. Jellison, watchman at the navy yard, was run over by a heavy team in Kittery, on Tuesday afternoon. The wheels passed over the middle of his body, inflicting severe injuries.

Nearly a score of liquor dealers were candidates for office on the democratic ticket at the recent election.

Mr. James S. Pierce will soon take charge of the Hubbard House, Sioux City, Iowa, and Mr. Sanford Woodward goes with him as clerk. We are sorry to lose from our midst two such genuine gentlemen as Messrs. Pierce and Woodward, and trust that Mr. Frank W. Hilton, the new landlord of the Rockingham, may make as good a record as they have.

The taxes paid by the four republican aldermen elect the present year amount to $1427.51. The six democratic aldermen pay $568.35. The list is as follows: William H. Y. Hackett, lawyer, $1156.31; William H. Sise, coal dealer $151.18; John A. George, joiner, $83.09; Lewis G. Davis, photographer, $36.93; William Marvin, Jr., manufacturer of cod liver oil, $72.31; William F. Russell, grocer and liquor dealer, $138.48; Josiah H. Morrison, brewer, $48.46; Chas. W. Stimson, carpenter, $14.15; Patrick Hennessey, grocer and liquor dealer, $48.46; Albert R. Hatch, lawyer, $246.49.

Strawberry Bank and Mount Sinai Encampments, I. O. O. F., of this city paid their brethren of Quocheco Encampment of Dover a genuine surprise visit, on the evening of the 15th. The special object of their visit was the presentation through Past Chief Patriarch Robert C. Sides, Jr., of an exquisitely wrought pen and ink testimonial on tinted board, having twelve distinct styles in intricate lettering, embodied in the inscription. The visitors partook of a supper and returned home at one o'clock in the morning.

We were led into error by copying from the Boston Advertiser a statement that Josiah H. Morrison is of Irish descent. We hear that Josiah is a native of Bow, in this State.

The Portsmouth High School Association.

Editors Chronicle: On the twenty-eighth of August last I attended a reunion of the Dover High School Association. The exercises consisted of a collation in the High School building in the afternoon, with music by a quartette club from Boston; and in the evening an entertainment somewhat similar to our High School exhibitions, with the exception of dancing, took place in the City hall. Essays, music, orations, etc., not by the graduating class alone, but by members of the association, some of whom graduated several years ago, engaged our attention till nearly ten o'clock, when the body of the hall was cleared of seats and dancing followed. I never attended a more enjoyable entertainment. All formality was put aside and it was a social gathering of the very best kind.

Why can't we have an entertainment of this kind? We have the Association and everything else essential to such a proceeding. The Portsmouth High School Association has done nothing since July fifth, 1873. It has remained in a deep sleep since that time, and unless something is done for it that sleep will be the last. It might possibly get half awake at the next reunion, but that is some nine years hence and most of the members will forget they ever belonged to the old concern before that time. We have live men for officers, but in relation to this society they have shown no interest at all. Now if they would only take hold of this idea and work it through, I think they would have the support of nearly all the members, both in money and work. The expense would not be great, but the hall, music, printing, etc., would cost something. Some time during the Christmas holiday would be a good time for an entertainment of this kind, for then a good many natives would be home. Call meetings of the Association, talk the subject over, let the members contribute money to put it through, put the thing into the hands of competent managers and I think if once held, the reunion would be an annual festival to which the members and friends of the Association could come and enjoy themselves. It would be a pleasant occasion, beside restoring life and animation to a fast dying society. Others seeing that we have a fine society would join us and by charging a small admission fee we could have a flourishing treasury and the means of giving other entertainments, such as theatricals, tableaux, etc., and by charging a small price of admission to each put more money into the treasury. Even if these plans should not succeed, which I think is very improbable, judging from the crowd which always attend any entertainment connected with our schools, there would be no harm in trying them, always making sure of enough money to pay our bills beforehand. White Island Light-House.

[John W. Chadwick, in Harpers's Magazine.]

The light-house gives to White Island a significance that, without it, it could never have. Even a common place light-house makes poets of us all, and this is no commonplace one. Few light-houses are more picturesque in their shape or situation. The new tower rising eighty feet and more from its base, and thirty feet additional from the low-water mark; the truncated cone of the old tower of Mr. Laighton's time beside it; the long covered walk, well stanchioned to defy the power of wind and wave; the tidy little cottage at its end; the patch of brilliant green about it; the little girl, with cheeks so brown and red, who shyly scanned the first of all the rout of summer visitors—all this, against a background of delicious sea and sky, made such a picture that I shall not soon forget it. The keeper is an old Star Islander. His assistant took me up into the tower and showed me the working of the lamp, its splendid prisms, the machinery for making it revolve. It is a Fresnel light, and the light alone, exclusive of the tower, cost about $30,000. There is a superb view from the top, and one gets there a sense of airiness and freedom such as must stir in sailor's breasts, only a hundred times stronger, as they stand high up on the foot-ropes of the yards, while their good ships plunge upon their way.

A Heavy Blow.

Schooner Julia A. Merritt, Capt. A. Hindon, while on the passage from Lingan, C. B., to this port, experienced the violent gale already reported by Capt. Look of the schooner Annie Lee. On the morning of Sept. 7, at about 8 o'clock, the wind came up strong from the southeast with squalls of rain, and by 11 o'clock it had increased to a hurricane, veering around to the northnortheast. Capt. Hindon, finding it impossible to heave the vessel to, she being deep-loaded with coal, ran her dead before the wind for eight hours under bare poles, with a hawser towing astern to assist in steering. The captain says he never experienced such a gale before, and is certain his vessel would have foundered in the heavy cross sea and tremendous wind had she been hove to; for two hours the water was level with the top of her house, and she lost boat, had light wood-work stove and sails split as it was. The two schooners (the Annie Lee and Julia A. Merritt) evidently got into a violent cyclone, and may consider themselves lucky to get off so easily as they did.

An Old City by the Sea.

[T. B. Aldrith in Harper's Magazine.]

I call it an old town, but it is only comparatively old. When one reflects on the countless centuries that have gone to the formation of this crust of earth on which we live, the most ancient of cities on its surface seem merely things of the week before last. It was only the other day, then—that is to say, in the month of June, 1605—that one Martio Pring, in the ship Speedwell, an enormous ship of nearly fifty tons burden, from Bristol, England, sailed up the Piscataqua River. The Speedwell, numbering thirty men, officers and crew, had for consort the Discoverer, of twenty-six tons and thirteen men. After following the windings of "the brave river" for twelve miles or more, the two vessels turned back and put to sea again, having failed in the chief object of the expedition, which was to obtain the medicinal Sassafras-tree, from the bark of which, as was well known to our ancestors, could be distilled the Elixir of Life.

It was at some point on the left bank of the Piscataqua, three or four miles from the mouth of the river, that worthy Master Pring probably effected one of his several landings. The beautiful stream widens suddenly at this place, and the then green banks, covered with a net-work of strawberry-vines, and sloping invitingly to the lip of the water, must have won the tired mariners. The explorers found themselves on the edge of a vast forest of oak, hemlock, maple and pine, but they saw no sassafras-trees to speak of, nor did they encounter—what would have been infinitely less to their taste—any red men. Here and there were discoverable the scattered ashes of fires where the Indians had encamped earlier in the spring; they were absent now, at the falls, higher up the streams, where fish abounded at that season. The balmy June breeze, laden with the delicate breath of wild flowers and the pungent odors of spruce and pine, ruffled the blue sky reflected in the water; the new leaves lisped pleasantly in the tree-tops, and the birds were singing "in full-throated ease." No ruder sound or movement of life disturbed the solitude. Master Pring would scarcely recognize the spot if he were to land there to-day.

Nine years afterward a much cleverer man than the commander of the Speedwell dropped anchor in the Piscataqua—Captain John Smith of famous memory. After slaying Turks in hand-to-hand combats, and doing all sorts of doughty deeds in various parts of the globe, he had come with two vessels to the fisheries on the coast of Maine, when curiosity, or perhaps a deeper motive led him to examine the neighboring shore lines.* With eight of his men in a small boat, a ship's yawl, he skirted the coast from Penobscot Bay to Cape Cod, keeping his eye open. This keeping his eye open was a peculiarity of the little captain's. It was Smith who really discovered the Isles of Shoals, exploring in person those masses of bleached rocks—those "isles asses hautes," of which the French navigator Pierre de Guast, Sieur de Monts, had caught a vague glimpse through the twilight in 1605. Captain Smith christened the group "Smith Isles," a title which posterity, with singular persistence of ingratitude, has ignored. It was a tardy sense of justice that expressed itself a few years ago in erecting on Star Island a simple marble shaft to the memory of John Smith, the greatest, though by no means the only one, of the name.

It was doubtless owing to Captain John Smith's representations, on his return to England, that the Laconia Company selected the banks of the Piscataqua for their plantation. Smith was an intimate friend of Sir Ferdinand Gorges, who, five years subsequently, made a tour of inspection along the New England coast, in company with John Mason, then Governor of Newfoundland. One of the results of this summer cruise is the town of Portsmouth, among whose leafy streets, and into some of whose old-fashioned houses, I propose to take the reader, if he has an idle hour on his hands.

* "Smith drew the first map of our coast, and on presenting it to Prince Charles, with a request that he would give the country a name, it was for the first time by him called New England." [Drewster's Rambles, First Series, p. 11.]

In Smith's map the locality of Portsmouth is called Hull; to Kittery and York he gave the name of Boston.

—"Back out or buckshot" were the alternatives which a Delaware father gave his son, who had been nominated for an office.

—"Go once, and you will go twice!" is the peculiar ending of an invitation to a 'season of song." If this is true, it explains what the waiter in an oyster saloon said: "One's two!"

FRANCES L. KENT, vs. FRANK KENT.

TO THE CIRCUIT COURT, ROCKINGHAM, ss.

RESPECTFULLY represents FRANCES L. KENT of Newton in said county, that she was lawfully married to FRANK KENT of Hampstead in said county on the twenty-sixth day of November, A. D. 1862,—that she and her said husband after the said intermarriage resided together in said Hampstead, in Haverhill in the State of Massachusetts, and in South Berwick in the State of Maine, until the summer of 1870, when they removed to Rollinsford in our county of Strafford, and that she has since resided in the State of New Hampshire,—and that she now resides in said Newton.

Said libellant had one child by her said husband, who is now living, viz: George E. Kent; who is nearly eleven years of age. And said Frances L. Kent avers that since the said intermarriage she has always conducted herself as a faithful, chaste and affection wife toward her said husband; yet, the said Frank, wholly regardless of his marriage covenant and duty, at said Rollinsford, on the fifth day of September, A. D. 1871, and more than three years before the filing of this libel, without sufficient cause, and without her consent, abandoned the said libellant, and now refuses, and during all the time since her said abandonment has refused to cohabit with her.

And said Frances L. Kent further avers that said Frank Kent on said fifth day of September, 1871, at said Rollinsford, without her consent, willingly absented himself from her, and went away to some place to your libellant unknown, without making suitable provision for her maintenance and support, and ever since that time, for more than three years together, has continued to so absent himself, without making such provision.

Wherefore, she said Frances L. Kent prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony between herself and said Frank Kent may be decreed, and that the custody of said George E. Kent may be committed to her. FRANCES L. KENT.

O. H. KEY, Solicitor for Libellant.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT, ROCKINGHAM, ss.

THIS Libel having been filed in the office of the Circuit Court this eighth day of September A. D. 1874: It is ordered that said Frances L. Kent notify the said Frank Kent to appear at the next term of said Court, to be holden at Portsmouth on the third Tuesday of October next, then and there to show cause, if any he has, why the prayer thereof should not be granted, by causing a true and attested copy of said libel and this order thereon to be published one week in the Portsmouth Daily Chronicle, a newspaper printed at Portsmouth in our County of Rockingham, the last publication whereof to be at least one week before said term. By special order of HON. WILLIAM L. FOSTER, C. J.

Attest, C. G. CONNER, Clerk.

For Sale in Greenland.

THE fine country residence and farm formerly occupied by Rev. John F. Adams,—buildings in thorough repair, land well divided into mowing and tillage; fine fruit orchard, etc., well known for the large quantity of splendid strawberries produced. The house has an evergreen hedge around it and the buildings are in thorough repair. There is a fruit orchard of 300 apple trees, 20 cherry trees and as many pear trees—and a nursery with 1300 young apple trees. From the grape vines on the place fifteen bushels of fruit have been sold in a season, besides abundance retained for home use. Part of the land heavily wooded and there is a great quantity of muck on the estate. In the pasture there is a never-failing spring. The farm is situated midway between depots of Eastern and Concord railroads. For sale at a bargain, if enquired for immediately.—of O. G. AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,

For all the Purposes of a Family Physic

CURING

Costiveness, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Dysentery, Foul Stomach and Breath, Erysipelas, Headache, Piles, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Tetter, Tumors and Salt Rheum, Worms, Gout, Neuralgia, as a Dinner Pill, and purifying the Blood,

are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organs into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA- DEBILITY- DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills, simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever. It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being a clear preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE, CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood-root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AYER' SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhœa arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure, health returns.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.

DR. FLINT'S

QUAKER BITTERS.

These celebrated Bitters are composed of choice Roots, Herbs and Barks, among which are Gentian, Sarsaparilla, Wild Cherry, Dandelion, Juniper and other Berries, and are so prepared as to retain all their medicinal qualities. They invariably cure or greatly relieve the following complaints: Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Liver Complaint, Loss of Appetite, Headache, Bilious Attacks, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Ague, Cold Chills, Rheumatism, Summer Complaints, Piles, Kidney Diseases, Female Difficulties, Lassitude, Low Spirits, General Debility, and, in fact, everything caused by an impure state of the Blood or deranged condition of Stomach, Liver, or Kidneys. The aged find in the Quaker Bitters a gentle, soothing stimulant, so desirable in their declining years. No one can remain long unwell (unless afflicted with an incurable disease) after taking a few bottles of the Quaker Bitters.

Keep Cool! Keep Cool!

SUMMER is coming! I want a piece of ICE; where can I get it? Why, just send a boy to Perkins', No. 30 South St., and you are sure of it. The subscriber, having purchased the entire interest of the Portsmouth Ice Co., would take this opportunity to thank his old customers for their past patronage, and would solicit a continuance of the same as well as that of the public generally. Situated as I am, with a large Ice House on Mt. Vernon St., I am prepared to deliver ICE each day, pure spring water, in any part of the city, on the shortest possible notice. By strict attention to the wants of the public and by selecting honest and accommodating drivers, I mean to merit and hope to receive a large share of the public patronage. Special attention given to delivering ICE to the Sick. Orders from Fishermen promptly attended to.

N. B. Hoping all misdemeanors of drivers will be reported to the subscriber before any steps are taken, I promise that all complaints will receive immediate attention. ORDER SLATE at H. M. Clark's provision store, where orders may be left with the subscriber at No. 30 South St., or sent through the post-office. dawtf GEORGE A. PERKINS.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No render of meat at the stalls, shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane, or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for curying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city. m25 s3m

Baffling the Interviewers.

The only three persons on record who have completely baffled the interviewers are Charles Francis Adams, Mayor Havemeyer and Susan B. Anthony. When Mr. Adams returned from Europe, he was boarded, if not at sea, at least before the ship had cast anchor, by an enterprising reporter, who expected to make out a column or two of his views on European affairs, and to anticipate the State department in a few diplomatic secrets. The disgusted man returned with no further information than that the ship had had a smooth passage, and Mr. Adams had not been sick. He filled out the space reserved for the interview with an account of the Adams family, beginning with the minister's grandfather. All that the interviewer got out of Susan B. was that she was fifty-five years old, and did not care who knew it. It was plain that a woman who made that avowal was not to be wheedled or frightened, and he abandoned her. It was not even an object to invent an interview for her. Mayor Havemeyer, while engaged in the examination of important papers, and looking over, not we fancy with the most amiable temper, certain vexatious reports, was approached by an interviewer who modestly inquired if he had received the decision of Governor Dix touching the proceedings for the Mayor's removal from office. The sturdy old Dutchman answered that when he sent a communication to the Governor the Governor could do what he pleased with it, but that when the Governor sent a communication to him, he kept it to himself, with which important information touching the Mayor's habits and with a lesson in politeness, which might as well have been given to a horse, the interviewer started for a more accommodating victim.

The latest dog story concerns a black-and-tan, which, on its morning trip to Springfield, Mass., with its master, has been of late, frequently assailed by a bigger dog on State street. Friday morning, the little dog came with a big comrade, but the State street dog did not appear. Nothing disturbed, the two dogs sat down and waited awhile, then the big dog deliberately hid himself behind a tree, and the little one, barking furiously, ran toward the city, past the home of his enemy. No fighting dog appeared, and the little one repeated the manœuver, this time calling out his assailant. The little dog ran straight to his friend, who lay perfectly still until pursuer and pursued were within a rod of him, when he flew out from his tree and killed the State street dog in a second. The big dog and the little one then gazed tranquilly, a few seconds, at their fallen foe, after which the little dog kited off down town, and the avenger plodded soberly back toward Wilbraham.

Waists of evening dresses are to be trimmed with insertion of lace edged with real jet beads in profusion.

There's a controversy about the new colors. Nobody appears to know definitely what they will be.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1874.

The Louisiana Troubles.

The Cabinet is unanimous in the conviction that the only course open to the President is to support the Kellogg government and reinstate it in power. Despatches were forwarded to New Orleans to the effect that under no circumstances whatever would the Penn government be recognized. Kellogg's personal conduct received the most severe and unqualified condemnation. His desertion of his proper post was characterized as cowardly, and it was agreed on all hands that the greatest difficulty in the whole problem arose from the personnel of the Kellogg government. It seemed to be conceded that the government which had ousted Kellogg was one that would be better for the peace and general prosperity of the State than the one overthrown, but notwithstanding this, as the creation of violence and armed rebellion it had no claims or rights which the general government could recognize. The question of establishing a military government until a new election can be held, as requested by telegraph by a number of influential parties, was fully considered, but it was soon dismissed as establishing, if adopted, a very dangerous precedent, and one which all the southern States would soon prepare to follow.

There seems to be a strong feeling among Cabinet officers that the insurgents' movement embraces some of the best men in the State, but at the same time all are convinced that there is a large rebel element among its supporters, so strong in fact that it cannot be encouraged even to the slightest extent. It was resolved to make known to the insurgents that the government will utterly refuse to recognize them, and will use all means at its control to compel the surrender of the machinery of the State government to Kellogg. It was determined to send all available troops to Louisiana at once. Two men-of-war have also been ordered from Key West to proceed to New Orleans and lie off the city.

The necessity of getting rid of Kellogg and Antoine, the lieutenant-governor, is recognized by all; but whether they can be induced to resign, or whether their faction can furnish better men, even if they were out of the way, are questions that cannot yet be answered.

The New Orleans Times, the leading conservative paper of the South, says, in regard to the outrages in that State: "It is idle to pretend that the situation does not justify this action so far as the national authorities are concerned. The Times charged that many of the White Leaguers intended violence from the start, and that such was the logical and necessary result of the whole crazy business. These allegations were feebly sneered at by hypocrites who knew, while they sneered, that they were true. For weeks the worst passions have been sedulously stirred up, and violence and murder have reared their ugly heads in every direction. There was not one intelligent man in fifty who did not see we were drifting toward anarchy and bloodshed. * * * The troops will not interfere with the election. On the contrary, their presence will be a guaranty that the whole business will be under the eye of the General Government, and that there will be neither swindling on the one hand nor intimidation on the other. A bold and resolute movement on the part of the really influential and conservative elements will sweep the field in favor of good government.

The New Orleans Republican of the 11th instant says: "There are at least fifty leading republicans now in this city from the parishes of Red River, Caddo, De Soto, Bossier, Lincoln, Grant, Natchitoches, etc., waiting for an opportunity to return to their homes and families, and we understand that a large number have been driven into other States, and are waiting for an opportunity to return to their homes. They have been driven away by armed mobs, acting in defiance of law and every principle of christianity. It therefore becomes the duty of the Government they have sustained and defended in its hour of peril to afford protection to them in their hour of danger from mob violence; and it is furthermore the duty of the Government to hunt up the bloody and remorseless scoundrels who shot Twitchell, Dewees, Holland, Edgerton and others, and then robbed their dead bodies of what valuables were about them."

Attorney-General Williams, in an interview with the representatives of the Associated Press, said that the so-called Kellogg government had been established and in full operation for about two years. It has been repeatedly declared by all the courts of Louisiana the only legal government of the State, and it has been repeatedly recognized by the President, and impliedly by Congress. The question is not now whether Kellogg or McEnery ought to be governor, but whether a State government that has been fully organized nearly two years and recognized as such by all the departments of the government, State and national, can be properly overthrown by an armed populace of a city, in which the seat of government is located, by means of violence and bloodshed. Admitting all the wrongs charged upon the Kellogg government, can these proceedings be permitted to stand as a precedent? Are the governments of the States of this Union to be determined by pronunciamentos and violent and bloody outbreaks, as they are in Mexico and South America? I do not see how this case differs in principle from the Arkansas case. Brooks claimed that he received a majority of votes at the election and I have always believed he did. Baxter, however, was duly installed governor of the State. Brooks, relying on that claim, that he was elected, displaced Baxter by a coup d'etat, but the President refused to recognize his right to hold the office obtained in that way. That was a decision against republicans and in favor of democrats. Following this precedent, I do not see how the President can recognize Penn. To do so would be to hold that a political party, defeated, or claiming to be defeated, by fraud at an election for State officers, might, if opportunity offered, take possession of the State government by force, and so substitute violence and anarchy for law and order. I believe it the duty of the general government to put down this lawlessness, whether committed by republicans or democrats. The President has not been governed by party considerations in these matters, and has oftener decided for democrats than republicans, in respect to southern difficulties. Whatever may be said of men and things in Louisiana, the proceedings of the President in respect to that State have been from the beginning in strict conformity to law. His course, in my opinion, will not now be changed. There is not a sensible man in the United States who does not know that the seizure of the State government of Louisiana by Penn and his adherents is an utter violation and disregard of all law. Can any reasonable man expect the President to become a party to such transactions? The question is between law and order on the one hand and violence and disorder on the other, and upon that issue the position of the President is not a doubtful one.

Governor Kellogg and his followers remain in the custom-house. The governor is quietly awaiting the expiration of the five days allowed by the President, when he expects to be restored by the military. He insists he must be put back by the United States troops, and maintained by them.

The President has received offers of more than 25,000 volunteers from the leading cities of the North and West, with the statement that ten times that number can be immediately had if necessary.

Readables.

Edna Dean Proctor has sued Francis D. Moulton for libel, assessing her damaged character at $100,000.

Hon. Horace Maynard is the republican nominee for Governor of Tennessee.

Governor Dix of New York has decided the case of Mayor Havemeyer. He condemns in pointed terms the action of the Mayor, but while declaring that the power of removal is only limited by the discretion of the executive, it should be exercised but in the interest of the public; that there is no imputation of a corrupt motive, and that under all circumstances he deems it proper to decline any further proceeding in the case.

The Niagara Falls Gazette tells of a queer trip taken by a lady visitor's parasol. The lady accidentally dropped it into the swift current that hurries under the Luna Island bridge. The current whisked the light burden over the precipice, and the late owner figured up the cost of her carelessness. Subsequently the lady took a trip into the Cave of the Winds, where she found her truant parasol patiently bobbing around in a friendly eddy.

The Argus states that it has been discovered that the State of Maine, owing to blunders of law-makers, is without a Maine liquor law or any other law against selling liquor.

The friends of woman suffrage in various parts of New England will hold an out-door convention, or "basket picnic," at Old Orchard Beach, on the 22d of the present month. Among the speakers are to be Mr. and Mrs. Blackwell, and other well-known champions of the cause.

General Frank P. Blair is dangerously ill.

The grand Jury at Washington has failed to find a bill in the Shepard-Dana libel case.

The Salem Gazette concludes from a careful examination of Gen. Butler's speech that he is not going to abide by a regular republican nomination.

Mrs. Patrick Gateley, living at 11 Athens street, South Boston, threw a brick at her husband's head, but he dodged and it went through the window, breaking a kerosene lamp and setting the furniture on fire.

P. T. Barnum was married on the 16th to a daughter of John Fisk of Southport, England. The bride is twenty-six years of age and is Mr. Barnum's second wife, his first wife having died about a year ago. The bridegroom is about sixty-seven years of age.

A Philadelphia Bulletin reporter recently went up in Barnum's balloon, and attributes this remark to Donaldson: "I have heard most kinds of musical instruments, and am especially fond of the big violins and 'cellos. But after all, for sustained vibrating quality and heavy volume, give me the music that is sounded when my drag-rope is taut as Ole Bull's fiddle-bow, stiff as a handful of horse-hair, and well rosined by dragging through a river, and when it begins to play on the roof ridge of an old, big, dry, empty hay mow. There is no finer bass-viol in the world than that of a hollow wooden barn, with the gable for a bridge and the crest of the shingles for a bass string."

A New Brunswick jury recently distinguished itself after having been charged to find the value of 20,000 bricks at $15 per thousand, by bringing in a verdict of $294,000 for the plaintiff; after being sent back they corrected their blunder, and the judge said that he had great pleasure in dismissing them.

The grand jury of the Superior Court at Boston returned an indictment against Jesse Harding Pomeroy, the boy fiend, charging him with the murder, on the 18th of March last, of Catherine M. Curran, by inflicting upon her certain mortal wounds with a knife, from which she instantly died.

The last fraud in the way of adulteration is the putting of salt into ale in order to create thirst for more. A fine of £32 4s. was recently imposed upon a beerseller in London for putting 250 grains of salt in every gallon of beer.

Michael Battles went to the livery stable kept by Charles Averill, at Frankfort Marsh, Me., and demanded a team, which was refused by the proprietor, Battles being very much intoxicated. This enraged the latter, who, after bandying some words with Mr. Averill, drew a knife and struck him just below the eye, an upward blow, splitting open the eyeball. The physician who was summoned fears that the wound may result fatally, though with good care the unfortunate victim of the assault may live. Battles was arrested and taken before a justice, and failing to recognize in the sum of $2500 for his appearance before the supreme judicial court, was sent to jail.

A young child of Mr. Hobbs Wiley of Sandwich Centre was severely, if not fatally wounded by the accidental discharge of a pistol in the hands of a man named Chase.

A young man by the name of Arthur Pike has been arrested for obstructing the railroad track in Haverhill, and bound over to appear at the next term of the circuit court in the sum of $2000.

The residence of Mr. M. Dusten in Claremont was recently entered and robbed of watches, jewelry and silver ware to the amount of three or four hundred dollars. The family at the time were attending the fair. Two arrests have been made upon suspicion.

A large steam mill in Canaan, owned by William Wheeler and operated by Goddard & Co., was burned on the night of the 15th. The loss to Wheeler is estimated at $10,000; insured for $8000. Goddard & Co.'s loss, $2000; insured for $1000. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Ayer's Hair Vigor.

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity; and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair re-grows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is prized for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from its residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during each year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 4 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

Wagner Will Hang.

The horrible tragedy at Smuttynose, the details of which are still fresh in the memory of our readers, again attracts interest from the action of the Governor and Council of the State of Maine, who held a session on Wednesday to review the case and to hear the report of the committee appointed to visit Wagner, the scene of the murder and the witnesses. In laying copies of the record before the Council, Governor Dingley said that in accordance with the practice of his predecessors under the law of 1869 he should consider it conclusive, if the Council should so advise, to commute Wagner's sentence to imprisonment for life, but should the Council decline to so advise, the law made it imperative on him immediately after the 24th inst. to issue a warrant for the execution. The committee's report disproved the statements of Wagner's imbecility and failing health, and after a careful consideration of the evidence and the committee's report, the Council adjourned to Thursday to allow Ex-Judge Tapley to present some statements. The decision of Governor Dingley, who is opposed to capital punishment, to issue the warrant for execution if not advised to the contrary by the Council, agreeably disappoints people who were inclined to think the murderer would not have justice meted out to him. The sentiment in this community is general that hanging is too good for such a wretch as Wagner, whose cold-blooded butcheries awaken even now a thrill of horror among those familiar with the details of the most brutal murder known to this latitude. On Thursday, the Council voted five to two not to advise a commutation of sentence, and advised the Governor to issue a warrant to execute Wagner on the last Friday in January.

Laconics.

The Knights of Pythias had a rainy day for the reception of their guests, Thursday. At 8:30 A. M., with the Naval Band, they marched to Frenchmen's Lane to receive the Squamscott Lodge of Exeter, which came with the Exeter Band in teams. The Squamscotts were escorted to Rechab Hall for a collation and the Damons went in search of the King Philip Lodge of East Boston, the Saco and the Mavoshen Lodge of Biddeford, which organizations were collated also. In the afternoon, a grand parade was made through the muddy streets the Naval, Exeter, Biddeford and East Boston Bands furnishing excellent music. Following this was a collation and a dance in the evening.

"The mackerel now bite off the Isles of Shoals" says an exchange. Those rugged rocks from a distance look as if the mackerel would have a hard time of it. "Smutty Nose" will, doubtless, retain its prominence, however hard the fishes may bite.

Workmen are engaged in erecting a belfry on the Cabot street School-house.

Bloodgood's Comique Alliance will appear at the Temple this evening. The company is composed of some of the best artists of the country, and we know that those who attend will be well repaid, by witnessing a first-class variety entertainment. The Wilson Brothers have no superiors as gymnasts—their graceful and skillful feats are rendered with ease. The people know Jennie Benson, the wonderful clog dancer, while her child, Baby Benson, astonishes the audience by a faultless rendition of her acts, which consists of singing and dancing. Miss Riddell is a fine singer, and Harry Bloodgood is a whole show in himself. Besides, Reynolds will make people laugh at his Dutch oddities. The orchestra of the company is not the least part of the entertainment.

The Shoals steamers have stopped running.

A little son of Commander G. K. Haskell, U. S. N., was drowned in the Androscoggin River, near Bethel, Friday, and the body was not recovered until Sunday. It was taken to Portland.

Sagamore bridge is closed for repairs.

The democratic ward officers of Ward Five didn't relish the idea of having the polls kept open till midnight on election day as threatened by the republicans, who were indignant at the repeal of the law closing the polls at 6.30. One of the officials besought the republicans not to keep them there, and the majority after satisfying the rowdies from the other wards who went to the Court House to close the polls, that they were competent to manage their own affairs, rescinded the vote to remain till midnight.

We hear that Mr. Mercer Goodrich will be City Clerk, and Benj. M. Parker, Esq., is likely to be provided for.

The mammoth floating stage and brow, used at Appledore island, during the summer season for the convenient landing of passengers and baggage, was towed in from the Shoals by steamer Appledore on Monday. An attempt was made last year to secure it to the island, but during a furious storm in the winter it came near being swept away. As soon as possible after, ward it was towed to this city and made fast to one of the wharves, and this year the Laighton Brothers sent it in as soon as "the season" closed.

At the recent election, the republicans threw 1102 votes for aldermen and chose but four. The democrats threw 1082 and chose six. For councilmen, the republicans threw 1104 votes and elected eight, while the democrats threw 1093 and elected twelve. The democratic minority elected by their own count eighteen members of the city council, while the republican majority elected but twelve.

An Old City by the Sea.

[T. B. Aldrich in Harper's Magazine.]
Continued.

It is not supposable that the early settlers selected the site of their plantation on account of its picturesqueness. They were influenced entirely by the lay of the land, its nearness and easy access to the sea, and the secure harbor it offered to their fishing vessels; yet they could not have chosen a more beautiful spot if beauty had been the sole consideration. The first settlement was made at Odiorne's Point—the Pilgrims' Rock of New Hampshire; there the Manor, or Mason's Hall, was built by the Laconia Company in 1623. It was not until 1631 that the "Great House" was erected by Humphrey Chadborn on Strawberry Bank. Mr. Chadborn, consciously or unconsciously, sowed a seed from which a city has sprung.

The town of Portsmouth stretches along the south bank of the Piscataqua, about two miles from the sea, as the crow flies—three miles, following the serpentine course of the river. The stream, as has been stated, broadens suddenly at this point, and, at flood tide, lying without a ripple in a basin formed by the interlocked islands and the main land, it looks more like an inland lake than a river. To the unaccustomed eye there is no outlet visible. Standing on one of the wharves at the foot of State or Court street, a stranger would scarcely suspect the contiguity of the ocean. A little observation, however, would show him that he was in a sea-port. The rich red rust on the gables and roofs of ancient buildings looking seaward would tell him that. There is a fitful saline flavor in the air, and if a dense white fog should come rolling in—like a line of phantom breakers—as he gazed, he would no longer have any doubts.

It is, of course, the oldest part of the town that skirts the river, though few of the notable houses that remain are to be found there. Like all New England settlements, Portsmouth was built of wood, and has been several times subjected to extensive conflagrations. You very seldom encounter a brick building that is not shockingly modern.

Though many of the old landmarks have been swept away by the fateful hand of time and fire, the town impresses you as a very old town, especially as you saunter along the streets down by the river. The worm-eaten wharves, some of them covered by a sparse, unhealthy beard of grass, and the weather-beaten, unoccupied warehouses go far to satisfy your sense of antiquity. Those deserted piers, and those long rows of empty barracks, with their sarcastic cranes projecting idly from the eaves, rather puzzle the stranger. Why this great preparation for a commercial activity that does not exist, and evidently has not existed for years? There are no ships lying at the pier heads; there are no gangs of men staggering under heavy cases of merchandise; here and there is a barge laden down to the bulwarks with coal, and here and there a square-rigged schooner from Maine smothered with planks and clapboards; an imported citizen is fishing at the end of a wharf, a ruminative, freckled son of Cork, and own brother to the lazy sunshine that seems to be sole proprietor of these crumbling piers and ridiculous store-houses, from which even the ghost of commerce has fled.

Once upon a time, however, Portsmouth carried on an extensive trade with the West Indies, threatening as a maritime port to eclipse both Boston and New York. At the windows of those old counting-rooms which overlook the river near Spring Market used to stand portly merchants, in knee-breeches and silver shoe-buckles and plum-colored coats with ruffles at the wrists, waiting for their ships to come in; the cries of stevedores and the chants of sailors at the windlass used to echo along the shore where all is silence now. For reasons not worth setting forth, the trade with the Indies suddenly ceased, having ruined as well as enriched many a Portsmouth merchant. This explains the empty warehouses and the unused wharves. I fancy that few fortunes are either made or lost in Portsmouth nowadays. Formerly it turned out the best ships, as it still does the ablest ship captains, in the world; but the building of ships has declined there. Portsmouth has one or two large cotton factories, and several thriving breweries; it is a wealthy old town, with a liking for first mortgages; but its warmest lover will not claim for Portsmouth the distinction of being a great mercantile centre. The majority of her young men are forced to seek other fields* of enterprise, and almost every city in the Union, and many a city across the sea, can point to some prominent merchant, or lawyer, or what not, as "a Portsmouth boy." Portsmouth even furnished a late King of the Sandwich Islands, Kekuanaoa, with his Prime Minister. He may not, to be sure, according to Mark Twain,† have been a Richelieu; but then the nankeen monarch himself was not of a first-class kind of goods.

To come back to the wharves. I do not know of any spot with such a fascinating air of dreams and idleness about it as the old wharf at the end of Court Street. The very fact that it was once a noisy, busy place, crowded with sailors and soldiers—in the war of 1812—gives an enchanting emphasis to the quiet that broods over it today.‡ The lounger who sits of a summer afternoon on a rusty anchor fluke in the shadow of one of the silent warehouses, and looks on the lonely river as it goes murmuring past the town, can not be too grateful to the India trade for having taken itself off elsewhere.

What a slumberous, delightful, lazy place it is! The sunshine seems to lie a foot deep on the planks of the dusty wharf, which yields up to the warmth a vague perfume of the cargoes of rum, molasses and spice that used to be piled upon it. The river is as blue as the inside of a harebell. The opposite shore, in the strangely shifting magic lights of sky and water, stretches along like the silvery coast of fairy-land. Directly opposite you is the Navy-yard, with its neat officers' quarters and workshops and arsenals, and its vast ship-houses, in which the keel of many a famous frigate has been laid. Those monster buildings on the water's edge with their roofs pierced with innumerable little windows, which blink like eyes in the sunlight, are the ship-houses. On your right lies a cluster of small islands—there are a dozen or more in the harbor—on the most prominent of which you see the fading away remains of some earth-works thrown up in 1812. Between this—Trefethen's Island—and Peirce's Island lie the Narrows. Perhaps a bark or a sloop of war is making up to town; the hulk is hidden among the islands, and the topmasts have the effect of sweeping across the dry land. On your left is a long bridge, more than a quarter of a mile in length, set upon piles where the water is twenty or thirty feet deep, leading to the Navy-yard and Kittery—the Kittery so often mentioned in Whittier's verse.

This is a mere outline of the landscape that spreads before you. Its protean beauty of form and color, with the summer clouds floating over it, is not to be painted in words. I know of many a place where the scenery is more varied and striking; but there is a mandragora quality in the atmosphere here that holds you to the spot, and makes the half hours seem like minutes. Except for family ties—which include breakfast, dinner and tea—I could fancy a man sitting on the end of that old wharf very contentedly for two or three years, provided it could be always June.

Perhaps, too, one would desire it to be always high water. The tide falls from eight to twelve feet, and when the water makes out between the wharves some of the picturesqueness makes out also. A corroded section of stove-pipe mailed in barnacles, or the pathetic skeleton of a hoop-skirt protruding from the tide mud like the remains of some old-time wreck, is apt to break the enchantment.

I fear I have given the reader an exaggerated idea of the solitude that reigns along the river-side. Sometimes there is society here of an unconventional kind, if you care to seek it. Aside from the foreign gentleman before mentioned, you are likely to encounter, farther down the shore toward the Point of Graves (a burial place of the colonial period,) a battered and aged native fisherman boiling lobsters on a little gravelly beach, where the river whispers, and lisps among the pebbles as the tide creeps in. It is a weather-beaten ex-skipper or ex-pilot, with strands of coarse hair, like seaweed, falling about a face that has the expression of a half-open clam. He is always ready to talk with you, this amphibious person; and if he is not the most entertaining of gossips—as weather-wise as Old Probabilities, and as full of incident as one of the best of Captain Marryat's naval novels—then he is not the ancient mariner I used to see a few months ago on the strip of beach just beyond Liberty Bridge, building his drift-wood fire under a great tin boiler, and making it rather lively for a lot of reluctant lobsters.

I imagine that very little change has taken place in this immediate locality, known prosaically as "Puddle-Dock," during the past fifty or sixty years. The accompanying view, looking across Liberty Bridge, Water Street, is probably the same in every respect that presented itself to the eyes of the rambler a century ago. The flag-staff on the right is the representative of the old "standard of liberty" which the Sons planted on this spot in January, 1766, signalizing their opposition to the enforcement of the Stamp Act. On the same occasion the patriots called at the house of Mr. George Meserve, the agent for distributing the stamps in New Hampshire, and relieved him of his stamp-master's commission, which document they carried on the point of a sword through the town to Liberty Bridge (then Swing Bridge,) where they erected the staff, with the motto, "Liberty, Property, and no Stamp!"

Turning down a lane on your left, a few rods beyond the bridge, you reach a spot known as the Point of Graves, chiefly interesting as showing what a grave-yard may come to if it last long enough. In 1671 one Captain John Pickering ceded to the town a piece of ground on this neck for burial purposes. It is an odd-shaped lot, comprising about half an acre, inclosed by a crumbling red brick wall two or three feet high, with wood capping. The place is overgrown with thistles, rank grass, and fungi; the black slate head-stones have mostly fallen over: those that still make a pretense of standing slant to every point of the compass, and look as if they were being blown this way and that by a mysterious gale which leaves every thing else untouched; the mounds have sunk to the common level, and the old under-ground tombs have collapsed. Here and there among the moss and weeds you can pick out some name that shines in the history of the early settlement: hundreds of the flower of the colony lie here, but the known and the unknown, gentle and simple, mingle their dust on a perfect equality now. The marble that once bore a haughty coat of arms is as smooth as the humblest slate stone guiltless of heraldry. The lion and the unicorn, wherever they appear on some cracked slab are very much tamed by time. The once fat-faced cherubs, with wing at either cheek, are the merest skeletons now. Pride, pomp, grief, and remembrance are all at an end. No reverent feet come here, no tears fall here; the old grave-yard itself is dead! A more dismal, uncanny spot than this at twilight would be hard to find. It is noticed that when the boys pass it after night-fall, they always go by whistling with a gayety that is perfectly hollow.

Let us get into some cheerfuller neighborhood!

* The affection which the exiles cherish for their native place is worthy of remark. On two occasions—in 1853 and in 1873, the 250th anniversary of the settlement of Strawberry Bank,—the Sons of Portsmouth abroad were seized with a desire to return home. Simultaneously, and almost without concert, the lines of pilgrims took up their march from every quarter of the globe, and swept down with music and banners on the motherly old town.

† Vide "Roughing It," by Mark Twain, p. 387.

‡ Portsmouth did a very neat little business in the privateering line in the war of 1812, sending out a large fleet of the sauciest small craft on record. Some of them came to grief, among others the Harlequin, Capt. Brown. The Harlequin gave chase one day to a noble-looking ship, and got it into close quarters, when suddenly the sly stranger threw open her ports, and proved to be H. M. S. Bulwark—seventy-four guns!

Portsmouth, Sept. 15, 1874.

FRANCES L. KENT, vs. FRANK KENT.

TO THE CIRCUIT COURT,
ROCKINGHAM, SS.

RESPECTFULLY represents FRANCES L. KENT of Newton in said county, that she was lawfully married to FRANK KENT of Hampstead in said county on the twenty-sixth day of November, A. D. 1862,—that she and her said husband after the said intermarriage resided together in said Hampstead, in Haverhill in the State of Massachusetts, and in South Berwick in the State of Maine, until the summer of 1870, when they removed to Rollinsford in our county of Strafford, and that she has since resided in the State of New Hampshire,—and that she now resides in said Newton.

Said libellant had one child by her said husband, who is now living, viz: George E. Kent; who is nearly eleven years of age. And said Frances L. Kent avers that since the said intermarriage she has always conducted herself as a faithful, chaste and affectionate wife toward her said husband; yet, the said Frank, wholly regardless of his marriage covenant and duty, at said Rollinsford, on the fifth day of September, A. D. 1871, and more than three years before the filing of this libel, without sufficient cause, and without her consent, abandoned the said libellant, and now refuses, and during all the time since her said abandonment has refused to cohabit with her.

And said Frances L. Kent further avers that said Frank Kent on said fifth day of September, 1871, at said Rollinsford, without her consent, willingly absented himself from her, and went away to some place to your libellant unknown, without making suitable provision for her maintenance and support, and ever since that time, for more than three years together, has continued to so absent himself, without making such provision.

Wherefore, she said Frances L. Kent prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony between herself and said Frank Kent may be decreed, and that the custody of said George E. Kent may be committed to her.

FRANCES L. KENT.
O. H. KEY, Solicitor for Libellant.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT,
ROCKINGHAM, SS.

THIS Libel having been filed in the office of the Clerk of said Court this eighth day of September A. D. 1874: It is ordered that said Frances L. Kent notify the said Frank Kent to appear at the next term of said Court, to be holden at Portsmouth on the third Tuesday of October next, then and there to show cause, if any he has, why the prayer thereof should not be granted, by causing a true and attested copy of said libel and this order thereon to be published one week in the Portsmouth Daily Chronicle, a newspaper printed at Portsmouth in our County of Rockingham, the last publication whereof to be at least one week before said term. By special order of Hon. WILLIAM L. FOSTER, C. J.

Attest, C. G. CONNER, Clerk.

For Sale in Greenland.

THE fine country residence and farm formerly occupied by Rev. John F. Adams,—buildings in thorough repair, and well divided into mowing and tillage; fine fruit orchard, etc., well known for the large quantity of splendid strawberries produced. The house has an evergreen hedge around it and the buildings are in thorough repair. There is a fruit orchard of 300 apple trees, 20 cherry trees, and as many pear trees—and a nursery with 1500 young apple trees. From the grape vines on the place fifteen bushels of fruit have been sold in a season, besides abundance retained for home use. Part of the land heavily wooded and there is a great quantity of muck on the estate. In the pasture, there is a never-failing spring. The farm is situated near way between depots of Eastern and Concord railroads. For sale at a bargain, if enquired for immediately.—of O. G. ROBINSON, on the premises, or Butler & Laighton, Market Square, or Bailey & Co., Market street. jel

Fashion Notes.

Plain and elegant will be the rule for winter suits.

The fall dresses are to be made a little shorter in front.

The Court train will be an exception for all full dress occasions.

The newest thing in ear-rings are slippers in painted wood.

Heavy ribbed black silk will be very fashionable next winter.

Models of the "coming bonnet" are coming—across the ocean.

Sashes are now tied low down on the front width of the dress and looped up on the left side.

House dresses of silk are to be cut in scollops or in battlement on the bottom, which is very stylish.

A new imitation of the camel's-hair shawl has appeared. It is said to be a "magnificent imitation."

Beautiful suits of black velvet are imported for the winter. They are completely covered with beads.

Long shawls of black cashmere trimmed with lace and rows of beads down the back are very fashionable and very stylish.

Concerning winter materials and colors, the reports do not change. The former will be very rough; the latter very dark and rich.

Less gold jewelry is worn now than for many years past. Jet, Swiss wood, ebony and coral appear to be the most fashionable just at present.

It is no longer the correct thing to wear a long scarf of Spanish net about the neck. Of course this does not apply to shop-girls and housemaids.

Leghorn hats untrimmed and ornamented by a wing or plume are affected by fashionable belles at the watering places for some reasons or another.

Walking suits will not be materially altered in style or length. Much of the trimming will be on the front width, where of course, it is most liable to be seen.

—Some say this is a strange time to talk about pruning trees. It may seem so, but it is the best time except June. We prefer the latter month for all pruning; but for a variety of reasons, we cannot always perform this necessary work at that season of the year, and are obliged to leave the work until after haying. Large limbs may be cut off now, and the wound will not bleed as in March. Those who have never tried it, and have been in the habit of pruning in March because it was convenient time, will do well to test this plan of ours, and note the result.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,

For all the Purposes of a Family Physic

CURING

Costiveness, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Dysentery, Foul Stomach and Breath, Erysipelas, Headache, Piles, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Tetter, Tumors and Salt Rheum, Worms, Gout, Neuralgia, as a Dinner Pill, and purifying the Blood,

are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as efficient. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA. DEBILITY. DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the system, repairing decayed and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been charged to the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public confirmed by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exertion of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SON, Boston." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever. Its virtues are well established in its wonderful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima Thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AYER' SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disorder and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Bowels, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucharrhœa arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure, health returns.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a more able, competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. DR. FLINT'S

QUAKER BITTERS.

These celebrated Bitters are composed of choice Roots, Herbs and Barks, among which are Gentian, Sarsaparilla, Wild Cherry, Dandelion, Juniper and other Berries, and are so prepared as to retain all their medicinal qualities. They invariably cure or greatly relieve the following complaints: Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Liver Complaint, Loss of Appetite, Headache, Bilious Attacks, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Ague, Cold Chills, Rheumatism, Summer Complaints, Piles, Kidney Diseases, Female Difficulties, Lassitude, Low Spirits, General Debility, and, in fact, everything caused by an impure state of the Blood or deranged condition of Stomach, Liver, or Kidneys. The aged find in the Quaker Bitters a gentle, soothing stimulant, so desirable in their declining years. No one can remain long unwell (unless afflicted with an incurable disease) after taking a few bottles of the Quaker Bitters.

SUMMER is coming! I want a piece of ICE wherever can I get it? Why, just send a boy to Perkins', No. 40 South St., and you are sure of it. The Subscriber, having purchased the entire interest of the Portsmouth Ice Co., would take this opportunity to thank his old customers for their past patronage, and would solicit the continuance of the same as well as that of the public generally. Situated as I am, with a large Ice House on Mt. Vernon St., I am prepared to deliver ICE out from pure spring water, in any part of the city, on the shortest possible notice. By strict attention to the wants of the public and by selecting honest and accommodating drivers, I mean to merit and hope to receive a large share of the public patronage. Special attention given to delivering ICE to the Sick. Orders from Fishermen promptly attended to.

☞ P. S. Hoping all misdemeanors of drivers will be reported to the subscriber before other steps are taken, I promise that all complaints will receive immediate attention. ORDER SLATE at H. M. Clark's provision store,—or orders may be left with the subscriber at No. 40 South St., or sent through the post-office. dawtf GEORGE A. PERKINS.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall carry them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any state meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either carry them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. Many dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after having notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 12. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 23. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city. m25 d3m

A Frightened Crowd.

[San Francisco paper.]

Among the passengers who came into port on the steamship Japan were twenty-two Chinese women. All were young in years, and prepossessing in appearance. The Commissioners of Immigration became satisfied that it was their duty to inquire into their moral character, and for this purpose they were taken from the steamer and brought to the City Hall. Pending the action of the Fourth District Court, they were placed in the Mayor's office in charge of the Sheriff. Among the crowd who were in the court-room were a number of Chinamen. One of these while passing the Mayor's office on his way out, spoke a few words to the women, and immediately an uproar ensued the like of which was never heard before. It seemed as if a pandemonium had broken loose, or that some mad-house was giving a vocal entertainment. All the poor creatures, with one accord, began to cry and moan in a pitiful manner. Some threw themselves flat upon the floor, beat their breasts, and tore their hair; others butted their heads against the wall, and rolled about in a perfect agony of despair. When the "Yellow Maria" arrived, in which they were to be taken to the county jail, the scene increased in violence. Many of them had to be carried bodily to the vehicle, while they rent the air with screams and shrill crying. The Chinaman who spoke to the women intimated that they were to be taken from that room to their death. They were to be hanged immediately, and the wail they set up was in consequence. They believed the man, and for a time experienced such agony as they would suffer in the face of impending death.

A stranger conversing with a Maine republican about the next Senatorship, asked: "What do you say of the uncommitted ones?" "They'll go for Hamlin," was the reply. "Hamlin is like one of my neighbors up river; he always owns all the logs that ain't marked!"

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,

For all the Purposes of a Family Physic

CURING

Costiveness, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Dysentery, Foul Stomach and Breath, Erysipelas, Headache, Piles, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Tetter, Tumors and Salt Rheum, Worms, Gout, Neuralgia, as a Dinner Pill, and purifying the Blood,

are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1874.

The White League War.

Those New Orleans rebels who fought so valiantly when there was no enemy to resist them came to terms on Thursday after President Grant demanded their dispersal, and surrendered the State property to Gen. Emory, disbanding their forces. They refused to surrender to the State militia. Brevet-General J. R. Brooks has been put in temporary command of the city of New Orleans. Orders for government troops and men-of-war to proceed to New Orleans were countermanded. Had Buchanan shown as much decision in dealing with the South Carolina rebels in 1861 as President Grant has, the late civil war would have been averted.

Gen. Emory's acceptance of McEnery's surrender as the chief of a government and not as the leader of a mob, was in direct violation of his orders from Washington; he will probably be superceded.

The Duluth people call a canoe a gondola, and are so precise in their language that they speak of a jacknife as a John-knife.

Mrs. John Morrissey promenades the streets in a black drap d'ete polonaise, embroidered in silk, with true lovers' knots and wild flowers in all their natural and strong colors—yellow, red, white, etc. It was imported from Paris, at a cost of $1,000 gold. Nobody passes the lady without turning to look at her gorgeous costume. She wears a single stone diamond ring, said to be valued at $40,000. It may as well be written here also that Mrs. Morrissey is uncommonly philanthropic and generous. No charitable cause is brought to her attention without receiving a liberal response, and she seeks out worthy cases herself and immediately affords relief. Verily, she is a friend to the poor and distressed.

The carriage factories and stock of O. Sargent in West Amesbury have been sold by auction; the amount realized, over $50,000, was considerably above the appraisal, which was $42,000. The four buildings, with 30,000 feet of land, were sold for $32,000, and the other lots of carriages, tools, patterns and furnishings were sold in small lots, all bringing good prices.

State News.

The reunion of the Grand Army posts of New Hampshire at Manchester closed with a parade and clam-bake.

The barn and outbuildings of C. F. Chase, at Hampton Falls, were burned about seven o'clock, Thursday evening, with twelve tons of hay, sleigh, harnesses and other property. Fruit trees were badly damaged. In fifteen minutes after the fire broke out, the citizens were hard at work and after great exertion succeeded in saving the house. Tramps seen near by at dusk are supposed to have set the fire. Loss $1200; partially insured.

A Stratham young man, who is possessed of a highly nervous organization, had business, a few days since, which called him to one of the neighboring towns, where he tarried over night. His bedfellow was a gentleman some years his senior. In the barn yard, which was nearly opposite the chamber occupied by them, was a cow which had been deprived of its calf the day before. At about two o'clock in the morning, the animal became uneasy at the continued absence of her little one, and began to utter low, mournful moans, which awoke the young man, who after listening for some time, made a hasty spring from the bed and commenced to dress. His partner, thinking he had a somnambulistic attack, followed and seized him by the shoulder and gave him a vigorous shake; at the same time he asked, "What is the matter?" He received the reply, "I should think you would ask; for God's sake, don't you hear that man snore?"

Henry Rivers, who is supposed to have five wives in different parts of the State, is in jail at Lancaster.

The News Letter says: Quite a disturbance occurred at Newmarket Junction, Monday, the 7th inst. A woman from Durham, named Tallant, abused a little girl most shamefully, showing that she has really a talent for most inhumanly treating a poor and friendless child. This little girl had been living with Mrs. Tallant, and owing to having been so abused, had, barefooted and scantily clad, made good her escape as far as the Junction. The Station Agent being notified of the pugilistic attack, at once telegraphed to Sheriff Richardson, who soon arrived and arrested the woman. She was tried before Justice Shackford, fined $5 and costs, which she refused to pay and appealed to a higher court. Should it be carried to a higher court, the passengers waiting at the station, among whom was a celebrated Episcopal divine, who witnessed the whole scene, would give testimony in behalf of the injured child, who carried upon her body the marks where she had been bitten by this woman, who should bear in mind that she is not an inhabitant of the Cannibal Isles. Quite a sum of money was given to the child; also decent and comfortable clothing, and she was sent to her sister in Concord, happy and free.

Old Time Chronicles, No. 116.

By Uncle Joseph.

In some previous numbers accounts of some almanacs of about 100 years ago have been given. Not long ago one older was seen. It was owned by Mrs. Nancy Pendergast of Newmarket, and is for the year 1750, 124 years ago. The title is, "An Astronomical Diary or Almanack for the year of our Lord Christ 1750. By Nathaniel Ames." There are but few pages, the astronomical calculations are much less than now, and there is not much miscellaneous matter. It will be observed that the name of the book ends with a k. That was the way of spelling almanac till a time within the memory of many now living.

Mention is made of an excessively hot day occurring the summer before, for the purpose of explaining the cause. The explanation denotes ingenuity, if not science. The day of heat was June 18, 1749. A diagram shows the orbit of the earth and the situation of the sun, also the fiery planet of Mars, which it is stated was as near the earth as it ever can be. Then it is said the moon stepped in between them. There is a view of the moon between the earth and Mars. Next, we are told that astrologers say the burning influence of that planet was handed down to the earth.

Fie on you, astrologers! Astronomy in our times teaches that the nearer planets have much to do in the changes of the weather, but Mars is innocent of being the cause of excessive heat. It has none to give, only what it receives from the sun. Beautiful Venus is much nearer the sun than Mars and so receives more heat, but neither have much to do as to hot days or cold days, only by certain electrical changes. This at times may be considerable.

Bashfulness.

[Scottish Journal.]

There is much to be said for honest shyness. The world, as yet, owes but little to shy men and women of the new school; but it owes a great deal more than it can ever repay to those of the old, who accepted their own nature, and either followed it, or let it yield gradually to the hand of Time—that great artist who never fails to brazen cheeks and thicken skins. The old-fashioned scholar was proverbially shy; and it is doubtful, to say the least, if we have improved upon the breed. Who has not known some clergyman, some artist, or even some man of business—belonging to a setting generation—who shrunk from display, and was driven back to throw all his energies honestly upon his work, simply because he was a shy man? Great orators have mostly set out with a shyness that developed into simple nervousness—into the conscious respect for a man's self, his audience, and his cause, which is to men what blood is to a race-horse. Ready fluency is the precious privilege of true impudence, but eloquence comes of native shyness, which is not ashamed of being shy. It is what is transatlantically called "Orating" that belongs to the would-be impudent form of shyness, which is inexpressibly painful to its hearers, and happily as its hearers will think, far more painful to the speech-maker than is commonly supposed. In a word, the shy man, who is ashamed of being shy generally, richly deserves all the character for awkward impudence that he usually obtains. His career is one long struggle with destiny in the character of a conceited and cowardly hypocrite; and he deliberately prefers such a career to earning the rewards that come at last to him who is not ashamed to blush and hold his tongue.

A Charm Against Hanging.

[Cincinnati Times.]

A private letter from a gentleman in Texas, to his brother in this city tells the story—how a colored man was saved from being hung in San Antonio, in that State:

About a month since a colored man killed a white man, in a fracas, in this place. The colored man was very much alarmed, knowing that, should he be caught, he would be hung to the nearest tree convenient for the purpose, there being no hope for a fair trial in this section. A friend of his, hearing of his situation, went to see him, in his hiding place, and promised for a consideration, (of money of course) to give him a powder, which he should take when he was captured, that would prevent his being hung or shot. The poor man, believing it to be a charm, readily paid the sum demanded, and received the powder, which he was to swallow when there was no other hope.

The next day the man was discovered in his hiding place by a crowd of white men, who were determined to carry out the decision of Judge Lynch, and were about to hang him to a tree which they had already selected. The prisoner, with great reluctance, yet having faith in the power of his powder, was taken to the tree, and when all the arrangements were made, he took the powder from his pocket and swallowed its contents. The effect was quickly seen, as he fell dead immediately.

An Old City by the Sea.

[T. B. Aldrich in Harper's Magazine.]

Continued.

As you leave the river behind you, and pass "up town," the streets grow wider and the architecture more imposing—streets fringed with beautiful old trees and lined with commodious private dwellings, mostly square white houses, with spacious halls running through the centre. Many of the residences stand back from the brick or flagstone sidewalk, and have pretty gardens at the side or in the rear. If you chance to live in a city where the City Fathers can not rest in their beds until they have hacked down every precious tree within their blighting reach, you will be especially charmed by the beauty of the streets of Portsmouth. In some parts of the town, when the chestnuts are in blossom, you would fancy yourself in the midst of a garden in fairy-land. In spring, summer, and autumn the foliage is the glory of the fair town—her luxuriant green and golden tresses! Nothing could seem more like the work of enchantment than the spectacle which certain streets in Portsmouth present after a heavy snow-storm. You may walk for miles under wonderful silvery arches formed by the overhanging and interlaced boughs of the trees, festooned with a drapery even more graceful and dazzling than spring-time gives them. The numerous elms and maples which shade the principal thoroughfares are not the result of chance, but the ample reward of the loving care that is taken to preserve the trees. There is a society in Portsmouth devoted to this work. It is not unusual there for people to leave legacies to be expended in setting out shade and ornamental trees along some favorite walk. Richards Avenue, a long, unbuilt street leading from Middle street to the South Burying-ground, perpetuates the name of a public-spirited citizen who gave the labor of his own hands to the beautifying of that wind-swept and barren road to the cemetery.

In the business section of the town trees are necessarily few. The chief business streets are Congress and Market. Market Street is the stronghold of the dry-goods shops. There are seasons, I suppose, when these shops are crowded, but I have never happened to be in Portsmouth at the time. I never pass through the narrow cobble-paved street without wondering where the customers are that must keep all these flourishing little establishments going. Congress Street—a more elegant thoroughfare than Market—is the Tremont Street, the Broadway, the Boulevard des Italiens, of Portsmouth. Among the noticeable buildings is the Athenæum, containing a reading-room and library. From the high roof of this building the stroller will do well to take a glimpse of the surrounding country. He will naturally turn seaward for the more picturesque aspects. If the day is clear, he will see the famous Isles of Shoals, lying nine miles away—Appledore, Smutty-Nose, Star Island, White Island, etc.; there are nine of them in all. On Appledore is Laighton's Hotel, and near it the summer cottage of Celia Thaxter, the poet laureate of the Isles. On the northern end of Star Island is the quaint little town of Gosport, with a tiny stone church perched like a sea-gull on its highest rock. A mile southwest from Star Island lies White Island, on which is a light-house. Mrs. Thaxter calls this the most picturesque of the group. Perilous neighbors, O mariner! in any but the serenest weather, these wrinkled, scarred, and storm-smitten old rocks, flanked by wicked sunken ledges that grow white at the lip with rage when the great winds blow!

How peaceful it all looks off there, on the smooth emerald sea! and how softly the waves seem to break on yonder point where the unfinished fort is! That is the ancient town of Newcastle, to reach which from Portsmouth you have to cross three bridges, with the loveliest scenery in New Hampshire lying on either hand. Opposite Newcastle is Kittery Point, a romantic spot, where Sir William Pepperrell (the first and only American baronet) once lived, and where his tomb now is, in his orchard, across the road, a few hundred yards from the "goodly mansion" he built. The knight's tomb, and the old Pepperrell House, which has been somewhat curtailed of its fair proportions, are the objects of frequent pilgrimages to Kittery Point, where there is, I believe, an excellent summer boarding-house.

From this elevation (the roof of the Athenæum) the Navy-yard, the river with its bridges and islands, the clustered gables of Kittery and Newcastle, and the illimitable ocean beyond make a picture worth climbing four or five flights of stairs to gaze upon. Glancing down on the town nestled in the foliage, it seems like a town dropped by chance in the midst of a forest. Among the prominent objects which lift themselves above the tree-tops are the belfries of the various churches, the white facade of the Custom-house, and the Mansard and the chimneys of the Rockingham, the leading hotel. The pilgrim will be surprised to find in Portsmouth one of the most elegantly appointed hotels in the United States. The antiquarian may lament the demolition of the old Bell Tavern, and think regretfully of the good cheer once furnished the wayfarer by Master Stavers "at the sign of the Earl of Halifax," but the ordinary traveller will thank his stars, and confess that his lines have fallen in pleasant places, when he finds himself among the frescoes of the Rockingham.

Speaking of public buildings, you will observe looming up on your left, among the green fields, one or two miles away, a large structure of red brick. That is the almshouse on the town farm. I call attention to it, not to compare it to the Rockingham, but in order to say that in Portsmouth was built probably the first pauper work-house ever erected in this or or any other country. The building was occupied in 1716, though completed several years previous to that date. It was not until seven years later (1723) that an act was passed in England authorizing the establishment of parish work-houses.

Obliquely opposite the door-step of the Athenæum—we are supposed to be on terra firma again—stands the Old North Church (orthodox), a substantial wooden building, handsomely set on what is called "The Parade," a large open space formed by the junction of Congress, Market, Daniel and Pleasant streets. Here in happier days, innocent of water works, stood the town pump.

The churches of Portsmouth are more remarkable for their number than their architecture. With the exception of the Stone Church (Unitarian) they are constructed of wood or plain brick in the simplest style. St. John's Church is the only one likely to attract the eye of a stranger. It is magnificently situated on the crest of Church Hill, overlooking the ever beautiful river. The present edifice was built in 1808 on the site of what was known as Queen's Chapel, erected in 1732, and destroyed by fire December 24, 1807. The chapel was named in honor of Queen Caroline, who furnished the books for the altar and pulpit, the plate, and two elegant mahogany chairs, which are still in use in St. John's. Within the chancel rail is a curious marble font, taken by Colonel John Tufton Mason at the capture of Senegal from the French in 1758, and presented to the Episcopal Society in 1761. The peculiarly sweet-toned bell which calls the parishioners together every Sabbath is, I believe, the same that formerly hung in the belfry of the Old Queen's Chapel. If so, the bell has a history of its own. It was brought from Louisburg at the time of the reduction of that place in 1745, and given to the church by the officers of the New Hampshire troops.

Portsmouth is rich in grave-yards—they seem to be a New England specialty—ancient and modern. Among the old burial-places the one attached to St. John's Church is perhaps the most interesting. It has not been permitted to fall into ruin, like the old cemetery at the Point of Graves. When a head-stone here topples over it is kindly lifted up and set on its feet again, and encouraged to do its duty. If it utterly refuses, and isn't shamming decrepitude, it has its face sponged, and is allowed to rest and sun itself against the wall of the church with a row of other exempts. The trees are kept pruned, the grass trimmed, and here and there is a rose-bush drooping with a weight of modest pale roses, as becomes a rose-bush in a church-yard.

The place has about it an indescribable soothing atmosphere of respectability and comfort. Here rest the remains of the principal and loftiest in rank in their generation of the citizens of Portsmouth prior to the Revolution—stanch, royalty-loving governors, counsellors, and secretaries of the Province of New Hampshire, all snugly gathered under the motherly wing of the Church of England. It is almost impossible to walk any where without stepping on a governor. You grow haughty in spirit after a while, and scorn to tread on any thing less than one of his majesty's colonels or a secretary under the crown. Here are the tombs of the Atkinsons, the Jaffreys, the Sherburnes, the Sheafes, the Marshes, the Mannings, the Gardners, and others of the quality. All around you underfoot are tumbled-in coffins, with here and there a rusty sword atop, and faded escutcheons, and crumbling armorial devices. You are moving in the very best society.

This, however, is not the earliest cemetery in Portsmouth. An hour's walk from the Episcopal yard will bring you to the spot, already mentioned, where the first house was built and the first grave made, at Odiorne's Point. The exact site of the Manor is not known, but it is supposed to be a few rods north of an old well of flowing water, at which the Tomisons and the Hiltons and their comrades slaked their thirst two hundred and fifty years ago. Odiorne's Point is owned by Mr. Eben L. Odiorne, a lineal descendant of the worthy who held the property in 1657. Not far from the old spring is the resting-place of the earliest pioneers.

"This first cemetery of the white man in New Hampshire occupies a space of perhaps one hundred feet by ninety, and is well walled in. The western side is now used as a burial-place for the family, but two-thirds of it is filled with perhaps forty graves, indicated by rough head and foot stones. Who there rest no one now living knows. But the same care is taken of their quiet beds as if they were of the proprietor's own family. In 1631 Mason sent over about eighty emigrants, many of whom died in a few years, and here they were probably buried. Here too, doubtless, rest the remains of several of those whose names stand conspicuous in our early State records.

" History numbers here
Some names and scenes so long remembrance dear,
And summer verdure clothes the lowly breast
Of the small hillock where our fathers rest.
Theirs was the dauntless heart, the hand, the voice,
That bade the desert blossom and rejoice.'

"Were there a locality of similar historic interest north of the White Mountains, many an annual pilgrimage it would receive; its locality would be designated by some enduring monument, and a pebble from the first cemetery would be treasured as a mantel curiosity. But now, within a pleasant foot ramble, it is rarely visited, and seems to be almost unknown."*

An Outrage Proved.

The inconsistencies of the democratic leaders are so many that it seems almost useless to expose them, but we select two instances which the figures of the late election make so plain that we cannot refrain from calling attention to them. It will be remembered that scores of names of republicans having a legal right to vote were kept from the check-lists of the wards of the city at the late election, thus depriving them of the right of suffrage. It there had been any like conduct on the part of the selectmen of old Wards One and Two, it certainly was not generally known. All who had a right to vote in those Wards exercised the privilege, and there was no excuse of precedent for the bare-faced frauds which have given the democrats a temporary advantage in this city.

In 1871, for the first time in seventeen years, owing to general apathy in the republican ranks, the democracy and labor reformers chose enough representatives to the legislature to give them, on account of the absence of three republicans who were ill, two majority in the House of Representatives. Fearing the appearance of those who were ill would put them again in the minority, the democratic leaders decided to oust from their seats several republican members legally chosen. Among those selected as special objects for this economical manufacture of democratic majorities were two republican representatives from this city, the plea being that Wards One and Two had each sent four Representatives to the legislature when there were ratable polls sufficient for only three in each Ward.

By the law governing representation in the legislature, towns and wards of cities are entitled to one representative for 150 ratable polls and one each for every 300 additional ratables. The democratic sharpers who went to Concord from this city testified that Wards One and Two each had less than 1050 ratables and selected Messrs. John Pender and John H. Flagg to be sent home as an example to their constituents. Mr. Pender had been chosen representative in Ward One by a clear majority of 50 over the combined vote of his highest opponent and the entire scattering number reported cast. Mr. Flagg, of Ward Two, had a majority over all of 142. These facts had no influence on the democratic leaders, who recognize no one's rights when their interests are at stake. They decided that Messrs. Pender and Flagg must be unseated at all hazards, and in accordance with the programme the House declared them not entitled to the seats they held.

Now for the sequel. Again in 1874, the democrats obtain control of the House, and accidentally secure the Senate; Portsmouth is gerrymandered, divided into seven wards, and every check-list is placed in democratic hands. Now, of course, the democrats will show they were right in ousting Messrs. Pender and Flagg, and demonstrate to a fine point that there are not 1050 ratables in either of the old Wards One and Two. Such a purging of check lists is made as demonstrates their ability at managing, and such additions are made as prove that their old tricks of 1868 are not forgotten. Old Ward One is a thing of the past and is known now as Wards One, Two and Seven; Old Ward Two now knows itself as Wards Four, Five and Six—Ward Three remaining intact. Fourteen of the voters of old Ward One find themselves in Ward Six, a part of old Ward Two. These fourteen voters added to the check-lists of voters of Wards One, Two and Seven, (making old Ward One complete,) show exactly 1050 voters on the face of the lists, and there are eighty to one hundred ratables to be added, showing that Ward One was legally entitled to four representatives, and that the unseating of Mr. Pender was a partisan outrage, a direct fraud, known to be such by the perpetrators. In Wards Four, Five and Six, (old Ward Two,) deducting the fourteen names on the list of Ward Six transferred from old Ward One, there are 1072 names on the face of the check-lists, and more than one hundred ratables to go on the back of them, showing that Mr. Flagg was also illegally deprived of his legislative seat. We make no account of the republicans disfranchised by the selectmen, because we do not as yet know their number. These figures, however, show plainly that although there are about two hundred names on these six check-lists of men who have no right to vote, there were a sufficient number of ratables in old Wards One and Two to entitle them to the four representatives each that they have annually chosen.

The Election.

The Manchester Union says: "The Portsmouth CHRONICLE almost made us fear that perhaps the wards of that city were not made quite as equal as they might have been; but the election shows this:—334, 312, 397, 377, 359, 263, 149. It is not often that wards are so equal as these."

Will the Union please inform us on what grounds the 397, 377, and 359 voters should choose six aldermen, while the 334, 312 and 263 choose but three? At the same time, will it also tell us why 149 voters should choose the same number of aldermen as 263, 312 or 334? We would really like to know.

The check-lists of the various Wards as democratically prepared, however, should be a perfect guide for the Union. Ward One has on it 564 names, Two 344, Three 562, Four 167, Five 463, Six 456, Seven 328. Total 2864. Four hundred and ninety-three did not vote, many of them on account of their death or removal from the city several years previous. The citizens of Wards One, Two and Seven cannot imagine why with 364, 344 and 328 voters, respectively, each Ward should have only an equal representation with Ward Four, which has but 167! Can the Union explain why?

Laconics.

Our neighbor of the Journal "pied" a form on Friday, just as it was going to press, spilling two-thirds of the reading page of seven columns and making a sad spectacle for a publisher to look at.

Col. Hackett will sell by auction to-day, at his office, ten shares in the National Mechanics & Traders' Bank.

Mr. John A. Haraden having declined to accept an election as a member of the Common Council from Ward Six, at an adjourned meeting on Friday Mr. Michael R. Perkins was chosen to the vacancy by the democrats.

The Boston Advertiser's correspondent requests us to say that he did not write that Alderman-elect Morrison is an Irishman, but the misprint of a single letter, an e for a d changed the meaning of the whole sentence. Thus he wrote something like this: "Among the new Aldermen are Josiah H. Morrison, brewer partner of Frank Jones, and Patrick Hennessey, liquor dealer, (and the first Irishman ever elected to the board,)" but it will be seen that leaving out the parentheses and changing the enclosed and to are, and pluralizing Irishman, gives a very different meaning, as complained of—though it would seem that the Times people and Mr. Morrison need not feel insulted by the Boston printers or telegraphers making that mistake.

The Exeter News-Letter thinks the democratic triumph in this city will be short-lived. The republicans of Portsmouth are united and determined. Their rights cannot be long kept from them by any devices which unscrupulous opponents may resort to. Let the democrats get all the satisfaction they can, out of their temporary successes. Their day will soon be over.

Col. Daniel Hall is removed by the democrats from the clerkship of the Strafford county court, and Col. Folsom, who commanded a Texas rebel regiment, is appointed in his place.

City Council.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, the Mayor and committee on streets reported that they had made satisfactory arrangements with two of the heirs of the late Ames Twombly and with the occupant of the land belonging to said heirs for widening Woodbury street at said property. The report was accepted.

The committee on bills on second reading reported the bill defining the duties of harbor master, and it was passed and sent to the Common Council for concurrence.

Voted, that the City Solicitor be directed to make a demand upon the county for fees in cases sent to county house of correction by police court.

Alfred Stavers was granted leave to remove trees in front of Franklin House. The proposal of F. W. Miller to build "fifty six rods of wall to widen South street" at land of A. H. and C. H. Ladd for three dollars per rod or $168, was accepted. The proposal was placed on file.

Aldermen Sise and Garrett were appointed a committee with power to fit one hand engine for service, and place it at the city farm.

Voted, that the committee on city lands and buildings be authorized to rearrange the aldermen's room for the enlarged Board of Aldermen.

Ayer's Hair Vigor.

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus briefly, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lest hair re-grows, with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

FRANCES L. KENT, vs. FRANK KENT.

TO THE CIRCUIT COURT, ROCKINGHAM, ss.

RESPECTFULLY represents FRANCES L. KENT of Newton in said county, that she was lawfully married to FRANK KENT of Hampstead in said county on the twenty-sixth day of November, A. D. 1862,—that she and her said husband after the said intermarriage resided together in said Hampstead, in Haverhill in the State of Massachusetts, and in South Berwick in the State of Maine, until the summer of 1870, when they removed to Rollinsford in our county of Strafford, and that she has since resided in the State of New Hampshire,—and that she now resides in said Newton.

Said libellant had one child by her said husband, who is now living, viz: George E. Kent; who is nearly eleven years of age. And said Frances L. Kent avers that since the said intermarriage she has always conducted herself as a faithful, chaste and affection wife toward her said husband; yet, the said Frank, wholly regardless of his marriage covenant and duty, at said Rollinsford, on the fifth day of September, A. D. 1871, and more than three years before the filing of this libel, without sufficient cause, and without her consent, abandoned the said libellant, and now refuses, and during all the time since her said abandonment has refused to cohabit with her.

And said Frances L. Kent further avers that said Frank Kent on said 4th day of September, 1871, at said Rollinsford, without her consent, willingly absented himself from her, and went away to some place to your libellant unknown, without making suitable provision for her maintenance and support, and ever since that time, for more than three years together, has continued to so absent himself, without making such provision.

Wherefore, the said Frances L. Kent prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony between herself and said Frank Kent may be decreed, and that the custody of said George E. Kent may be committed to her.

FRANCES L. KENT.

O. H. KEY, Solicitor for Libellant.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT, ROCKINGHAM, ss.

THIS Libel having been filed in the office of the Clerk of said Court this eighth day of September A. D. 1874: It is ordered that said Frances L. Kent notify the said Frank Kent to appear at the next term of said Court, to be holden at Portsmouth on the third Tuesday of October next, then and there to show cause, if any he has, why the prayer thereof should not be granted, by causing a true and attested copy of said libel and this order thereon to be published one week in the Portsmouth Daily Chronicle, a newspaper printed at Portsmouth in our County of Rockingham, the last publication whereof to be at least one week before said term. By special order of HON. WILLIAM L. FOSTER, C. J.

Attest, C. G. CONNER, Clerk.

The Latest New Departure.

We have been led to suppose, of late, that all the ills of life were directly due to the unhappy and slavish condition of the women of America, and that just so soon as the degraded sex were permitted to vote and made eligible to office, all would be well again, their manu-mission or other sort of mission being accomplished, and that the marriageable belle would be no adequate type of the merriment which would ensue. We are forced to confess that events, those troublesome intruders into female logic, stagger our faith and make us doubt.

Here, for instance, is a free election of officers of the New Hampshire Grange of the Patrons of Husbandry. Where, if not among patrons of husbandry, shall we look for legitimate female influences? and where for virtue in the ballot if not in democratic New Hampshire? Now mark the end. Women voted, of course, and were elected, of course, but to what? In the first place, we are staggered and startled to read of a worthy New Hampshire matron who was elected "Ceres!" Heavens and earth! Can these things be and overcome us like a summer cloud without our special wonder? We are not unaccustomed to the notion of a "Ceres" picked out of the granite of the hills, for our horticultural friends, with a grandeur not exceeded by a whole State lodge of Grangers, have decorated their hall facade with one. But this living "Ceres" of the Granite Hills, what shall we say and think of her? Is this Ceres business serious, or is it nonsense?

Did that woman, we would fain ask (if not profane,) did she run for "Ceres?" Did she canvass for the place of goddess elect? Did she place herself divinely in the hands of heavenly friends?' Did she from a celestial stump proclaim to admiring electors her fitness and the unfitness of all competitors for the arduous but honorable position of "Ceres?" Did she in short use those arts, which Judge Poland has just informed us all candidates use, to compass her success and secure her election? Posters bearing "For Ceres Euphemia Ellenor Frisbee, vote early and often!" "Has your husband voted for 'Ceres?' If not, give him no quarter until Frisbee is chosen!" 'No breakfast, no nap, no grounds of objection but coffee grounds for patron of husbandry who does not support Frisbee for 'Ceres.'" "Matronize a little that patron whose views of husbandry do not prompt him to go for his wife's candidate and every true woman's candidate! For Ceres! Frisbee!" and so on.

Is he Ceres elect for the term of one year, and will revolving seasons bring in a series of Cereses, or is it a hereditary berth, or what? We pause in wonder. And as though this were not enough, and as though the election of another married lady as "Flora" were enough of a floorer also, we are further given to know that while a worthy Granger was elected gate keeper to the ledge with one voice, the wife of his bosom was, of all persons in the world, selected out of her whole sex to be elected "Pomona." This was surely what the reporters happily call "infelicitous." "Pomona," we take it, was the mother of all apple women, and they are a queer set. Think of what Eve did for with that confounded Porter apple! It must have been a Porter apple, though it did open the gates of Paradise the wrong way, and if the gates of New Hampshire Lodge don't swing just as unfortunately before the end of this business. And then there is the apple of discord, which set Paris agog before the siege of Troy. And then cider is made from the apple, and what Granger can endure the thought of cider? Although there is much of warniug in the apple. There should have been no "Pomona." But if Pomonas must be to sell apples at the gates, let them be other than the wives of gate keepers. Vigilance forbids.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA- DEBILITY- DROPSY AND HUMORS

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, is easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, scourching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever. It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color.

It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE, CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in south America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AYER' SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhœa arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure, health returns.

Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. DR. FLINT'S

QUAKER BITTERS.

These celebrated Bitters are composed of choice Roots, Herbs and Barks, among which are Gentian, Sarsaparilla, Wild Cherry, Dandelion, Juniper and other Berries, and are so prepared as to retain all their medicinal qualities. They invariably cure or greatly relieve the following complaints: Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Liver Complaint, Loss of Appetite, Headache, Bilious Attacks, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Ague, Cold Chills, Rheumatism, Summer Complaints, Piles, Kidney Diseases, Female Difficulties, Lassitude, Low Spirits, General Debility, and, in fact, everything caused by an impure state of the Blood or deranged condition of Stomach, Liver, or Kidneys. The aged find in the Quaker Bitters a gentle, soothing stimulant, so desirable in their declining years. No one can remain long unwell (unless afflicted with an incurable disease) after taking a few bottles of the Quaker Bitters.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing as named by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for carrying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city. m25 d8m

Daily Chronicle.

A Romance of the Orange Groves.

The New Orleans Times tells a very interesting but pathetic story of the life of an orange planter, named Landman. Thirty years ago he came into possession, as a squatter, of the Island of Cheniere, on the Gulf coast. He was at that time very young and full of enterprise. By hard labor, year after year, he succeeded in raising one of the largest and finest orange orchards in Louisiana, although he worked alone for years. After a time he married and took his wife to the island, and for years they enjoyed one of the happiest of homes. Children were born to them, and their work was remunerative, so that they laid up a handsome sum. Then sickness came, and, one by one, all the family died, until the father was left alone again. Brooding upon his troubles, he fancied that the spirits of the dead were about him, and soon he became an ardent believer in Spiritualism.

At this point some greedy land speculators discovered that he had no valid title to his land, and set about in the courts to dispossess the old man of his island home. He would not retain counsel, but relied upon the spirits to help him manage his case. Of course there could be but one issue to the case. There was practically no defence at all. His spirit friends did not help him. He lost his home where he had lived for thirty years, and where his wife and children were buried. When the judge announced his finding and decree the poor old man arose in court, and his sole reply was: "Please, your Honor, there is no redress for me in earthly courts: I therefore appeal my cause to the higher court of the third heavens." This is an appeal which cannot and will not be set aside. His compensation will come.

—A Mr. Wakeman, in Vermont, started out to borrow a hoe. That implement must be scarce in Vermont for Mr. Wakeman has now been gone sixteen years, and his wife is growing anxious about him.

AVER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,

For all the Purposes of a Family Physic

CURING

are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to the sick. The Coated Pill cures the humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent chemists, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

Disastrous Fire in Fall River.

In Fall River, Mass., on Saturday morning at about 7 o'clock, half an hour after the operatives in Granite Mill No. 1 commenced work, fire caught in the fourth story from the friction of an uncilled mule band tended by a boy twelve years old. Six spinners worked bravely for a few moments with buckets of water to extinguish the fire, but in half a minute from the time it broke out the whole room was in flames, and the only retreat of fifty women and girls at work in the attic cut off. Four iron fire-escapes reached to the fifth story, but the only egress from the attic was by a single stairway, up which the flame and smoke poured, suffocating and burning to death the poor creatures who hesitated to take the fearful leap of sixty feet from the windows to the ground below. Many of the girls took the leap and were killed or terribly maimed, the list of those known to have perished numbering eighteen, mostly young girls, and the wounded, many of whom will die, numbering twenty-six. Seven bodies recovered from the attic were not identified up to a late hour Saturday night, being burned beyond recognition. Four hundred operatives were in the mill when the fire broke out, but it is believed all escaped except those working in the attic, whose first intimation of danger came from the flames which rushed up the stairway and cut off their retreat. The mill was well supplied with water-pipes and hose on each floor, but the apparatus was not available on account of the employes not having been drilled in its use. The insurance on the mill amounts to $450,000; estimated damage $250,000. The heavy granite walls of the building are not greatly injured, and about half the roof of the main structure and of the floors of the third, fourth and fifth stories, were saved in a damaged condition; the ell and cotton house were unharmed.

Readables.

For the first time in Pennsylvania there is to be no election this year in October. Under the new Constitution it takes place on Tuesday, the third day of November.

Now that Parson Brownlow has lost all hope of being re-elected to the United States Senate, he has determined to resuscitate his paper, the Knoxville Whig, and go for his enemies as of old.

There will be no more State elections until October 13, when Ohio, Indiana, Iowa and Nebraska hold their elections.

Edward Walsh, who was arrested for kidnapping a child from an Indian camp in Newport, R. I., has been discharged, from absence of any law on the statute books by which he can be held.

An account is published of the robbery of five stages in Arkansas by armed highwaymen, among whom were recognized some of the Gad's Hill robbers. Over $2000 was taken, besides other valuable property. The robbers escaped.

The Commissioner of the Pension Office has decided as preliminary to the consideration of a claim, under the act of June 18, 1874, (provision for pension of $50 per month), alleging permanent and total disability, that the applicant must present evidence showing conclusively that he requires the regular aid and attendance of another person. The Commissioner, in his next annual report, will devote considerable space to advocating the necessity for reorganizing the Pension Bureau. It is the custom of Congress each year to make some important changes in the pension laws, which very materially increase the work of the Bureau, and add to the duties of the Pension Office. The Pension Bureau, as at present organized, both as to its force and method, is not able to perform the duties which are imposed upon it by these frequent changes of law. The changes recommended will be only such as will add to the efficiency of the service.

State News.

John Castello, of Lancaster, has a Durham calf four months old whose weight is 450 pounds.

The engineers who have been surveying the river in Newmarket report that it can be cleared so as to make it navigable to that place for large vessels.

Deacon Timothy Hammond, who died recently in Dunbarton, left all his money, $20,000, to benevolent purposes.

The homestead, over a century old, of Colonel M. H. Harwood, in Littleton, was burned on Thursday night about 12 o'clock. Colonel Harwood and family were at the time on their way from Saratoga. Loss, $15,000; insured. The carriage house and carriages were burned. A large barn, containing sixty or seventy tons of hay, thirty tons of grain and an extensive stock of cattle was saved; also two farm houses occupied by help. The cause of the fire is unknown.

An article which appears in the Gospel Banner states that Miss Lauriana Cross, a teacher in Stark, who lately drowned herself, did so under the influence of despondency, caused by reflecting on a curse pronounced by her grandmother against her father, that "his daughters shall die in sorrow, if not in shame, before they are twenty, and the sons shall be cut off in infancy."

Letter from Hanover.

DARTMOUTH COLLEGE, Sept. 12th.

The term for the college year of 1874-75 opened August 26th with more than ordinary interest, for at the first chapel exercise nearly every student was in his accustomed place. A greater portion of the students have spent their summer vacation in the hay field or at the mountains. Twenty of the present Junior Class (76) made excellent wages as well as being considered the best help at the Profile House this summer. The Freshman Class is on hand with the large number of eighty-two.

Portsmouth is here represented by quite a large delegation, which I am sure does no discredit to her. They are William H. Gardiner and Edward C. Stimson of the Junior Class, and Oscar J. Pfeiffer of the Sophomore Class, in the Academical department; George W. Bartlett and Horace B. Kent in the Third Class, and Lewis E. Drake in the Fourth Class, in the Scientific department.

Foot ball is the favorite game with the students, at noon and at night the campus resounds with the shouts and laughter of those engaged in the sport. The customary match game between the Sophomores and the Freshmen at the opening of the term was played Sept 5th, and as a natural consequence the Freshmen were badly beaten. Next in order of trial of strength between these two classes are cane rushes, but as none of them have taken place as yet, it is to be hoped that the faculty have succeeded in breaking up such disgraceful proceedings.

This Fall, Dartmouth seems to be shaken to her foundation on the boating question. The place that she gained at the last regatta seems to have awakened a spirit of enthusiasm that is unconquerable. The last two years it has been the practice to delay the training of the crew until along in the Spring, and then all was hurry and confusion. At a meeting of all of the students in the chapel a few days ago, the subject of class races was discussed as being the best way to determine who shall be in the University crew next summer. A resolution was passed authorizing the procuring of a set of colors, to be given to the class whose crew shall win in the class races, to be rowed this Fall. After the class races the University crew is to be selected and kept in active training during the winter. The intention is to send a crew to the next regatta that will bring in the greek of Dartmouth No. 1. BUG.

A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, but be sure you part it not in the middle.

As he thinketh in his heart so he is, but when he maketh his statement before the committee you can not some times pretty much always tell what he thinketh in his heart.

A hory head is a crown of glory, but a small tooth-comb goeth through it all the same.

Hope deferred maketh the heart sick, and a statement long kept back setteth the impatient soul on the ragged edge of anxiety.

A merry heart maketh a cheerful countenance, but a good actor will have his jokes, albeit they are wearing and grinding on his nervous system.

The Jay Cooke Bankruptcy.

Before Register Mason, at Philadelphia, Mr. Jay Cooke was examined, and testified, according to the Ledger's report, as follows:

The accumulated profits of 1871 and 1872 of the Philadelphia and New York houses amounted to $1,325,000; we divided in 1872 of the profits of the previous year $500,000 in the New York house, and $585,000 in the Philadelphia house; and in 1873 of the profits of the previous year over half a million dollars. There was no diminution of the profits up to the time of the suspension; we made money all the time; our books do not show the amount of our business, as many of the transactions were done over the counter, perhaps amounting to a thousand millions a year. We divided out $1,585,000, leaving $1,300,000 undivided; the inability to pay on the 17th of September, 1873, he attributed to having "too many eggs in one basket;" the firm had no only made large advances to the Northern Pacific Railroad Co., but on iron also, and when the pinch came the money was not within reach. There had been no losses except on the Northern Pacific Railroad bonds.

—In southwestern Texas there is a cattle-raiser who has lived there twenty years. On going there he picked up a dozen cows and branded them. He had no land, but was the possessor of a wife, two or three guns, a few dogs, and two or three horses. He kept watch over his cows, and lived in a hand-to-mouth way for several years, subsisting his family by the capture of game and the sale of skins. In May, 1873, he owned 30,000 head of cattle, duly branded, ranging over the plains. He has a family of nine children, five of whom are boys. His eldest child is a girl, nine years of age. She can rope a steer, kill a wolf with a rifle, or strangle a dog at arms length. In the man's house is a nail-keg nearly filled with gold coin, while in the pantry is a flour-barrel almost filled with silver pieces. When he sells cattle it is for coin, which is dumped on the premises. He will not take the paper money at any rate, but is always ready to sell steers for gold or silver. His boys are all familiar with guns, horses, dogs and cattle. In a few more years they will have literally cart-loads of money, provided robbers do not make a raid upon them, in which case, from man, wife, boys, girls, dogs, shotguns, the robbers would be apt to get more bullet holes than bullion. The house occupied by this prosperous family is low, built of logs, and contains three rooms. The father and mother sleep in the dining-room, the girls sleep in the spare-room, while the boys sleep in the addition.

An Old City by the Sea.

[T. B. Aldrich in Harper's Magazine.]

Continued.

"Sir," said Dr. Johnson, "let us take a walk down Fleet Street." Gentle reader, let us take a walk down Pleasant Street.

When Washington visited Portsmouth in 1789 he was not deeply impressed by the architecture of the little town that had stood by him so nobly in the struggle for independence. "There are some good houses," he writes,† "among which Colonel Langdon's may be esteemed the first; but in general they are indifferent, and almost entirely of wood. On wondering at this, as the country is full of stone and good clay for bricks, I was told that on account of the fogs and damp they deemed them wholesomer, and for that reason preferred wood buildings."

The house of Colonel Langdon, on Pleasant Street, is still an excellent specimen of the solid and dignified abodes which our great-grandsires had the sense to build. The art of their construction seems to have been a lost art these fifty years. Here Governor John Langdon resided from 1782 until the time of his death in 1819—a period during which many an illustrious man passed between those two white pillars that support the little balcony over the front door; among the rest Louis Phillippe and his brothers, and the Marquis de Chastellux, a major-general in the French army, serving under the Count de Rochambeau, whom he accompanied from France to the States in 1780. The journal of the marquis contains this reference to his host: "After dinner we went to drink tea with Mr. Langdon. He is a handsome man, and of noble carriage; he has been a member of Congress, and is now one of the first people of the country; his house is elegant and well furnished, and the apartments admirably well wainscoted" (this reads like Mr. Samuel Pepys): "and he has a good manuscript chart of the harbor of Portsmouth. Mrs. Langdon, his wife, is young, fair, and tolerably handsome, but I conversed less with her than with her husband, in whose favor I was prejudiced from knowing that he had displayed great courage and patriotism at the time of Burgoyne's expedition."

It was at the height of the French Revolution that the three sons of the Duc d'Orleans were entertained at the Langdon Mansion. Years afterward, when Louis Phillippe was on the throne of France, he inquired of a Portsmouth lady presented at his court if the old mansion of Governor Langdon was still in existence.

The house stands back a decorous distance from the street, under the shadows of some gigantic oaks or elms, and presents an imposing appearance as you approach it over the tassellated marble walk. A hundred or two feet on either side of the gate, is a small square building of brick, one story in height—probably the porter's lodge and tool-house of former days. There is a large fruit garden attached to the house, which is in excellent condition, taking life comfortably, and having the complacent air of a well-preserved beau of the ancien regime. The Langdon Mansion was owned and long occupied by the late Rev. Dr. Burroughs, for a period of forty-seven years the esteemed rector of St. John's Church.

At the other end of Pleasant Street is another notable house, to which we shall come by-and-by. Though President Washington found Portsmouth but moderately attractive from an architectural point of view, the visitor of to-day, if he have an antiquarian taste, will find himself embarrasssed by the number of localities and buildings that appeal to his interest. Many of these buildings were new and undoubtedly commonplace enough at the date of Washington's visit; time and association have given them a quaintness and a significance which now make their architecture a question of secondary importance. One might spend a fortnight in Portsmouth exploring the nooks and corners over which history has thrown a glamour, and by no means exhaust the list. The writer, confined by the limits assigned to a magazine article, can not do more than attempt to describe—and that very briefly—a few of the typical old houses. There are several on this same Pleasant Street which we must leave unnoted, with their spacious halls and carven staircases, their antiquated furniture and old silver tankards and choice Copleys. Numerous examples of this artist's best manner are to be found here. To live in Portsmouth without possessing a family portrait done by Copley is like living in Boston without having an ancestor in the Old Granary Burying-ground. You can exist, but you cannot be said to flourish. To make this statement smooth, I will remark that every one in Portsmouth has a Copley, or would have if a fair division were made.

In the better sections of the town the houses are kept in so excellent repair, and have such a smart appearance with their bright green blinds and freshly-painted wood-work, that you are likely to pass many an old landmark without suspecting it. Whenever you see a house with a gambrel roof you may be almost positive that the house is at least eighty or a hundred years old, for the gambrel roof went out of fashion after the Revolution.

On the corner of Daniel and Chapel streets stands the oldest brick building in Portsmouth—the Warner House. It was built in 1718 by Captain Archibald Macpheadris, a Scotchman, as his name indicates, a wealthy merchant, and a member of the King's Council. He was the chief projector of the first iron-works established in America. Captain Macpheadris married Sarah Wentworth, one of the sixteen children of Governor John Wentworth, and died in 1729, leaving a daughter, Mary, whose portrait, with that of her mother, painted by the ubiquitous Copley, still hangs in one of the parlors of this house, which, oddly enough, is not known by the name of Captain Macpheadris, but by that of his son-in-law, Hon. Jonathan Warner, a member of the King's Council until the revolt of the colonies. "We well recollect Mr. Warner," says Mr. Brewster,‡ "as one of the last of the cocked hats. As in a vision of early childhood he is still before us in all the dignity of the aristocratic crown officers. That broad-backed, long-skirted brown coat, those small clothes and silk stockings, those silver buckles, and that cane—we see them still, although the life that filled and moved them ceased half a century ago."

The Warner House, a three-story building with gambrel roof and lutheran windows, is as fine and substantial a sample of the architecture of the period as you are likely to meet with anywhere in New England. The eighteen-inch walls are of brick brought from Holland, as were also many of the materials used in the building—the hearth-stones, tiles, etc. Hewn stone underpinnings were seldom adopted in those days; the brick-work rests directly upon the solid walls of the cellar. The interior is rich in paneling and wood carvings about the mantel-shelves, the deep-set windows, and along the cornices. The halls are wide and deep, after a by-gone fashion, with handsome staircases, set at an easy angle, and not standing nearly upright, like those ladders by which one reaches the upper chambers of a modern house. The principal rooms are paneled to the ceiling, and have large open chimney-places, adorned with the quaintest of Dutch tiles. In one of the parlors of the Warner House there is a choice store of family relics—china, silver plate, costumes, old clocks, and the like. There are some interesting paintings too, not by Copley this time. On a broad space each side of the hall windows, at the head of the stair-case, are pictures of two Indians, life size. They are probably portraits of some of the numerous chiefs with whom Captain Macpheadris had dealings, for the captain was engaged in the fur as well as in the iron business. Some enormous elk antlers, presented to Macpheadris by his red friends, are hanging in the lower hall.

By mere chance, fifteen or twenty years ago, some long-hidden paintings on the walls of this lower hall were brought to light. In repairing the front entry it became necessary to remove the paper, of which four or five layers had accumulated.

At one place, where the several coats had peeled off cleanly, a horse's hoof was observed by a little girl of the family. The workman then began removing the paper carefully; first the legs, then the body of a horse with a rider were revealed, and the astonished paper hanger presently stood before a life-size representation of Governor Phipps on his charger. The workman called other persons to his assistance, and the remaining portions of the wall were speedily stripped, laying bare four or five hundred square feet covered with sketches in color, landscapes, views of distant cities, figure-pieces, Biblical scenes—Abraham offering up Isaac, a lady at a spinning-wheel, etc. Until then no person in the land of the living had had any knowledge of those hidden pictures. An old dame of eighty, who had visited at the house intimately ever since her childhood, all but refused to believe her spectacles when brought face to face with the frescoes.

The place is full of odds and ends calculated to craze a bric-a-brac hunter, but there is nothing more curious than these incongruous paintings, evidently the work of a clever hand. Even the outside of the edifice is not without its attractions for an antiquarian. The lightniug-rod which protects the Warner House to-day was put up under the personal supervision of Benjamin Franklin in 1762, and is supposed to be the first rod put up in New Hampshire. The Warner House has another strong claim on the good-will of the visitor—it is not known positively that George Washington ever slept there.

† In an unpublished diary which Washington kept during his tour through Connecticut, Massachusetts, and New Hampshire, in October, 1789. The portions relating to Portsmouth were quoted by Edward Everett in an address delivered in that city in 1866.

‡ Mr. Charles W. Brewster, for nearly fifty years the editor of the Portsmouth Journal, and the author of two volumes of local sketches to which the writer of the present paper acknowledges his indebtedness, died in 1868.

The Scramble.

The war-horses of the local democracy, who have stuck to the party through evil report these many years and would have stuck to it through good report just the same if there had ever been any good report of that party, are mustering in force for the division of the spoils; they smell the plunder not very far off, and say, "Aha! aha! I'll have some o' that." The number of democratic patriots who yearn to sacrifice themselves on the altar of their country—commencing by accepting a comfortable job and salary under the city government—is large, and their appetite for "official pap" (vide Times of almost any date since it was first established) larger still. But the quantity of "pap" at the disposal of the municipal rulers is limited; everybody can't be City Marshal or City Clerk, and besides, the democracy have for so many years been prating about needless offices and excessive salaries that it is extremely probable (? ? ?) they will abolish many of the "sinecures" kept up by the republicans and greatly reduce the pay of needed officers! The City Messenger has been a pet grievance of the democracy for years, so of course he will be extirpated; the City Solicitor has had far too much pay, and ditto the Collector and Treasurer, so we may expect to see hundreds of dollars saved on their salaries; and the police force—for years past the especial object o democratic denunciation—we shall now see made up of a much smaller number of men of the highest character, who will more ably preserve the peace of the city and give better protection to the law-observing citizens than the republican police have ever done, at half the cost to the taxpayers.

But many of the unterrified have been promised office; and not a few persons who always voted republican while the city government was certainly in republican hands, were won over to the democratic side by assurances that they should "have something under the city" as soon as the democracy came in power, as the gerrymander made certain they would do. The old-time leaders of the party, who know from experience how nice "pap" is, think their long service entitles them to the distribution if not the possession of the offices; while the young democracy, who invented the gerrymander and did most of the work in the late campaign, say the old fellows had their day long ago and must now give somebody else a chance at the municipal pap-dish. The democratic fugglers have got a big job on hand, to satisfy the appetites of such a large army of famished followers with such a small assortment of loaves and fishes, and they know that whoever don't get a bite will get mad. But it's none of our funeral,—we can stand off and enjoy the fun. If the democratic city government ignores the democratic pretences and professions of the past ten years, as we feel assured it will, we shall occasionally endeavor to recall to their short memories some of their former denunciations of republican profligacy, extravagance and partisan corruption; and if the democratic rulers should for appearances' sake abolish any of the offices so eagerly expected by so many "good workers for the party," we certainly shall not weep over the rage of the patriots who will thereby be disappointed.

Laconics.

Harry Bloodgood's company gave a most acceptable entertainment, Friday evening. Harry was in his best humor, and brought down the house with his "Funny Old Gal." Baby Benson is a wonder, and the gymnasts are unexcelled.

Says the Lowell Courier: We do not believe the democracy of New Hampshire will be very proud over their victory in Portsmouth, which, even with the powers in their own hands and used apparently without scruple, was just barely a victory and no more. This triumph, with an accompaniment of a democratic nature in New Orleans, will help secure a democratic defeat in the Granite State next spring.

Commodore Andrew Bryson assumes charge at the navy yard to-day.

A writer in the Portland Press urges Governor Dingley to delay the issue of the warrant for the execution of Wagner till after the Maine legislature meets, thinking that body will repeal the law punishing murder with death by hanging. If Wagner should not be hanged there is no necessity for further examples of capital punishment in Maine.

The democrats have decided on Mercer Goodrich, Esq., for City Clerk, and Israel Marden for City Marshal.

Mr. Joseph Sanborn has in operation at his place of business, No. 18 1-2 Daniel St., a machine of his own invention, (patent applied for,) by which he makes the boxing for the toes of boots and shoes, and for the work of which he finds an extensive market among the boot and shoe manufacturers of New Hampshire and Massachusetts. By it the piece of leather, properly tempered in a suitable preparation, is pressed, in a moment's time, into just the form required, making a material saving of expense in lasting, and giving a uniformly symmetrical shape to the boot or shoe. Mr. Sanborn is perfecting his invention; but, like the diligent man that he is, he prefers to make use of his invention in keeping himself employed in working it, to selling the right to others.

U. S. S. Plymouth, recently overhauled and repaired at this naval station, and now ordered to China, will go into commission about the 1st of October. She will be commanded by Capt. John H. Russell. The following are her officers: Lieutenants, Charles Rockwell, Charles H. Judd, Frederick Collins, Andrew C. Meehan; Masters, Richard Mitchell, Alexander McCracken; Paymaster, Francis H. Swann; Ensigns, William Irwin, Thomas S. Plunkett, Albert J. Dabney, Walter S. French, Thomas C. Wood; Midshipmen, Bernard O. Scott, John W. Stewart, William H. Nostrand, Henry F. Reich, John F. Parker, Matthew G. Reynolds; Surgeon, F. E. Potter: Assist Surgeon David O. Lemis; Chief Engineer, Robert L. Harris; Boatswain, Edward Bensall; Gunner, William Wilson; Carpenter, George W. Conover; Sailmaker, Nicholas Lynch.

A new boiler house, with laundry overhead, is being built of brick, with granite sills and caps, in the rear of the County House at Brentwood, with brick stack sixty-five feet high attached. The boiler is to be removed from beneath the main house. The work is plain but substantial, and is being done by a gang of masons chiefly from Portsmouth under direction of Mr. A. J. Locke.

The Boston Journal says "the first defeat of a granger took place at the Portsmouth city election," meaning of course Mayor Miller. Defeat is not the word—take off the def and prefix ch; and at any rate, "truth, crushed to earth, shall rise again"—only it is not crushed yet.

The democratic "smarties" who engineered the infamous gerrymandering scheme through the legislature, and are more learned in partizan trickery than in law, neglected to provide for a declaration of the vote for Mayor. An ordinance of the city provides that the votes for Mayor shall be counted by the city councils in convention in March. Till Moses H. Goodrich is declared elected, Mayor Miller will preside over the deliberations of the Aldermen, unless the present Board at its final meeting to-night, amends the city ordinance. In case this is not done, one of the first acts of the new city councils will be the passage of an amendment to the ordinance, which will be followed by a declaration of the vote for Mayor, and a notification of election. In case either branch of the city council had been evenly divided politically, what a nice time these democratic legislative blunderers would have had in endeavoring to secure a declaration of the vote for Mayor before the expiration of the year for which Mr. Miller was chosen!

The Journal says: As showing the reckless determination of the democrats to win, we state that we are informed on the best authority, that the tolerably fair and impartial conduct of the selectmen of Ward Five, and of James D. Butler, Esq., the Moderator, was so distasteful to them, that Hon. Frank Jones sent a note to him while in the desk, asking him how much the republicans paid him to sell out; and during the rampage of the democratic rabble after the close, Mr. Butler's law sign was torn down from his office on Daniel street.

Mr. Rufus W. Philbrick is appointed keeper of the life-saving station at Straw's Point, Rye. A life-boat's crew of six men is provided for duty when required.

The Times is respectfully informed that we did not rewrite the item from the Boston Advertiser. It was published without the change of a letter. The democratic hand-organ seems to think that a person is disgraced by being called an Irishman. Why?

We invite the attention of persons who have cane-seat chairs which need repairing, to the advertisement of Mr. Charles C. Wilson—headed "Chairs to Mend"—in another column. Mr. Wilson is totally blind, but "can't see" the propriety of either begging or grinding a hand-organ so long as the labor of his hands will give him the means of subsistence; and proprietors of bottomless chairs will get them made serviceable at a small cost, and assist an industrious man to gain an honest livelihood by the only occupation his affliction permits him to follow, by giving him any work of the kind they may have to do.

The Vermont Central, Concord & Portsmouth and Eastern Railroads are reaping a benefit from the freight sent over these roads from the West via Ogdensburg during the time that the Grand Trunk Railway is changing its rails to narrow gauge. Eight extra trains run daily between this city and Portland.

Death of Dr. Boardman.

John H. Boardman, M. D., so well known in this community as a skilled physician and an upright citizen, died on Saturday morning last, in the 71st year of his age. Dr. Boardman was a graduate of Harvard College, and studied medicine with the famed Pierpont, whose skill and reputation were known throughout New England, and whose mantle it would seem must have fallen upon the subject of this sketch, as the instances of his success in the treatment of disease abundantly confirm. It is not our purpose to write his biography; we wish only to pay our tribute to the memory of Dr. Boardman as we knew him in the autumn of his life. We have hinted at his skill in his practice of medicine and surgery; but no word that we can employ will fully indicate his value as a family physician. Naturally kind hearted and sympathetic, he always hastened to answer the call of the poor as well as the rich, and applied his medical knowledge with as much assiduity, patience and care at the bedside of poverty as at the couch of luxury and wealth. His lively, jocular humor in the sick room, frequently saved the life of the patient whose despondency had almost become chronic. We have heard him say however, oftentimes, that "he felt as blue as they did, but he must cheer them up." Said the good Doctor once to us, in reply to an inquiry in regard to the condition of a sick friend of ours, "You must tell him all the good jokes that you hear of. Keep his spirits up, by all means. It's better than medicine."

The loss of two of Dr. Boardman's sons, taken away in the full spring-time of life just as they had begun to demonstrate to the doating father their noble qualities of manhood that he had fondly hoped they possessed, was a terrible shock to him. He reeled and staggered in brain and limb, and though at last he rallied from the stunning blow, he never fully recovered his vigor.

How pathetically and earnestly did he pour into the ear of his trusted friends his tale of woe. And while the tears would start unbidden and one by one slowly course down his furrowed cheeks, he would suddenly arouse himself like a lion and shutting out (for the time) the memory of his dead children, at once turn to the business of his profession. With a splendid physique, added to a noble and intellectual countenance, his presence was dignified and commanding. His physical endurance also was great, when in his prime, and as a consequence, he was able to perform a prodigious amount of labor in his department as a physician.

Nature, at last, however, yielded to the strain upon the mental powers and for a while before his death his mind was partially bedimmed, and although receiving the kindest care and the best medical skill that could be obtained, he continued to slowly fail until Saturday, when death let him through into the world of souls to meet again his loved ones that had passed on before.

A grand old man has gone! A loved friend and highly-prized physician is no more among us. Hail and farewell, noble soul! rest from thy labors and receive thy well earned reward. C. W. G.

—A meek-faced, humble-looking individual, in attempting to traverse a bit of banana peel, recently, sat down violently on the sidewalk, and merely remarked: "Grace, mercy and peace."

Take Courage, Invalids.

Pain and weakness produce despondency, and the invalid who is laboring under bodily torture, debility and mental depression at the same time is indeed in a pitiable condition. But let all who are thus situated take heart. A balm is provided, both for their physical and mental infirmities, in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Among the commonest sources of pain, uneasiness and melancholy are the diseases which affect the stomach, the liver, the alimentary canal, the nerves and the muscles, such as dyspepsia, bilious disorders, constipation, headache, hysteria, and rheumatism, all of which yield readily to the regulating, invigorating and purifying influence of this peerless vegetable tonic, stimulant and restorative. Take courage, sorrowful invalids; you will find the help you need in Hostetter's Bitters.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in the branches of education, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

FRANCES L. KENT, vs. FRANK KENT.

TO THE CIRCUIT COURT, ROCKINGHAM, SS.

RESPECTFULLY represents FRANCES L. KENT of Newton that said county, that she was lawfully married to FRANK KENT of Hampstead in said county on the twenty-sixth day of November, A. D. 1862.—that she and her said husband after the said intermarriage resided together in said Hampstead, in Haverhill in the State of Massachusetts, and in South Berwick in the State of Maine, until the summer of 1870, when they removed to Rollinsford in our county of Strafford, and that she has since resided in the State of New Hampshire,—and that she now resides in said Newton.

Said libellant had one child by her said husband, who is now living, viz: George E. Kent; who is nearly eleven years of age. And said Frances L. Kent avers that since the said intermarriage she has always conducted herself as a faithful, chaste and affection wife toward her said husband; yet, the said Frank, wholly regardless of his marriage covenant and duty, at said Rollinsford, on the fifth day of September, A. D. 1871, and more than three years before the filing of this libel, without sufficient cause, and without her consent, abandoned the said libellant, and no witness, and during all the time since her said abandonment has refused to cohabit with her.

And said Frances L. Kent further avers that said Frank Kent on said fifth day of September, 1871, at said Rollinsford, without her consent, willingly absented himself from her, and went away to some place to your libellant unknown, without making suitable provision for her maintenance and support, and ever since that time, for more than three years together, has continued to so absent himself, without making such provision.

Wherefore, the said Frances L. Kent prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony between herself and said Frank Kent may be decreed, and that the custody of said George E. Kent may be committed to her. FRANCES L. KENT.

O. H. KEY, Solicitor for Libellant.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT, ROCKINGHAM, SS.

THIS Libel having been filed in the office of the Clerk of said Court this eighth day of September, A. D. 1874: It is ordered that said Frances L. Kent notify the said Frank Kent to appear at the next term of said Court, to be holden at Portsmouth on the third Tuesday of October next, then and there to show cause, if any he has, why the prayer thereof should not be granted, by causing a true and attested copy of said libel and this order thereon to be published one week in the Portsmouth Daily Chronicle, a newspaper printed at Portsmouth in our County of Rockingham, the last publication whereof to be at least one week before said term. By special order of HON. WILLIAM L. FOSTER, C. J.

Attest, C. C. CONNER, Clerk.

Ayer's Hair Vigor.

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and secret mental problems, will turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proved that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thin, scanty, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair re-grows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and rendered firm; dandruff, unsightliness, and fluid or dry scalp diseases, and baldness, are kept in check; scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA DEBILITY DROPSY AND HUMORS,

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills, simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever. It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

—USE—

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AYER' SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, of organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhœa arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure, health returns.

R. H. EDDY,

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. QUAKER BITTERS.

These celebrated Bitters are composed of choice Roots, Herbs and Barks, among which are Gentian, Sarsaparilla, Wild Cherry, Dandelion, Juniper and other Berries, and are so prepared as to retain all their medicinal qualities. They invariably cure or greatly relieve the following complaints: Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Liver Complaint, Loss of Appetite, Headache, Bilious Attacks, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Ague, Cold Chills, Rheumatism, Summer Complaints, Piles, Kidney Diseases, Female Difficulties, Lassitude, Low Spirits, General Debility, and, in fact, everything caused by an impure state of the Blood or deranged condition of Stomach, Liver, or Kidneys. The aged find in the Quaker Bitters a gentle, soothing stimulant, so desirable in their declining years. No one can remain long unwell (unless afflicted with an incurable disease) after taking a few bottles of the Quaker Bitters.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other nuisance, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter house, or for trying tallow, or for curing hides, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 12. When any household or shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city. m25 d3m

Crime and Idleness.

[Boston Globe.]

"The Judge of the Superior Court in Portland, a day or two since, in sentencing a batch of prisoners, sent them to Auburn jail instead of that at Portland, giving as his reason the fact that at the former institution they would be set at work and thereby benefit the State, while in the latter they would be kept in idleness. The Press o that city seizes upon the act as a text and reads the authorities a homily, which is, apparently, very much needed, on the short-sightedness of allowing such a state of things to exist. It very pertinently says: 'Honest labor for a year might reform a criminal, whose vicious disposition thirty days' idleness would only aggravate. Crime and idleness are sometimes matters of habit, and a habit of honest labor continued long enough may change entirely a prisoner's course of life.' Let the Portland Board of Commissioners cut this extract from the Press and paste it in their hats."

This is sound logic. By the sweat of his brow should every man earn his bread; and if any man will not work, neither should he eat. Certainly none should be obliged to be idle in confinement, and this Maine movement is in the right direction. The Commissioners of Rockingham County have been making similar efforts for sometime, and the Legislative Convention having granted the appropriation asked for this purpose, a house of correction, including a work shop, is soon to be built at the County Farm. In the last two annual reports the subject was earnestly recommended to the Convention by both Boards, especially by Commissioner Miller, who is understood to have written the reports.

—"Mary Jane, have you given the goldfish fresh water?" "No, ma'am. What's the use; they haven't drunk up what's in there yet.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,

For all the Purposes of a Family Physic

CURING

Costiveness, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Dysentery, Foul Stomach and Breath, Erysipelas, Headache, Piles, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Tetter, Tumors and Salt Rheum, Worms, Gout, Neuralgia, as a Dinner Pill, and purifying the Blood, are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organs into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skilful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

The Fall River Fire.

At the fire there were spectacles of heroic bravery such as emanate only from nature's noblemen. John N. Boeworth reached the roof and told a woman who thought her dying hour had come, to cling to him and he would save her. Taking a firm hold of the rope which he held he carried her safely to the ground, and returning again saved a boy. He also took from the burning floor the trunk of a body supposed to be a woman.

During the descent of some people on ropes the rope gave way, and six women, four men and a boy fell forty feet and were all killed in their fall.

One man being cut off from the stairway by the hell of flame, climbed through the scuttle into the roof, there being no ladder at the scuttle, and, fastening a long rope securely to the top of the roof, he lowered himself in safety. A companion following fell back suffocated before reaching the rope.

Readables.

The Haverhill Bulletin is fast relapsing into religiosity. "It says men of families are coming to the point where they do not think it incumbent to quarrel about Beecher, Tilton, or Elizabeth; and advises "each and all to bide the prickings or dictations of conscience, and make an early peace with him who is Supreme Judge of all his children." Such noble sentiments could but be expected from a straight-out Bulter man!

A man named Solmond, a supposed resident of Brantford, Canada, deliberately walked into the Niagara rapids, on Saturday, and was carried over the falls.

Thomas Harrison, president of the Jersey City board of aldermen, sailed on Saturday for Europe, for his health, breaking the dead-lock in that body and giving its control to the republicans.

A case is on trial at San Francisco involving the ownership of seventy acres of land valued at $1,000,000. There are one hundred and twenty defendants, and two of them happened to be chosen as jurors.

Commander Charles L. Franklin, on duty at the Pensacola navy yard, died of yellow fever on the 18th instant. He was a native of Ohio, and has been in service twenty years. The latest intelligence received at the department shows no abatement of the fever. Captain A. A. Semmes, executive officer of the yard, has been taken down with it.

While Gen. Butler was making a speech in Essex, Mass., Saturday evening, some one lowered a silver spoon by a string from a scuttle in the roof to the front of the stage, and dangled it about before the General's face, whereat the audience roared and old Ben coolly remarked: "There must be some opposition in this town."

Judge Walton of the supreme court of Maine has decided that the liquor law is in force.

The small-pox in the island of Jamaica is abating. At one time there were 800 cases in Kingston alone, but now the number is reduced to 200.

In the Oregon Legislature the independents hold the balance of power between the democrats and republicans in each House. The three parties are nearly equally divided.

The Haytien consul-general says that his government has made a claim on the United States for consequential damages for the loss of Navassa by American occupation, and restitution of the island; and that, failing action by the American cabinet, the subject will be referred to arbitration.

News is just received of the return of the Austrian polar expedition which left Tromsoe July 14, 1872. The vessel was frozen in and abandoned, and the men arrived at Vardoe, Norway, September 3, by a Russian schooner which they encountered in Puchona bay.

Governor Kellogg took possession of the gubernatorial office at New Orleans on Saturday morning, the State House, public property and records being turned over to him by General Brooke. At a meeting of citizens of Franklin and Richland parishes, held at Delhi on Saturday, rebellious resolutions were adopted, a determination being expressed not to recognize "usurpers" unless compelled to do so by force.

A violent storm of wind and rain caused extensive damage in Iowa and Illinois on Friday night. A freight train was wrecked on the Illinois Central and several persons were injured, one of them fatally.

There is a very lively row in progress at Lawrence, the parties being the native-born democrats on the one hand and the Irish-born democrats on the other. The former control the Board of Aldermen; the latter, the Common Council. There has been an unpleasantness for a year past, and now the younger Irish-Americans have formed a club.

The Louisville Courier Journal says: There is no use talking about making a party campaign as matters are going on in the South. If we cannot have peace at the South, the democratic party might as well throw up the sponge.

The towns of Lexington and Concord, Mass., have agreed upon a union of celebration of the 19th of April, 1775. They propose to have an oration at Lexington, where statues of John Hancock and Samuel Adams will be unveiled with appropriate ceremonies; the procession will then take the cars for Concord, where a statue of a "minute-man" will be dedicated at the Old North Bridge. After a full display of the procession they will repair to the table for physical and intellectual entertainment. The event to be thus commemorated is one of the most interesting of the Revolution, and Lexington and Concord propose to have a celebration worthy of the occasion.

E. B. Pike, a workman in Harris's tannery at Norway, Me., was caught by a belt, Friday, and carried several times over the shaft, tearing off one arm and dislocating his hip.

Annie and Mary Perkins of Saco, two girls, aged respectively thirteen and fifteen years, have been enticed from home by some unknown persons. A sailor and his sister, who were seen in Biddeford with the girls, are suspected.

Mark Twain's New Play.

Mark Twain has written, all by himself, a play founded on the book, "The Gilded Age," written by himself and Charles Dudley Warner. When he was called before the curtain after it fell on the last act, Mark said:

I thank you for the compliment of this call, and I will take advantage of it to say that I have written this piece in such a way that the jury can bring in a verdict of guilty or not guilty, just as they happen to feel about it. I have done this for this reason; If a play carries its best lessons by teaching what ought to be done in such a case, but is not done in real life, then the righteous verdict of guilt should appear; but if the best lesson may be conveyed by holding up the mirror, and showing what is done every day in such a case, but ought not to be done, then the satirical verdict of not guilty should appear. I don't know which is best, strict truth and satire, or a nice moral lesson void of both. So I leave my jury free to decide. I am killing only one man in this tragedy now, and that is bad, for nothing helps out a play like bloodshed. But in a few weeks I propose to introduce the small-pox into the last act. And if that don't work I shall close with a general massacre. I threw all my strength into the character of Colonel Sellers [a comic part,] hoping to make it a very strong tragedy part and pathetic. I think this gentleman tries hard to play it right, and make it majestic and pathetic, but his face is against him. And his clothes! I don't think anybody can make a tragedy effect in that kind of clothes. But I suppose he thinks they are impressive. He is from one of the Indian reservations. Oh! I can see that he tries hard to make it solemn and awful and heroic, but really sometimes he almost makes me laugh. I meant that turnip dinner to be pathetic, for how more forcibly could you represent poverty and misery and suffering than by such a dinner, and of course if anything would bring tears to people's eyes that would; but this man eats those turnips as if they were the bread of life, and so of course the pathos is knocked clear out of the thing. But I think he will learn. He has an absorbing ambition to become a very great tragedian. I hope you will overlook the faults in this play, because I have never written a play before, and if I am treated right may be I won't offend again. I wanted to have some fine situations and spectacular effects in this piece, but I was interfered with. I wanted to have a volcano in a state of eruption, with fire and smoke and earthquakes, and a great tossing river of blood-red lava flowing down the mountain side, and have the hero of this piece come booming down that red-hot river in a cast-iron canoe; but the manager wouldn't hear of it; he said there was not any volcano in Missouri—as if I am responsible for Missouri's poverty. And then he said that by the laws of nature the hero would burn up; his cast-iron canoe would not protect him. "Very well," I said, "put him in a patent fire-proof safe, and let him slide—all the more thrilling—and paint on it, 'This safe is from Herring's establishment,' same as you would on a piano, and you can pay the whole expense of the volcano just on the advertisement." But the manager objected, though he said heaps of pretty things—among others that I was an ass—and so I had to let the volcano go.

Writing Good English.

The New York Times printed an article a few days ago on the art of writing good English, upon which the Brooklyn Union comments as follows:

"The Times proceeds to explain what good writing means, and, as a matter of course, makes grammatical errors of its own, as instructors generally do. For example:

"'If a man is in doubt whether to wear a light coat or heavy one on a September day, it does not necessarily follow that he should go in his shirt-sleeves.'

"What the Times meant to say was, if a man were in doubt &c., it would not necessarily follow, etc.

"'It is certain that a very large part of our educated youth of both sexes are unable to put their thoughts on paper without numerous inaccuracies.'

"Here it was intended to say that a very large number, or many, of our educated youth of both sexes, etc. 'A large part' cannot be considered in the plural.

"'At all events, if instruction of this kind is furnished by the professors in our colleges, many of the students appear to profit remarkably little by it.'

"In this sentence the Times italicises is, as if it were used ungrammatically on purpose; but it is not the less incorrect. And then the word individual is used, when person is meant, twice, as:

"'The expression is not appropriate when employed to indicate a nice piece of roast beef and well-cooked vegetables for half a dozen individuals.'

"This is not ungrammatical, but it is vulgar. A person is not necessarily an individual. It is a vulgarism to speak of persons as individuals, which good writers do not fall into. An ungrammatical expression may be accidental, but vulgarisms indicate a lack of education and refinement. The Times tried very hard, no doubt, to produce a little piece of good writing as a model, but it did not succeed very well the first time."

An Old City by the Sea.

[T. B. Aldrich in Harper's Magazine.]

Continued.

The same assertion cannot be made safely in connection with the old yellow barracks situated on the southwest corner of Court and Atkinson streets. Famous old houses seem to have an intuitive perception of the value of corner lots. It is beyond a doubt that Washington slept not only one night, but several nights under this roof; for this was a celebrated tavern previous and subsequent to the War of Independence, and Washington made it his head-quarters, I believe, during his visit to Portsmouth in 1797. When I was a boy I knew an old lady—not one of the old ladies in the newspapers, who are always taking preposterous walks before breakfast, and have all their faculties unimpaired; but a real old lady, whose ninety-nine years were beginning to tell on her—who had known Washington very well. She was a girl in her teens when he came to Portsmouth. The President was the staple of her conversation during the last ten years of her life, which she passed in the Stavers House, bedridden; and I think those ten years were rendered short and pleasant to the old gentlewoman by the memory of a compliment to her complexion which Washington probably never paid to her.

The old hotel—now a very unsavory tenement-house—was built by John Stavers, innkeeper, in 1770, who planted in front of the door a tall post, from which swung the sign of "The Earl of Halifax." Stavers had previously kept an inn of the same name on Queen, now State, Street.

It is a square three story building, shabby and dejected, giving no hint of the really important historical associations that cluster about it. At the time of its erection it was no doubt considered a rather grand structure, for buildings of three stories were rare in Portsmouth. Even in 1798, of the six hundred and twenty-six dwelling houses of which the town boasted, eighty-six were of one story, five hundred and twenty-four were of two stories, and only sixteen of three stories.* It has the regulation gambrel roof, but is lacking in those wood ornaments which are usually seen over the doors and windows of the more prominent houses of that epoch. It was, however, the hotel of the period.

That same worn door-step upon which Mr. O'Shaughnessy now stretches himself of a summer afternoon, with a short clay pipe stuck between his lips, and his hat crushed down on his brows, revolving the sad vicissitude of things (made very much sadder by drink)—that same door-step has been pressed by the feet of generals and marquises and grave dignitaries upon whom depended the destiny of the States—officers in gold-lace and scarlet cloth, and high-heeled belles in patch and powder. At this door the "Flying Stage-Coach," from Boston, once a week set down its load of passengers—and distinguished passengers they often were. Most of the chief celebrities of the land, before and after the secession of the colonies, have been guests of Master Stavers, at the sign of the Earl of Halifax.

While the storm was brewing between the colonies and the mother country it was in a back-room in the old tavern that the adherents of the crown met to discuss matters. The landlord himself was a loyalist, and when the full cloud was on the eve of breaking he had an early intimation of the coming tornado. The Sons of Liberty had long watched with sullen eyes the secret sessions of the Tories in Master Stavers' tavern, and one morning the patriots quietly began cutting down the post which supported the obnoxious emblem. Mr. Stavers, who seems not to have been belligerent himself, but the cause of belligerence in others, sent out his black slave with orders to stop proceedings. The negro, who was armed with an axe, struck but a single blow, and disappeared. This blow fell upon the head of Mark Noble; it did not kill him, but left him an insane man till the day of his death, forty years afterward. A furious mob at once collected, and made an attack on the tavern, bursting in the doors and shattering every pane of glass in the windows. It was only through the intervention of Capt. John Langdon, a warm and popular patriot, that the hotel was saved from destruction.

Master Stavers in the meanwhile had escaped through the stables in the rear. He fled to Stratham, where he was given refuge by his friend William Pottle, who had supplied the hotel with ale. The excitement blew over after a time, and Stavers was induced to return to Portsmouth. He was seized by the Committee of Safety, and lodged in Exeter jail,† when his loyalty, which had really never been very high, went down below zero; he took the oath of allegiance, and shortly after his release reopened the hotel. The honest face of William Pitt appeared on the repentant sign, vice the Earl of Halifax, ignominiously discharged, and Stavers was himself again.

From that period until I do not know what year the Stavers House prospered. It was at the sign of the William Pitt that the officers of the French fleet boarded in 1782, and hither came the Marquis Lafayette all the way from Providence, to visit them. John Hancock, Elbridge Gerry, Rutledge, and other signers of the Declaration sojourned here at various times. It was here General Knox—"that stalwart man, two officers in size and three in lungs"—was wont to order his dinner, and in a stentorian voice compliment Master Stavers on the excellence of his larder. One day—it was at the time of the French Revolution—Louis Phillippe and his two brothers applied at the door of the William Pitt for lodgings; but the tavern was full, and the future king, with his companions, found comfortable quarters under the hospitable roof of Governor Langdon in Pleasant Street.

A record of the scenes, tragic and humorous, that have been enacted within this old yellow house on the corner would fill a volume. A vivid picture of the social and public life of the old time might be painted by a skillful hand, using the two Earl of Halifax inns for a background. The painter would find gay and sombre colors ready mixed for his palette, and a hundred romantic incidents waiting for his canvas.

One of these romantic episodes has been turned to very pretty account by Longfellow in the last series of The Tales of a Wayside Inn—the marriage of Governor Benning Wentworth with Martha Hilton, a sort of second edition of King Cophetua and the Beggar Maid.

Martha Hilton was a poor girl, whose bare feet and ankles and scant drapery when she was a child, and even after she was well in the bloom of her teens, used to scandalize good Dame Stavers, the innkeeper's wife. Standing one afternoon in the doorway of the Earl of Halifax,‡ Dame Stavers took occasion to remonstrate with the sleek-limbed and lightly draped Martha, who chanced to be passing the tavern, carrying a pail of water, in which, as the poet neatly says, "the shifting sunbeam danced."

"You Pat! you Pat!" cried Mrs. Stavers, severely; "why do you go looking so? you should be ashamed to be seen in the street."

"Never mind how I look," says Miss Martha, with a merry laugh, letting slip a saucy brown out of her dress; "I shall ride in my chariot yet, ma'am."

* Rambles About Portsmouth, First Series, p. 150.

† In the State records is the following letter from poor Noble—who was not inappropriately named—begging for the discharge of John Stavers:

PORTSMOUTH, February 3, 1777.

To the Committee of Safety the Town of Exeter:

Gentlemen:—As I am informed that Mr. Stivens is in confinement in goal upon my account contrary to my desire, for when I was at Mr. Stivers a fast day I had no ill nor ment none against the Gentleman but by bad luck or misfortune I have received a bad Blow but it is so well that I hope to go out in a day or two. So by this gentlemen of the Committee I hope you will release the gentleman upon my account. I am yours to serve. MARK NOBLE.

A friend to my country.

‡ The first of the two hotels bearing that title. Mr. Brewster commits a slight anachronism in locating the scene of this incident in Jaffrey street, now Court. The Stavers house was not built until the year of Governor Benning Wentworth's death. Mr. Longfellow, in the poem, does not fall into the same error.

"On a hundred years ago, and something more,
In Queen street, Portsmouth, at her tavern door,
Neat as a pin, and blooming as a rose,
Stood Mistress Stavers in her furbelows."

Catacombs of Wisconsin.

A correspondent of the Cincinnati Times writes as follows from Clear Lake, Wisconsin, concerning a remarkable discovery of a still more remarkable cave:

This beautiful little sheet of water is located about two miles from Milton Junction and ten miles north of Janesville, in the town of Milton. This gem of a lake is about one mile in circumference. The water is pure and clear. Green banks slope down to the white sandy beach on all sides except the western, where rough, precipitous rocks rear their heads some hundreds of feet above the water. A commodious hotel in a grove of oaks on the east bank invites the weary and dusty traveler to its bed and board. Mr. Stone, who keeps the house, understands the wants of those who visit this spot, and none go away dissatisfied.

In rambling about the lake the visitor will often find relics of a race who once, long ago, occupied its banks in large numbers. Flint arrow heads are quite common. Stone axes and grinding bowls of the same material are sometimes picked up, while Indians mounds are seen in all directions about the lake, except at the rocky side; it was at this latter point that a wonderful discovery was lately made, in quite an accidental way. It appears that Mr. William Dousett, a merchant at Milton Junction, was visiting the Clear Lake House with his family, and as the weather was extremely warm he determined to take a bath in the lake, as he had done a hundred times before, and for greater seclusion he proceeded to the farther, or rocky side.

At the base of the cliff a wide natural stone projects a few feet over the water, which is quite deep there. Upon this rock Mr. Dousett reduced his apparel to robe de ciper, and commenced his bath by plunging headforemost into the lake. Swimming under water is a favorite diversion of Mr. D. while bathing, and upon this occasion he was coursing along the perpendicular base of the cliff, about four feet below the surface of the water, when he discovered what appeared to be an opening in the wall of the rock. He rose to the surface to get breath, and, diving down again, sought the aperture, found it, entered it, and the next moment arose in a large and dimly lighted cave.

Mr. Dousett gazed around the subterranean cavern in astonishment; he was so overawed by what he saw that he made haste to gain the upper air.

The news of the discovery of the cave was soon spread about the country, and arrangements were made by a company of gentlemen at Milton Junction to examine the cave next morning. The party consisted of Mr. Dousett, Mr. Holmes, freight agent, Mr. Carl Gifford, telegraph operator, and Mr. Foster, the proprietor of the Morgan House. They arrived at the lake about 7 o'clock, provided with everything necessary to assist them in exploring the cave. One or two of the gentlemen had some difficulty in getting to the door of the cavern, as they were not used to submarine travel; but the party at length succeeded in entering the cave. Lamps were lighted and a wonderful sight was revealed. The floor of the cave was smooth, hard rock, and level as a house floor. The ceiling was slightly arched and about twenty feet in height. The most wonderful things were the walls and what they contained. The cave was of an irregular oblong shape, about forty feet; and the walls of the south and west sides were full of shelves, artificial or natural, to the height of twelve or fifteen feet. On several of these shelves were laid the skeletons of human beings, the skulls grinning ghastly at those who, undoubtedly, were the first to disturb the long repose of the sleepers. On the north wall were rude engravings of beasts, fishes, birds, and reptiles. The floor was scattered over with various stone flint implements, and here and there a small pile of charcoal.

When the party had finished their examination, the light was extinguished. At first the cave seemed dark, but as the eyes of the visitors became used to the change a soft twilight pervaded the room. The light came principally from the door, but some narrow crevices in the roof were seen which admitted faint rays of daylight. Securing a few relics, the party stepped down through the door, and springing forward arose to the surface of the lake, from which they easily regained the rock where they had left thier clothing, which they put on and repaired to the Clear Lake House, to recount the result of their explorations to a great crowd which had gathered there for the purpose of hearing the story.

Local Matters.

Sad Effects of a Stoppage at "The Wentworth."

[Charlestown Advertiser.]

The Terrestial Saw Him, composed of about thirty of the prominent "Brethren" of the Masonic order living in our suburbs, and who do business in Boston, together with several officers of the 999th Battery, who are "on the square," made a joint excursion to The Wentworth last Saturday, and spent two days at Brother Chase's popular hostelry. The most of the party had never been there before, but all were highly impressed with the location and appointments of the hotel as an excellent summer resort. From the broad piazzas of the hotel, and from the observatory, the ocean view was found to be unsurpassed, and greatly enlivened by the fleets of sailing vessels and steamers entering the river and passing out from Portsmouth, Kittery, New Castle and Dover. The greater portion of the time spent by the Saw Hims, was under the immediate direction of Brother Chase—who early in the season was voted an honorary member for his subtle resources—in examining the four geological periods of the formation of the earth, that are so clearly written upon the shores of Sagamore John's Creek that flows by the hotel eminence—in triangulating the Shoals, and in locating a double cordon of lighthouses upon the adjacent promontories. This last service inspired Mrs. Partington to prepare an original poem, commencing:

"The breaking waves dash high," which was read with spirit and referred to the committee on Baked Flounders. The State Dinner of the club was eaten at sunrise, precisely; and developed in a very high degree the wonderful resources of The Wentworth, and the wealth of mind and occult lore of all sitting at the frugal board, and the company actually flowered out in musical members. The real gem of the morning, that which breathed the soul of the occasion, was entitled, "when the sculpins homeward fly." The sublime rite of the I-a-m-s-y-x-o-r-a-p-s-s-i-k was administered by the Terrestial Sor-Him, at sunset, on the site of the four geological eras writtten indelibly on Sagamore Creek, and at the exact moment of the celestial flush, and when Old Sol was throwing his golden nimbus upon the heavens. When this two score of veteran observers of the Heavens, the Earth and the Sea, and the Wind, turned their inspired faces to the West, flushed with the glories of the departing day, and pronounced the Apothegm, the scene presented the exact picture of the Four Eras of Saw-him, and made a profound impression upon the mind of the writer!

Masonic Parade.

Cœur de Lion Commandery of Charlestown under Eminent Commander Wm. H. Kent, make their first public parade, of two days, Wednesday and Thursday, in conjunction with Palestine Commandery of Chelsea. At 2.55 P. M., Wednesday, the two bodies, headed by the Brigade Band, will arrive here and receive the courtesies of DeWitt Clinton Commandery in passing from the train through the city. The Knights will bring ladies with them, and form a party of nearly four hundred, and make a very fine display on the march. Music, dancing and feasting will be in order at "The Wentworth."

The route of the procession will be through Deer, Market, Islington, Cabot, Middle, State and Pleasant streets to the South Mill Bridge, where the visiting Commandries will take carriages for the "Wentworth."

The Palestines being the guests of the Charlestown Commandery, the second section of the 999th Battery will welcome them with a salute of 100 guns, which is designed as a special compliment to the ladies of the party, on their arrival at "The Wentworth."

Take Courage, Invalids.

Pain and weakness produce despondency, and the invalid who is laboring under bodily torture, debility and mental depression at the same time is indeed in a pitiable condition. But let all who are thus situated take heart. A balm is provided, both for their physical and mental infirmities, in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Among the commonest sources of pain, uneasiness and melancholy are the diseases which affect the stomach, the liver, the alimentary canal, the nerves and the muscles, such as dyspepsia, bilious disorders, constipation, headache, hysteria, and rheumatism, all of which yield readily to the regulating, invigorating and purifying influence of this peerless vegetable tonic, stimulant and restorative. Take courage, sorrowful invalids; you will find the help you need in Hostetter's Bitters.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

FRANCES L. KENT, vs. FRANK KENT.

TO THE CIRCUIT COURT, ROCKINGHAM, ss.

RESPECTFULLY represents FRANCES L. KENT of Newton in said county, that she was lawfully married to FRANK KENT of Hampstead in said county on the twenty-sixth day of November, A. D. 1862,—that she and her said husband after the said intermarriage resided together in said Hampstead, in Haverhill in the State of Massachusetts, and in South Berwick in the State of Maine, until the summer of 1870, when they removed to Rollinsford in our county of Strafford, and that she has since resided in the State of New Hampshire,—and that she now resides in said Newton.

Said libellant had one child by her said husband, who is now living, viz: George E. Kent; who is nearly eleven years of age. And said Frances L. Kent avers that since the said intermarriage she has always conducted herself as a faithful, chaste and affection wife toward her said husband; yet, the said Frank, wholly regardless of his marriage covenant and duty, at said Rollinsford, on the fifth day of September, A. D. 1871, and more than three years before the filing of this libel, without sufficient cause, and without her consent, abandoned the said libellant, and now refuses, and during all the time since her said abandonment has refused to cohabit with her.

And said Frances L. Kent further avers that said Frank Kent on said fifth day of September, 1871, at said Rollinsford, without her consent, willingly absented himself from her, and went away to some place to your libellant unknown, without making suitable provision for her maintenance and support, and ever since that time, for more than three years together, has continued to so absent himself, without making such provision.

Wherefore, the said Frances L. Kent prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony between herself and said Frank Kent may be decreed, and that the custody of said George E. Kent may be committed to her. FRANCES L. KENT.

O. H. KEY, Solicitor for Libellant.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT, ROCKINGHAM, ss.

THIS Libel having been filed in the office of the Clerk of said Court this eighth day of September A. D. 1874: It is ordered that said Frances L. Kent notify the said Frank Kent to appear at the next term of said Court, to be holden at Portsmouth on the third Tuesday of October next, then and there to show cause, if any he has, why the prayer thereof should not be granted, by causing a true and attested copy of said libel and this order thereon to be published one week in the Portsmouth Daily Chronicle, a newspaper printed at Portsmouth in our County of Rockinghani, the last publication whereof to be at least one week before said term. By special order of HON. WILLIAM L. FOSTER, C. J.

Ayer's Hair Vigor.

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brushy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair re-grows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA DEBILITY DROPSY AND HUMORS

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, Boston." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN

HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever. It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties, it invigorates the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE, CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AYER' SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworms, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhœa arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure, health returns.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

DR. FLINT'S

QUAKER BITTERS.

These celebrated Bitters are composed of choice Roots, Herbs and Barks, among which are Gentian, Sarsaparilla, Wild Cherry, Dandelion, Juniper and other Berries, and are so prepared as to retain all their medicinal qualities. They invariably cure or greatly relieve the following complaints: Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Liver Complaint, Loss of Appetite, Headache, Bilious Attacks, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Ague, Cold Chills, Rheumatism, Summer Complaints, Piles, Kidney Diseases, Female Difficulties, Lassitude, Low Spirits, General Debility, and, in fact, everything caused by an impure state of the Blood or deranged condition of Stomach, Liver, or Kidneys. The aged find in the Quaker Bitters a gentle, soothing stimulant, so desirable in their declining years. No one can remain long unwell (unless afflicted with an incurable disease) after taking a few bottles of the Quaker Bitters.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall carry them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city. m5 d3m

How Sheriff Kelly Makes Hay.

Mayor Havemeyer's charges against the New York Sheriff, John Kelly, to which some allusion has already been made in our news columns, seem to have been prompted by a desire for revenge rather than for the sake of the public service. Kelly is one of the band who recently tried with such poor success to get Havemeyer turned out of his office. The charges, if they are true, show a series of frauds against the treasury as audacious as those of Tweed, although the amounts stolen are petty in comparison; Tweed had a very large hand. Among other tricks, "Honest John" is charged with reporting 113,090 convictions in the county, during his six years of service, and collecting the corresponding fees, while the clerks of the courts only reported 26,886. Also with collecting fees for 6,353 more convictions than he reported. The Mayor makes out his fraudulent gains in this way to be $34,259, which is certainly a modest sum for a New York official. A curious result of this figure-twisting arises from the fact that while the actual convictions show a proportion of eight males to one female, Kelly distributed crime about equally between the sexes, so that he makes out 54,000 women sent to jail from the city in six years! Besides this, he put the burden on the foreign population, so as to record 72,000 natives of Ireland convicted in the same period. Mr. Havemeyer, although of Teutonic extraction, does not hesitate to raise his voice at this new oppression of a down-trodden nationality. The Mayor also shows a curious exhibit of the cost of executions. Kelly's predecessor hung James Rogers at a cost to the county of $40.87. Kelley himself, in his first term, executed James Stephens for $124. But during the notorious Watson's terms as Auditor, Kelly's bills for hanging convicts increased enormously, so that the county had to pay $972 for putting Bernard Friery out of the world; $722 for the hanging of Frank Ferris; George Wagner's execution cost $774; and Jeremiah O'Brien's $940. Not to go any farther into details, the Mayor makes out that by summoning mock constables and imaginary jurors, by overcharges, and other tricks, the treasury has been robbed of $88,844. The only answer yet made by Kelly is a threat to expose public frauds by Havemeyer's lawyer, Nelson J. Waterbury, who dug out these figures from the records for the Mayor's use. It seems quite possible that all rascality in New York did not cease when Tweed went to prison.

—We have been told recently of a clergyman who was killed by lightning as he stood on a river bank rebuking some wicked boys who were breaking the Sabbath by swimming; and now there comes from Paris a story that in a recent fearful thunder storm the electrical fluid descended into the office of a great financial establishment in that city, but the cashier was not touched, as he had just left for Belgium with all the available funds of the company.

—Her ways were ways of pleasantness, but when she took off her slippers she got a thorn in her foot.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1874.

Tilton's Latest Statement.

We had hoped not to be called on to give any of Tilton's latest statement, but it contains some points which can not be fairly passed over in justice to him, and which have such a bearing on the issue that they ought not to be suppressed. We condense as much as possible, and omit most of the personal declarations of the writer which go to make up his circumstantial narrative.

Tilton specifies witnesses not appearing before the committee, but as he claims knowing to the facts. There are besides Moulton, Joseph H. Richards, Martha B. Bradshaw, Susan B. Anthony, F. B. Carpenter, Mrs. Moulton, H. C. Bowen, and Thos. Kinsella of the Eagle; also at least one other lady, name not given, Mrs. Tilton's letters to whom are quoted. He gives letters from both Mrs. Stanton and Miss Anthony, in which they presumably assume Mr. Beecher's guilt. Miss Anthony writes to Mrs. Hooker, Nov. 16, 1872:

* * * The reply of your brother to you is not more startling, not so open a falsehood, as that to Mr. Watters [a newspaper reporter.] "Of course, Mr. Beecher, this is a fraud from beginning to end?" "Entirely."

Wouldn't you think if God ever did strike any one dead for telling a lie, he would have struck then?"

For a cultivated man, at whose feet the whole world of men, as well as of women, sits in love and reverence; whose moral, intellectual, social resources are without limit—for such a man, so blest, so overflowing with soul-food—for him to ask or accept the body of one or a dozen of his reverent and revering devotees, I tell you he is the sinner—if it be a sin; and who shall say it is not?

Included in the same letter are portions of a letter from Mrs. Stanton to Miss Anthony, in which she shows her apparent denial telegraphed from Lewiston to have been an evasion.

[MRS. STANTON TO MOULTON.]

Dear Friend,—In your forthcoming statement, whatever you say, or fail to say, do not forget, as a brave knight, to bring your steel on the head of the great preacher for his base charge that Elizabeth Tilton thrust her love on him unsought. You know better than Susan or I do the time and arguments by which he achieved his purpose.

[MRS. TILTON TO TILTON.]

Theodore, I have had one of my selfish days. They are rare indeed, but your note in the Eagle of last night was so heartless; I did not hear it when you read it—only realized it in seeing it in print. You should have shielded me (a noble man would) all the more because of the truth from the beginning, not allowing it to go forth; and up till within a few weeks only have you ceased your accusations when it began to touch you.

Innocence demanded nothing of you. To you I owe this great injustice of exposure. Such has never before befallen a woman. Blow after blow—ceaseless and unrelenting these three years. You know what I am.

Oh, cruel, cruel spirit, born of the devil of anger and revenge. Yet now that exposure has come, my whole nature revolts to join with you, or, standing with you. I will not do what I hate in others, if I have my eyes open to see and understand. Here you say always, I would injure you. Will you compel me to in self respect and self defence?

Tilton details his wife's confession to him and to her mother at his house. Mrs. Morse he describes as a woman of violent and extraordinary temper, and separated from her husband, Judge Morse, on that account. After the confession, Mrs. Morse was all humility and love, but presently, fearing that he might procure a divorce and disclose everything, she began to circulate slanders against him of every description in order to forestall any such purpose. Extracts from Mrs. Morse's letters show a forcible style:

"You infernal villain! This night you should be in jail. * * * Why your treacherous tongue has not ere this been taken out by the roots is a wonder."

"Your slimy, polluted, brawny hand curses everything you touch. A perfect type of Uriah Heep. This is not original. It is well understood why I have been turned out of your rotten house."

"You retaliate by exposing the only deed which my martyred child ever did, which was not Godlike, and this was brought about by the love and sympathy that man had for her wretchedness; and how she ever came to expose him or herself to one she knew so well could not be trusted, eternity will not be long enough to reveal the mystery."

Beecher's account of the first interview with Tilton at Moulton's house, says Tilton first upbraided him with causing his business troubles, loss of place and salary. Tilton's letter to Bowen proves, as he thinks, that he did not receive his discharge till the day after.

"I received last evening [that is, not December 30, but 31] your sudden notice breaking my two contracts, one with the Independent, the other with the Brooklyn Union."

The two contracts by which Bowen engaged Tilton, at an aggregate salary of about $14,000 per annum, were then hardly a week old, and Bowen's charges against Beecher and hostility to him were fresh in his mind.

Tilton does not believe that Beecher ever advised his wife to leave him. There is no proof of it. Mrs. Morse would have known it, she being as Mr. Beecher says brought by him just before in consultation with Mrs. Beecher, whereas Mrs. M. writes to Mr. B. Jan. 27, 1871, a few weeks after the apology:

"You or any one else who advises her (Mrs. Tilton) to live with him (Mr. Tilton) when he is doing all he can to kill her by slow torture, is anything but a friend."

Tilton further says:

As God is my judge, I solemnly aver that that interview did not descend to points of finance, but on the contrary, touched only two points: First, Mrs. Tilton's ruin, which had come through Mr. Beecher; and second, Mrs. Tilton's safety, which must come through Mr. Beecher and myself.

The committee's assumption that the first charge was improper proposals, afterwards developing into something more serious as the plot went on, Tilton answers by printing the charges of Mr. Wm. F. West on which he was brought before Plymouth Church, and which are now published for the first time. The specifications furnished him by D. F. Talmadge, the clerk, were as follows:

SPECIFICATIONS.

First—In an interview between Theodore Tilton and the Rev. E. L. T. Taylor, D. D., at the office of the Brooklyn Union, in the Spring of 1871, the said Theodore Tilton stated that the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher preached to several (seven or eight) of his mistresses every Sunday evening. Upon being rebuked by Dr. Taylor, he reiterated the charge, and said that he would make it in Mr. Beecher's presence if desired. Witness:

REV. E. L. L. TAYLOR, D. D.

Second—In a conversation with Mr. Andrew Bradshaw in the latter part of November, 1873, Theodore Tilton requested Mr. Bradshaw not to repeat certain statements which had previously been made to him by Mr. Tilton, adding that he retracted none of the accusations which he had formerly made against Mr. Beecher, but that he wished to hush the scandal on Mr. Beecher's account; that Mr. Beecher was a bad man, and not a safe person to be allowed to visit the families of his church; that if this scandal ever were cleared up he (Tilton) would be the only one of the three involved who would be unhurt by it; and that he was silently suffering for Mr. Beecher's sake.

Witness: ANDREW BRADSHAW.

Third—At an interview with Mrs. Andrew Bradshaw, in Thompson's dining rooms, on Clinton street, on or about the 3d day of August, 1870, Theodore Tilton stated that he had discovered that a criminal intimacy existed between his wife and Mr. Beecher. Afterward, in November, 1872, referring to the above conversation, Mr. Tilton said to Mrs. Bradshaw that he retracted none of the accusations which he had formerly made against Mr. Beecher.

Witness: MRS. ANDREW BRADSHAW.

The 3d of August, 1870, was thirty days after Mrs. Tilton's confession and five months before Tilton confronted Beecher. Tilton explains that Mrs. Bradshaw was a "grave and discreet friend of the family," and one of the best known and most honored members of Plymouth Church. He says Mrs. Tilton, herself, afterwards confessed to Mrs. Bradshaw. Mr. Beecher, thinking this record destroyed, says of Mr. West's indictment that it "presented no square issues, on which his (Beecher's) guilt or innocence could be tried." It will be remembered that when the church meeting to which Tilton was summoned took place, he offered to answer any charges which Beecher might then make against him, and Mr. Beecher replied that he had none to make. Tilton was suffered to withdraw without trial, on his taking the ground that he had some years before left the church, and for this course Plymouth Church received a remonstrance from the churches of Rev. Messrs. Storrs and Buddington. Mr. Beecher maintained that his church was independent, and the famous Congregational Council was the result.

The remainder of the statement rests mainly on Tilton's personal evidence, although he proves by his agents that he did not in the Winter of 1871-72 "retire from the lecture field in despair," but had more engagements than any of the hundred or more on the lists of the American Lecture Bureau, with one exception; also by his lawyer's letters and the terms of the written contracts with Bowen that Beecher was not instrumental, as he says he was, in procuring from Bowen the $7000 forfeit for discharging him.

Readables.

The Paducah Kentuckian furnishes the following double-headed snake story: "Captain Howle, a reliable gentleman living near Lovelaceville, told us yesterday about a curious snake shot and killed in his neighborhood the other day. The snake was about three feet long, and about as large as the average forearm of a man. It had two perfectly formed heads, one where the tail ought to have been, and of course had no tail. The man who killed it said that it could travel with either head in front, and those who examined it after it was dead found perfectly developed fangs in both heads."

Bazaine will live in London, and has taken the apartments on King street, St. James, that were once occupied by Napoleon III. in the days when he was called Prince Louis.

The Columbus (Ohio,) Journal says of Gen. Morgan's late speech: For rotund, obese ignorance—for robust, determined misunderstanding of the subject—for sound, vigorous capacity to know nothing, and know it well, know it with exceeding great joy and pride and vainglory—this orator has surpassed the most delirious hope of friend and foe.

The locomotive "Saco," on the Portland and Ogdensburg road, at Cumberland, Me., blew up Tuesday, killing the engineer Geo. A. Smith, of Sebago, and injuring the fireman, Simeon McDonald, and the conductor, H. P. Barrett.

The election returns from all but forty-four towns in Maine, give Dingley 51,306; Titcomb, 40,187; Dingley's majority, 11,119. The forty-four towns yet to be heard from last year gave Dingley a majority of 433.

A sad mishap to Mrs. Scott-Siddons is reported from Portsmouth, England. Not long ago, she was thrown from her horse and injured her spine, and brandy and caustic were prescribed; but the maid removed the brandy in the glass on clearing the table, and the caustic was taken by mistake. She was forced to postpone an appearance at short notice.

A car-load of twenty-one cattle from Buffalo was attacked by a mysterious disorder at Washingtonville, Orange county, N. Y., Saturday. Eight suddenly died, and the others will die. The disease is conjectured to be an affection of the lungs, caused by the recent dry weather and long confinement in the cars.

—A meek-faced, humble-looking individual, in attempting to traverse a bit of banana peel, recently, sat down violently on the sidewalk, and merely remarked: "Grace, mercy and peace."

An Old City by the Sea.

[T. B. Aldrich in Harper's Magazine.]

Concluded.

Fortunate prophecy! Martha went to live as servant with Governor Wentworth at his mansion at Little Harbor looking out toward Seven years passed, and the "thin slip of a girl, who promised to be no great beauty, had flowered into the loveliest of women, with a lip like a cherry and a cheek like a rose—a lady by instinct, one of Nature's own ladies. The governor, a lonely widower, and not too young, fell in love with his fair handmaid. Without stating his purpose to any one, Governor Wentworth invited a number of friends (among others the Rev. Arthur Brown) to dine with him at Little Harbor on his birthday. After the dinner, which was a very elaborate one, was at an end, and the guests were discussing their tobacco pipes, Martha Hilton glided into the room, and stood blushing in front of the chimney place. She was exquisitely dressed, as you may conceive, and wore her hair three stories high. The guests stared at each other, and particularly at her, and wondered. Then the governor, rising from his seat,

"Played slightly with his ruffles, then looked down,
And said unto the Reverend Arthur Brown:
'This is my birthday; it shall likewise be
My wedding-day; and you shall marry me!'"

The rector was dumbfounded, knowing the humble footing Martha had held in the house, and could think of nothing cleverer to say than, "To whom, your excellency?"

"To this lady," replied the governor, taking Martha Hilton by the hand. The Rev. Arthur Brown hesitated. "As the Chief Magistrate of New Hampshire I command you to marry me!" cried the firm old governor.

And so it was done; and so the pretty kitchen-maid became Lady Wentworth, and did ride in her own chariot, after all. She wasn't a woman if she didn't drive by Stavers' hotel!

Lady Wentworth had a keen appreciation of the dignity of her new station, and became a grand lady at once. A few days after her marriage, dropping her ring on the floor, she languidly ordered her servant to pick it up. The servant, who appears to have had a fair sense of humor, grew suddenly near-sighted, and was unable to find the ring until Lady Wentworth stooped and placed her ladyship's finger upon it. She turned out a faultless wife, however; and Governor Wentworth at his death, which occurred in 1770, signified his approval of her by leaving her his entire estate. She married again without changing name, accepting the hand, and what there was of the heart, of Michael Wentworth, a retired colonel of the British army, who came to this country in 1767. Colonel Wentworth (not connected, I believe, with the Portsmouth branch of Wentworths) seems to have been of a convivial turn of mind. He shortly dissipated his wife's fortune in high living, and died abruptly in New York—it is supposed by his own hand. His last words—quite a unique contribution to the literature of last words—were, "I have had my cake and ate it," which show that the colonel, in his own peculiar line, was a finished philosopher.

The seat of Governor Wentworth at Little Harbor—a pleasant walk from Market Square—is well worth a visit. Time and change have laid their hands mere lightly on this rambling old pile than on any other of the old homes in Portsmouth. When you cross the threshold of the door you step into the colonial period. Here the Past seems to have halted courteously, waiting for you to catch up with it. Inside and outside the Wentworth Mansion remains nearly as the old governor left it; and though it is no longer in the possession of the family, the present owners, in their willingness to gratify the decent curiosity of strangers, show a hospitality which has always characterized the place.

The house is an architectural freak. The main building—if it is the main building—is generally two stories in height, with irregular wings forming three sides of a square which opens on the water. It is, in brief, a cluster of whimsical extensions that look as if they had been built at different periods, which I believe was not the case. The mansion was completed in 1750. It originally contained fifty-two rooms; a portion of the structure was removed twenty or twenty-five years since, leaving at present forty-five apartments. The chambers were connected in the oddest manner, by unexpected steps leading up or down, and capricious little passages that seem to have been the unhappy afterthoughts of the architect. But it is a mansion on a grand scale, and with a grand air. The cellar was arranged for the stabling of thirty horse in times of danger. The council chamber, where for many years all questions of vital importance to the State were discussed, is a spacious, high-studded room, finished in the richest style of the last century. It is said that the ornamentation of the huge mantel, carved with knife and chisel, cost the workman a year's constant labor. At the entrance to the council chamber are still the racks for the twelve muskets of the governor's guard—so long ago dismissed!

Some very notable family portraits adorn the walls here, among which is a fine painting—yus, by our friend Copley—of the lovely Dorothy Quincy, who married John Hancock, and afterward became Madame Scott. I have an impression that this is the "Dorothy Q." of Holmes' poem; if so, truly famous lady! Opening on the council-chamber is a large billiard-room; the billiard-table is gone, but an ancient spinnet, with the prim air of an ancient maiden lady, and of a wheezy voice, is there; and in one corner stands an old buffet, near which the imaginative nostril may still detect a faint and tantalizing odor of colonial punch. Opening also on the council-chamber are several tiny apartments, empty and silent now, in which many a close rubber has been played by illustrious hands. The stillness and loneliness of the old house seem saddest here. The jeweled fingers are dust, the merry laughs have turned themselves into silent, sorrowful phantoms, stealing from chamber to chamber. It is easy to believe in the traditional ghost that haunts the place—

"A jolly place in times of old,
But something ails it now!"

The mansion at Little Harbor is not the only notable house that bears the name of Wentworth. On Pleasant Street, at the head of Washington Street, stands the former residence of another colonial worthy, Governor John Wentworth, who went into office in 1767, and went out at the time of the Revolution. He was a royalist of the most decided stripe. In 1775 a man named Fenton, who had become offensive to the patriots, was given shelter in this house by the governor, who refused to deliver the fugitive to the people. The mob planted a field-piece (unloaded) in front of the door-step, and threatened to fire if Fenton were not forthcoming. The family vacated the premises, and the mob entered, doing considerable damage. The broken marble chimney-piece is preserved in its place, mutely protesting against the outrage. Shortly after this event, Governor Wentworth retired to England. He was Governor of Nova Scotia from 1792 to 1800, and died in Halifax in 1820. This is one of the handsomest old dwellings in town, and promises to outlast many of its newest neighbors. The parlor presents the same aspect it wore when the populace rushed into it nearly a century ago; the plush on the walls has not faded, and all the furniture and decorations have been kept in their original positions, and preserved with scrupulous care. In the hall—deep enough for the duel that is always fought in halls in baronial novels—are full-length portraits of the governor and others of the family.

There is still a third Wentworth House, also once occupied by a colonial governor—there were three Governors Wentworth—but that, and a hundred other relics of the past, must remain unnoticed.

The points of interest in and about Portsmouth are innumerable. I have accomplished my end if I have succeeded in intimating this to the reader. The beaches at Rye and Hampton, and the summer resorts inland, annually draw thousands of persons to the neighborhood; for the most part they regard Portsmouth as the place where they purchase their ticket to Boston, or take passage on the little steamer for the Shoals. Yet many of them have crossed the Atlantic, and suffered the hardships and fatigue of foreign land travel, in order to visit localities that can not possibly possess for an American one-half the interest of this Old Town by the Sea.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

A meeting of the victims of the disease known as "hay fever" was held at Bethlehem last week, and a United States association was formed. Judge Brinson of Hartford, Conn., was chosen president, W. M. Davis of Syracuse, N. Y., corresponding secretary, and Frank B. Fay of Chelsea, Mass., recording secretary. The constitution states the object of the association to be "the seeking of information which shall serve to relieve all sufferers with this disease, wherever found." Any person afflicted with hay fever or rose cold can become a member by signing the constitution. The only obligation resting upon members is to report to the recording secretary the discovery of any remedy, or source of relief which may come to his or her knowledge at any time "during their natural life," and afterward if permitted. The next meeting of the association will be held in Bethlehem on the last Monday of August, 1875.

Local Matters.

Inauguration of the City Government.

The members elect of the new city government met at the Court House at half-past ten o'clock, Tuesday, to take the oath of office. We noticed among the distinguished persons present Mayor Horton of Dover.

The Council organized temporarily by choosing George T. Vaughan, Esq., chairman. On motion of Councilman George S. Leach, the Board of Mayor and Aldermen was notified that the members of the Council were ready to take the oath of office.

Mayor Miller being absent, Hon. William H. Y. Hackett was chosen chairman of the convention. The City Clerk then read the resolution of the City Council declaring Hon. Moses H. Goodrich elected Mayor for the ensuing year. Alderman Hackett administered the oath to the Mayor, who in turn administered the oath to the Aldermen and Councilmen. The convention then rose.

The Council balloted for President. Charles W. Norton, democrat, had 11, and Charles C. Akerman, republican, 8, Mercer Goodrich (not a member of the Council,) 1; and Mr. Norton was declared elected.

A message was received from the Board of Mayor and Aldermen stating that the joint rules of the outgoing Board had been adopted.

The Council chose Charles H. Garrett, democrat, clerk. He received 12 votes, to 8 for Henry A. Yeaton, republican.

In convention of both Boards, a ballot for City Clerk resulted as follows. Mercer Goodrich democrat, had 18; Marcellus Bufford, republican, 12; and Mercer Goodrich was declared elected. Prayers were then read by Rev. Joel F. Bingham, D. D., rector of St. John's (Episcopal) church.

Mayor Goodrich then read the following

INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

Gentlemen of the City Councils:—It has been customary for the Mayor elect to address you briefly on the occasion of the annual reorganization of the city government, and to refer to the several subjects which will require your attention in the management of the affairs of the city. Being unexpectedly called to the duties of this office, I am able at the present time to give you little information which is not already in the possession of all of you. The last published statement of the city accounts up to the first day of January, 1874, was distributed in March. To collect and compare the accounts since that time so as to present an exact statement of the financial condition of the city, will require much labor which can be best performed with your assistance and after the organization of the several departments shall be completed. Exact statements of all the current expenses of the city ought soon to be made for your guidance, and I have no doubt the subject will receive your immediate attention.

The general policy which our constituents expect us to pursue, cannot be mistaken. Careful economy in the management of the public money, the reduction of all unnecessary offices, and the correction of abuses, are duties which must be kept in mind at every step in our administration. We are required to bring to the performance of the public business the same care and prudence we would use in our own, while we must remember that we have no right to be liberal with the people's money, and that we ought to make no expenditures which are not authorized by definite laws. And under our present circumstances, I think we ought to confine the expenses of the city within the closest limits the laws allow.

The annual expenses of the city and the rate of taxation have increased since the formation of the city government at a rate which hardly admits of satisfactory explanation or excuse, and which must be checked or it will lead to disastrous results. The whole expenses for the year of 1849, one of the last of the town organization (exclusive of State and County taxes and the town debt and interest thereon, and a large appropriation for building the Haven schoolhouse) were $28,640.64, and the tax assessed was seventy-two cents on the hundred dollars. In the year 1857 the city expenses (excluding State and County taxes and debt and part of the cost of the High school-house) were $32,211.19, and the tax assessed was eighty-one cents on the hundred dollars. In 1873 the city expenses (exclusive of State and County taxes and $8,772.67 expended in the reception of the Sons of Portsmouth) were $110,685.76, and the ratio of taxation has risen to two dollars and thirty-one cents on the hundred dollars. There is no reason to believe that the proportion of expenses has been less the current year. Making all reasonable allowances for the change in the value of gold and the debasement of the currency, I am unable to believe that this enormous increase in the expenses of the city and corresponding taxation of the people is either necessary or justifiable.

It is an evil attending the adoption of a city form of government by a small community that the tendency is continually to imitate the manners and expenses of the larger cities; we adopt too much machinery, and use it without necessity. I trust it will be your effort, in which I shall co-operate to the extent of my ability, to reduce and cut off all extravagances and return as nearly as possible to the primitive simplicity of the better days of the republic.

I desire that the poor shall be supported with humane liberality, that the streets be kept in good order, and that the fire department be maintained in efficient condition; but I believe that in all these departments useful reform may be made and considerable saving effected.

The police and night-watch cost in 1873, $6,269.78; in 1857, $2,648.82; and in 1849 only $2,070.65. It will deserve your consideration whether a large reduction may not be made here consistently with the safety and convenience of the public.

The large balance reported every year, of taxes uncollected, involves serious loss to the city. Your attention will be required to see what changes are necessary to secure the prompt collection of all taxes which ought to be paid, and the abatement of such as have been erroneously assessed, or which for any just cause ought to be remitted.

The natural advantages of the city are such as should invite population and capital and should secure all the advantages of good government at a very moderate cost. And it is worth while for all who have any interest in the city or who desire its prosperity, to co-operate to that end.

Gentlemen, I trust that your deliberations will be harmonious, and agreeable to you, and that I may have your unanimous assistance to maintain the institutions and promote the prosperity of the city.

The convention then rose and both Boards adjourned to Thursday evening, the Council concurring in the adoption of the joint rules of the previous Boards. Mayor Goodrich and two members of the Council were appointed a committee to report to both Boards such offices as could be dispensed with.

City Councils.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Monday evening, special and last meeting, the bill relating to the duties of harbor master was passed.

A. R. H. Fernald's request for leave to remove a tree in Summer street was granted.

In convention of both Boards, the ordinance providing for a declaration of the vote for Mayor having been amended, Hon. Moses H. Goodrich was declared elected Mayor.

The committee on census reported the whole number of inhabitants at 10,043.

The Board refused to grant the petition of T. S. Nowell and others for a sewer in Miller Avenue.

A special committee reported placing Gov. Langdon engine at City Farm.

A vote of thanks to the Mayor and City Clerk was passed.

Aldermen Sise, Lefavour, George and the Mayor were appointed a committee to inform the Mayor elect of his election.

The chairman of the committee on streets reported that he had awarded the contract for laying sewer on Hanover street to D. Shea & Co., for $650.

The Common Council passed in concurrence the bill defining the duties of harbor master; also an amendment to Chap. 15 of the Revised Ordinances relating to sewers.

They also gave notice that they had approved deed of a lot in Cotton's Burying Ground to Benjamin Cheever.

Laconics.

Edmund Coles, the comedian, with a good company, will play "The Black Fiend," a spectacular drama, at the Temple, next Monday evening.

We overheard a young man who had attended the grand temperance reform meetings at Biddeford and had signed the pledge, saying that he hoped "the next glass of rum or beer" he might swallow would choke him!

While the new city government was being sworn in, Tuesday, the democrats rang the ward-room bell, showing as much joy as a lot of school boys would on being informed that each would have a cent to spend on the Fourth of July.

Owing to an increase of business and need of greater facilities, E. Underhill & Co. have removed their harness making establishment to the store under the Franklin House, No. 49 Congress street, formerly occupied by Mr. James A. Rand. A work-shop 22 feet deep is being erected in the rear of the salesroom.

Mayor Miller was present at every meeting of the Board of Aldermen during his term (or half-term) of office; and would not have been absent from the new convention and the inauguration of Mayor Goodrich, at the Court House, Tuesday morning, but for a misapprehension of the circumstances of the case. The necessary ordinance having been passed on Monday evening, and the City Councils in convention having counted the votes and declared Mr. Goodrich elected, Mr. Miller mistakenly supposed his official duties finished when the new Mayor was informed of his election. While the ex-Mayor does not think that he or the republican party owes the democracy any especial courtesy, he would not be lacking in any call of duty.

Salem, Mass., has chosen delegates favoring Dr. George B. Loring for the republican nomination for Governor. Mr. Joseph M. Parsons, formerly of this city, presided at the meeting in the first ward.

One of the democratic common councilmen forgot his instructions to vote for a democratic president of the council, and threw his vote for Mercer Goodrich, who is not a member. He had been told to vote for Mercer for something and forgot the rest of it.

The S. P. C. A. lecture committee is bound to please the public in its selections for this season's entertainments, and has engaged the best musical, literary, scientific and dramatic talent attainable. The course will commence about the 10th of November.

Work has been discontinued on the streets.

The city debt is $171,700, bearing in part five, but mostly six per cent. interest, having been reduced about $5000 this year.

A dozen electricians arrived at Straw's Point, Saturday night, to work the new cable, having sailed in the Cunarder Marathon.

The Boston Journal referring to the proposed clean sweep of officials in this city by the new administration, says "the democrats of Portsmouth have lost an excellent opportunity of showing a grain or two of solid sense."

There are now sixty Chinese students, supported by their government, in Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Grand Temperance Movement.

[Biddeford Times.]

It hardly seems possible that but eight days have passed since the new temperance reform cloud settled over these two cities. One week ago last Sunday about half a dozen well known moderate and immoderate drinkers of these cities while at Old Orchard affixed their names to a total abstinence pledge. The news thereof spread rapidly, and ere nightfall of that eventful day it was noised abroad and became the subject of conversation on the street. Was it possible that those whole-souled, convivial, good time loving gentlemen had renounced their cups? It was true, and they had not only renounced them but stood ready to advocate temperance reform, if thereby they might counteract some of the evil influences their past life may have had on their friends. Everybody seemed satisfied that the reform movement had commenced aright, and few were found bold enough to laugh at the new men in the work.

Hour by hour the movement grew in interest, and many moderate drinkers signed the pledge, while others declared their determination to drink no more, although they were not yet prepared to put their name to the paper. Public opinion sustained the new movement, and ere one week had passed it became very popular, and to-day, probably for the first time in many, many years, dram drinking, either moderate or immoderate, is very unpopular.

The work now begun shows no sign of ceasing; new men are every day putting their hands to the pledge; men who knew what it means to be drunk, and those who only indulged in an occasional glass. It is making itself felt among every class of society. Many a household has already been made happy where only sorrow reigned ten days ago. The rumsellers already tremble and throw mud, for they see that if something is not done to stop it they must quit the business, for they see one after another of their patrons quitting their shops.

Thirty days of such temperance work as the last eight have shown, will show a revolution in certain sections.

Many on the Biddeford side of the river had heard of the wonderful movement in our neighboring city, and when an announcement was made that the City Hall was to be thrown open on Sunday evening and a reform club here formed, the people turned out in large force. The result was that although the night was dark and stormy, City Hall was packed as few ever saw it packed before. From stage to rear, every seat was taken, and hundreds ranged down the sides of the Hall and filled up every available place at the rear, even crowding about the doors and waiting for an opportunity to slide in. The crowd extended down the stairs, and upon the sidewalk and across the street to the Biddeford House. Many hundreds were obliged to go away, unable to gain even a position from which to watch the proceedings in the hall.

Pledges were freely circulated among the audience, and about three hundred signatures obtained.

The meeting at Saco called for half past one was very largely attended and proved one of the best yet held in that city. The meeting closed a nearly three hours' session by singing the "Doxology." In the evening a large and impressive prayer meeting was held in the Hall. It was a powerful meeting, and many persons took part therein.

Business Notices.

Take Courage, Invalids.

Pain and weakness produce despondency, and the invalid who is laboring under bodily torture, debility and mental depression at the same time is indeed in a pitiable condition. But let all who are thus situated take heart. A balm is provided, both for their physical and mental infirmities, in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Among the commonest sources of pain, uneasiness and melancholy are the diseases which affect the stomach, the liver, the alimentary canal, the nerves and the muscles, such as dyspepsia, bilious disorders, constipation, headache, hysterics and rheumatism, all of which yield readily to the regulating, invigorating and purifying influence of this peerless vegetable tonic, stimulant and restorative. Take courage, sorrowful invalids; you will find the help you need in Hostetter's Bitters.

Portsmouth, Sept. 15, 1874.

FRANCES L. KENT, vs. FRANK KENT.

TO THE CIRCUIT COURT,
ROCKINGHAM, SS.

RESPECTFULLY represents FRANCES L. KENT of NEWTON in said county, that she was lawfully married to FRANK KENT of Hampstead in said county on the twenty-sixth day of November, A. D. 1862,—that she and her said husband after the said intermarriage resided together in said Hampstead, in Haverhill in the State of Massachusetts, and in South Berwick in the State of Maine, until the summer of 1870, when they removed to Rollinsford in our county of Strafford, and that she has since resided in the State of New Hampshire,—and that she now resides in said Newton.

Said libellant had one child by her said husband, who is now living, viz: George E. Kent; who is nearly eleven years of age. And said Frances L. Kent avers that since the said intermarriage she has always conducted herself as a faithful, chaste and affection wife toward her said husband; yet, the said Frank, wholly regardless of his marriage covenant and duty, at said Rollinsford, on the fifth day of September, A. D. 1871, and more than three years before the filing of this libel, without sufficient cause, and without her consent, abandoned the said libellant, and now refuses, and during all the time since her said abandonment has refused to cohabit with her.

And said Frances L. Kent further avers that said Frank Kent on said fifth day of September, 1871, at said Rollinsford, without her consent, willingly absented himself from her, and went away to some place to your libellant unknown, without making suitable provision for her maintenance and support, and ever since that time, for more than three years prior, has continued to so absent himself, without making such provision.

Wherefore, the said Frances L. Kent prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony between herself and said Frank Kent may be decreed, and that the custody of said George E. Kent may be committed to her.

FRANCES L. KENT.

O. H. KEY, Solicitor for Libellant.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT,
ROCKINGHAM, SS.

THIS Libel having been filed in the office of the Clerk of said Court this eighth day of September A. D. 1874: It is ordered that said Frances L. Kent notify the said Frank Kent to appear at the next term of said Court, to be holden at Portsmouth on the third Tuesday of October next, and there to show cause, if any he has, why the prayer thereof should not be granted, by causing a true and attested copy of said libel and this order thereon to be published one week in the Portsmouth Daily Chronicle, a newspaper printed at Portsmouth in our County of Rockingham, the last publication whereof to be at least one week before said term. By special order of HON. WILLIAM L. FOSTER, C. J.

C. G. CONNER, Clerk.

A true copy of the original libel, and of the original order thereon.

Attest, C. G. CONNER, Clerk.

Ayer's Hair Vigor.

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy action, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brushy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair re-grows, and baldness, if not too advanced, falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is prized for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for its soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS,

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong,

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its enlivening effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an iron foundation.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever. It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color.

It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood-root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AYER' SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of those same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhœa arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure, health returns.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs!

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

DR. FLINT'S

QUAKER BITTERS.

These celebrated Bitters are composed of choice Roots, Herbs and Barks, among which are Gentian, Sarsaparilla, Wild Cherry, Dandelion, Juniper and other Berries, and are so prepared as to retain all their medicinal qualities. They invariably cure or greatly relieve the following complaints: Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Liver Complaint, Loss of Appetite, Headache, Bilious Attacks, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Ague, Cold Chills, Rheumatism, Summer Complaints, Piles, Kidney Diseases, Female Difficulties, Lassitude, Low Spirits, General Debility, and, in fact, everything caused by an impure state of the Blood or deranged condition of Stomach, Liver, or Kidneys. The aged find in the Quaker Bitters a gentle, soothing stimulant, so desirable in their declining years. No one can remain long unwell (unless afflicted with an incurable disease) after taking a few bottles of the Quaker Bitters.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No render of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted so throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable or substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall on use the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein, and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for such refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

Our new Supervisor has a darkey, who the other day was attending to some duty on the lawn near the road, and six or eight friends of his own color were leaning on the fence, evidently to see that the thing was properly done. That witty contraband, Ike Delily, happened to pass at just this time, and meeting Dr. Mapes, inquired:

"Dr. Mapes, who's dead at Masser Hustis'?"

"No one, I think," replied the doctor.

"Oh, yes," persisted Ike; "there must be somebody dead there, for sartin sure."

"Why, I am positive not," said the doctor; "for I should certainly have heard of it if there had been a death in the family."

"Then," exclaimed Ike, raising his voice, and pointing to the long, lazy row of his sable brethren hanging on the pickets, "what's all dis yer mournin' for, strung along de fence?"

—A fellow rushed into an office with the interrogation: "What's the difference between the mice that have just been eating my greenbacks and the epistles of Paul?" All present subsided, and he gasped: "They're both scripchewers," and then rapidly proceeded to the door.

More trouble is threatened in Louisiana. The Leagues are drilling for a fight.

A consultation was held on Wednesday at Lawrence between representatives of the Boston & Lowell and the Eastern railroads, which promises results of importance. The Eastern was represented by Mr. Charles F. Hatch, general manager, and the Lowell by Colonel John H. George, attorney, and Mr. Oliver, chief engineer. By invitation of both parties, Mayor Tarbox joined the railroad men in examining the ground in and about the city, and in an interchange of opinions in regard to the location of a union station. Two schemes were considered, one to cross the Merrimack above the dam and locate the station on Essex or Lowell street, west of Broadway; another to cross the Merrimack near the foot of the canal, and establish the station near the mouth of the Spicket River. The meaning of the last proposition is understood to be that the Boston and Lowell is contemplating at an early day the formation of a line to Portland.

The porgy factories in the vicinity of Bremen, Me., are closing up for this season. It has been the best season ever known for the business, one firm making over 300,000 gallons of porgy oil, which sells at about forty-five cents per gallon, thus bringing in $135,000.

A correspondent of the American Rural Home says: Raw cabbage composes a part of our dinner every day, and I have various methods of preparing it, but think the following the best: Shave a hard, white cabbage into small strips; take the yolks of three well-beaten eggs, a cup and a half of good cider vinegar, two teaspoonfuls of white sugar, three teaspoonfuls of thick cream, one teaspoonful of mustard mixed in a little boiling water; salt and pepper to suit taste. Mix all but the eggs together, and let it boil; then stir in the eggs, rapidly; turn the cabbage into the mixture and stir well. I always make enough for two days at once, and it keeps perfectly, and is an excellent relish to all kinds of meat.

It is Kate Field's satisfactory consciousness that "the man doesn't live who can boast that he has held her hand more than two or three seconds at a time."

There was a great deal of excitement at New Haven, over the election of three members of the board of education and other minor offices, owing to the fact that a prominent Roman Catholic clergyman had announced from his pulpit that it was time for the Roman Catholics to act and get control of the board, so that their schools might be supported by the public funds. A Catholic ticket was in the field. Two members of the present board are of that religious belief. The excitement called out a vote of over 5000, unprecedented in the history of New Haven school elections. About 1400 votes were cast for the Catholic candidates, but they were defeated, and the regular nominees were elected by a majority of about 1500, the cumulative system being used. Many Roman Catholics condemned the sectarian animus of the others, and refused to vote the Catholic ticket.

How an Interviewer Succeeded.

A correspondent gives the following as his experience in interviewing Mr. Beecher. He called at the parson's home, and, being refused admission at the front door, went to the basement door. He says:

I knocked like a trip hammer and yelled "ice!" Cook opened the door, and I popped in. I found Mr. Beecher looking gaunt—Griffith Gaunt—but he met me with that reverential awe which my presence always inspires.

Says he, "Do you believe it?"

"Can't say yet—I came to find out."

"It's tough on me."

"Yes; but it's bully for the papers."

Then he said, "Poor Theodore."

"Henry," said I, "one question may settle the thing in my mind. When you wrote to Ben Butler that you wished you were dead so far as any act connected Dr. Storrs with the committee in case Elizabeth brought Moulton to trial on an affidavit at Theodore's supposing of course that Gaynor's arrest of Sage was made at Carpenter's appeal, supported by Woodhull on the basis of Cady Stanton's evidence inculpating Susan Anthony—did you mean it?"

Said he, "Put it again."

"Very well. Now I will endeavor to make it plain. When you stated that a better man in your place would be dead if he wished it, presuming, as a matter of caution, that Woodhull's attachment to Butler had been traversed by the Police Court as a defence of Theodore's complaint of Elizabeth's bias toward Storrs' evidence, did you mean to imply a confession that Sage's reference to Moulton's infidelity could only be corroborated by Susan B.'s assertions, when she in her night-cap whispered confidentially to Elizabeth Cady in the same condition—or otherwise?"

Said he:—"I have been reading 'Rollin's Ancient History' all the morning, and I fear my head is mixed. In short, I am afraid I do not take your meaning sufficiently to enable me to answer."

"Good day, sir."

—Some travellers were visiting a cavern in South America. While the party were within, investigating the gloomy interior, there was noticed an old negro standing outside, and he was asked, "Say uncle, why don't you go in? The Skylark's Song.

[Boston Transcript.]

STEAMSHIP CITY OF CHESTER, June 6, 1874.

The second day out from Queenstown, I had been all day miserably ill, but supremely happy, as, with closed eyes, I lived over a lovely excursion which we had made to the outskirts of Queenstown, where the fields and hills and hedges were abloom with their wealth of early summer flowers, and where, above all, I had been told one might reasonably expect to hear a skylark. I dared not hope too much, for I had spent whole hours in the meadows around Gypsy Hill and various other places in vain, and had turned my back on England with this great sorrow in my heart, that I had not heard the skylark's song. What if I had seen the queen? God bless her! And the czar of all the Russias, and princes and princesses not a few? And what availed it that I had heard Patti and Nilsson when I had not heard the songster that sings at the gates of heaven?

Arriving at the fields I separated myself from the party, that no sounds might disturb the silence in which I listened alone for the magic melody which has no counterpart on earth; and it was not long before up sprang a small dark bird from its nest in the grass; up, up he went, singing and soaring until he became only a speck on a light cloud; and there he circled and sang as if his little heart must break for very joy, till the whole sky seemed flooded with a melody of some more gladsome world than ours, for the songster himself had vanished from mortal ken. Suddenly he reappeared as if with some sweet message from beyond that he poured forth in liquid gushes of gladness, and then, as having accomplished his heavenward and earthward mission, dropped into his grassy nest, and I went back to the ship feeling that the next happiest heart to that bird's was mine; so you will not wonder that with so sweet a memory of my last land experience I could be happy though suffering with the first tossings of the sea; and as soon as I was able to wield my pencil I put on paper the following lines:

Oh, green, green fields of Ireland!
Ye ever will be green
Unto my grateful memory,
Though oceans roll between.

For I can ne'er forget the day
When leaning o'er the stile
To list the skylark's bonny song,
Ye did my heart beguile.

The hedges by the narrow lanes
Went winding here and there,
And early summer's wealth of bloom
Was scattered everywhere.

And thou, dear bird! what other song
Was ever heard like thine?
Indeed, thou art no bird at all,
If rightly I divine—

But some intelligence to whom
The blessed boon is given
To telegraph earth's purest joys
Straight to the ear of Heaven.

And having heard thy wondrous song,
Earth will be doubly dear;
And heaven itself hath gained a charm
Since thou wilt sing so near. F. E. F.

How a Reporter became an Inventor.

[Cor. Chicago Post.]

Not long ago the papers of the country were filled with accounts of the steamer Faraday and the new cable she was landing on the coast of New Hampshire. This calls to mind the history of a young reporter of this city, and I repeat it as of interest. The young man referred to came here soon after the close of the war to correspond for the Chicago Post and Albany Journal. He was very young and inexperienced, but a good telegraph operator. Failing to secure the news he wanted by personal observation and investigation, he adopted a method which was as novel as it was successful. He could read the Morse alphabet by sound. This was his stock in trade. Upon it he operated, and for months was recognized as one of the most clever and enterprising news gatherers at the capital. And all without any labor on his part.

He would rise late, stroll down to the Capitol about noon (just when the other correspondents were sending off their despatches,) wander into the telegraph office, listen to the click of the wires, and then write and send a telegram containing all the important items the other men had gathered. It was easily done and eminently successful. Complaint was made of him, but it was unavailing. He overreached, however, and fell. The Washington treaty was being considered in executive session of the Senate. The doors and windows were closed; but nothing could hinder our hero. He climbed to the top of the building, crept over the Senate chamber and lying flat on his face, short-handed every word of the treaty as it came from the lips of the clerk and arose to the ceiling. He sold it to the New York Tribune. The New York Times correspondent was angry and exposed him, and his papers dismissed him.

Unwilling to lie idle he set his active brain to work inventing telegraph instruments. When the French cable had been laid, he had been commissioned to report the event. He boarded the cable ship, and watched the operators of the telegraphers. The method was this: A needle, like that of a compass, swung on a pivot. The current of electricity, coming over the wire, moved it to the right or left. A deviation to the right made a dot; to the left a dash. Thus the Morse alphabet was used. The movements of the needle were so silent that a mirror of great magnifying power was necessary for its profitable reading. Even then but fifteen words could be communicated in an hour. Our hero thought he could do better. So, as I said, he set his wits to work, and after two years' hard labor has just produced his machine. By it he can take fifty words a minute, or more than three times the number that could be received by the old process, and our hero is a prospective millionaire, and but twenty-five years old.

Extinction of the Elephant.

The elephant like the whale, is dying out. In India he is becoming rare. The hunters have driven him further and further inland; unless something be done to protect him, he will before long become, upon the main continent at any rate, wholly extinct, and Sahib will have to import his elephants from Burmah and Ceylon, much as those of Great Britain import horses from Ireland and foxes from any country that will send them in sufficient number and of sufficient size and strength. In Africa, it is true, the evil is not yet past remedy. Over the vast table-lands of that unknown continent, the elephant still roams in countless droves, and still holds in undisputed possession vast tracts to which rum and glass beads, cast-iron muskets and clay pipes, printed calico and coarse gunpowder, have never yet found their way. The respite, however, will probably be but brief. Almost daily caravans start from the Zanzibar coast to the interior, carrying with them all that the native heart needs to make it glad, and willing to take payment in ivory for all that they have to offer. For ten or a dozen large tusks the African chief can dress his wives out in beads and striped calico, furnish himself and his ministers with rum and gunpowder, and can so afford to wait patiently until next year's hunting season commences.

The danger which the chase involves is exaggerated. The elephant is a dangerous beast to meet face to face, but he is easily circumvented by craft. He can be shot with poisoned arrows; he can be frightened by midnight fires, and driven into pitfalls; or if the hunter have the requisite nerve and courage, he can be followed and hamstrung. And so the butchery goes on. Year by year Zanzibar sends inland a large number of bales, and year by year a large number of tusks is carried down to the coast. We may regret the idle waste, but we are powerless to stop it. Nor is it after all, easy to see by what precise arguments we are to convince a native chief that it is his duty to allow the elephant to multiply in peace. What is it to him if in a century or so the elephant be altogether extinct, so long as in the interval he is able to drink his rum and to dress out his ebony charmers in gaudy yellow and red?

But, after all, rapidly extinct as the great brute is becoming, it is yet certain that we shall have supplied his place long before we begin to feel his loss. The tramway will supplant the elephant in India as surely as the train has supplanted the stage-coach in Great Britain; and science will discover some material fully as elastic as ivory, and equally as capable of doing service in the shape of a billiard-ball—the one and only article of modern luxury to which at present ivory is absolutely indispensable. Indeed, it is not improbable that, long before the elephant is finally extinct science may have taught us so to fuse glass as to impart to it all the elasticity of ivory—exactly as it has already taught us to supply the place of the bamboo with cast-iron pillars and pipes, and that of the sponge with fibrous india-rubber.

Robert Fulton's First Report.

The following letter from Robert Fulton to Joel Barlow was published in the Suffolk Gazette, printed at Sag Harbor, on the East end of Long Island, Oct. 12, 1807. It gives an account of the first trip of the first steamboat on the Hudson river, and shows that Fulton was not only a firm believer in steam navigation but in the torpedo system of making war as well.

NEW YORK, 22 Aug., 1807.

My Dear Friend:—My steamboat voyage to Albany and back has turned out rather more favorable than I calculated. The distance from New York to Albany is 160 miles; I ran it up in 32 hours and down in 30 hours. The latter is just 5 miles an hour. I had a light breeze against me the whole way going and coming, so that no use was made of my sails; and the voyage has been performed wholly by the power of the steam engine. I overtook many sloops and schooners beating to windward, and past them as if they had been at anchor.

The power of propelling boats by steam is now fully proved. The morning I left New York there were not perhaps thirty persons in the city who believed that the boat would ever move one mile an hour or be of the least utility. And while we were putting off from the wharf, which was crowded with spectators, I heard a number of sarcastic remarks; this is the way you know in which ignorant men compliment what they call philosophers and projectors.

Having employed much time and money and zeal in accomplishing this work, it gives me, as it will you, great pleasure to see it so fully answer my expectations. It will give a quick and cheap conveyance to merchandize on the Mississippi, Missouri and other great rivers which are now laying open their treasures to the enterprise of our countrymen. And although the prospect of personal emolument has been some inducement to me, yet I feel infinitely more pleasure in reflecting with you on the immense advantage that my country will derive from the invention.

However, I will not admit that it is half so important as the torpedo system of defence and attack; for out of this will grow the liberty of the seas; an object of infinite importance to the welfare of America, and every civilized country. But thousands of witnesses have now seen the steamboat in rapid movement, and they believe—but they have not seen a ship of war destroyed by a torpedo, and they do not believe. We cannot expect people in general to have a knowledge of physics, or power of mind sufficient to combine ideas and reason from causes to effects. But in case we have a war, and the enemy's ships come into our waters, if the government will give me reasonable means of action, I will soon convince the world that we have surer and cheaper modes of defence than they are aware of. Yours, &c.,

ROBERT FULTON.

Sun Cure for Consumptives.

The author of "Life Under Glass" sends to the Boston Transcript an interesting letter from Dr. Pease, a physician of San Francisco, giving some curious results of his experience in the use of colored glass as a medium for the transmission of the sun's rays in the treatment of lung disease. The writer of the communication being himself a victim to weak lungs, gave special attention to the subject from personal as well as professional interest.

His attention was directed to the matter by an incident in his own experience. During the autumn of 1863, he was at home in Boston on "sick leave" for the army, and was in the habit of frequenting the photograph gallery of a friend. The operating room of this gallery was lighted by a large skylight of light blue glass, and the walls were tinted of the same color. He soon noticed that he invariably felt better after an hour or two passed in this gallery, and was finally convinced that the beneficial effect was largely due to the blue light. After the war he began a series of experiments among his patients by using blue glass. As the light from purely blue glass is not entirely agreeable to the eye, he alternated the panes with clear glass. This was an improvement, and he went on with his experiments until he attained the highest sanitary power in a purple or light violet color, the red in the staining making the light pleasant to bear.

Dr. Pease makes it a fundamental principle of his practice that his patients, whatever their disease, shall have all the sunlight possible, and he is convinced that consumptives have been much benefited by the use of violet-colored glass as a medium for the transmission of the sun's rays.

The glass remedy has also been used in nervous diseases and diseases from nervous injuries, with marked improvement in the condition of the patients, and with an equally marked change for the worse when for a time the glass remedy was discontinued. He suggests that the red ray in the violet seems to have a special healing power, and gives an interesting illustration in proof of his assertion. In a case of lung disease pronounced incurable he used glass of a very red purple, and the patient sat in this light whenever it was possible. Internal remedies were given at the same time and the result was a complete cure.

These facts are very simple and easily comprehended. The subject is one of wide interest, and may be easily illustrated by personal experiment. Even if there is no hope of permanent cure for consumptives, any treatment that will alleviate suffering and prolong life, demands thorough investigation. The sun's power, as the great remedial agent, is more fully believed in than it ever has been before. If the violet ray of the spectrum comes freighted with healing on its wings for suffering humanity, let all the physicians and invalids in the world learn the cheerful tidings. The more sunshine the better, is a safe motto for invalids as well as for healthy persons. If it is more beneficial to take doses of sunshine through violet glass, it will be an easy matter to carry out the suggestion, and the San Francisco physician deserves a gold medal for his discovery if it can be substantiated by a wider field of observation.

A Curious Insurance Case.

A practical illustration of what an insurance company is liable to pay in case of loss has just been decided in the adjustment of the loss of Oliver Ditson & Co. This was a loss from fire, March 24, 1874, on which the assured made a claim approaching $100,000, on property valued at $150,000. A tedious investigation by two very competent business men familiar with stock merchandise—the immense stock being carefully examined in detail, to determine its true character and value—resulted in an adjustment of the loss at $37,000 by agreement, thus conceding to the insurers, what they claim, that a valuation arbitrarily made upon merchandise virtually shut out from open and free competition is not "market price," based upon the assumption that the insurers were liable for an arbitrary valuation established by and for the music trade by a combination or board of trade of the music publishers. This arbitrary valuation covers a very heavy profit on the cost of producing this kind of property. Of course the whole question has turned upon this—whether such a valuation was in any true and legitimate sense "market price," as understood by underwriters or the public generally. The sheet music, on which was claimed $48,000, was appraised at $11,000, and adjusted at $8700. There were 375,000 sheets, making a pile 600 feet high. There were 600,000 books valued.

Feels Funny.

The Rochester Chronicle can't help laughing over the Vermont election:

Speaking of Vermont, we don't believe Mount Etna is going to erupt much this year.

The glorious old Green Mountain State—Young man, pass those statistics this way.

Poland attempted to gag the press, and, somehow or other Poland gagged himself. It is the old story of the man who shut himself up alone in order to color his pipe. The man was found dead; for lo! the pipe had colored him.

We plainly perceive that the period is approaching when time shall be no more.

—A minister in Aberdeenshire sacrificed so often and so freely to the jolly god that the presbytery could no longer overlook his proceedings, and summoned him before them to answer for his conduct. One of his elders, constant companion in his social hours, was cited as a witness against him. "Well, John, did you ever see the Rev. Mr. C——— the worse of drink?" "Weel, a wot no; I've mony a time seen him the better o't, but I ne'er saw him the waur o't." "But did you ne'er see him drunk?" "That's what I'll ne'er see; for before he be half slockened I'm aye blind fu'."

—In the Savannah market, a man from the country sat down upon the slats of a box which happened to contain a high turtle. The turtle reached for him, and the reporter who describes the incident predicts that the man "will carry the marks to his grave."

—"Where was Bishop Latimer burned to death?" asked a teacher in a commanding voice. "Joshua knows," said a little girl at the bottom of the class. "Well, if Joshua knows, he may tell." "In the fire," replied Joshua, looking very grave and wise.

—When John Morrissey colors his moustache in Saratoga, they call it the dyeing gladiator.

Business Notices.

Too Late.

The way men put off important matters to the last moment is one of the curious things in nature. The 40th concert in aid of the Public Library of Kentucky was advertised to take place July 31. The day after, August 1, Gov. Bramlette, the manager at Louisville, received over $50,000 for tickets. Had the drawing taken place at that time the Governor would have had to send this money back, but as the concert was postponed to November 30, it was all right with them. We presume that on the first day of December next, the day after the concert, thousands of dollars will be received, one day too late, for there will be no further postponement. This money might just as well have been sent a week before, as when it was. eod&6t24

"Not Very Well."

A feeling of vague bodily discomfort, which does not amount to positive illness, and yet is incompatible with health, is often aptly described by the phrase, "Not very well." This feeling usually arises from a deficiency of the nervous power which is required to keep the vital machinery in vigorous and healthful operation. Nervous weakness has too frequently proved to be the prelude of some serious malady to admit of any doubt in the matter. Inactivity of the bodily functions as surely begets their disarrangement as cause precedes effect. It is therefore absolutely essential for the preservation of health, perhaps of life itself, that this warning should be promptly heeded. The case does not admit of delay. Revitalize the system at once and effectually with Hostetter's Bitters—that peerless invigorant which, by infusing new health and strength into the system protects it against disease more surely than ever knight of old was protected by armor of proof against the foe.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

The ties for the Nashua and Rochester Railroad to be laid west of Epping have been brought here, and fifteen cargoes from Nova Scotia have been sent over the Concord and Portsmouth Railroad to Epping Junction. A new station-house for the occupancy of the Nashua & Rochester and Concord & Portsmouth roads is being put up at Epping.

DeWitt Clinton Commaudery turned out in goodly numbers, Wednesday afternoon, with the Dover Cornet Band, to receive Cœur de Lion Commandery, Most Eminent Commander William H. Kent, of Charlestown, and their guests, Palestine Commandery, Most Eminent Commander William D. Seeley, of Chelsea, and twenty-five Sir Knights of William Parkman Commandery of East Boston. The visiting Commanderies numbered nearly two hundred persons. After a short parade through the principal streets, carriages were taken at South Mill Bridge for "The Wentworth." The Palestines had Brown's Brigade Band with them.

The Times begrudges the salaries drawn by republican city officers for the remainder of this month, and whines because the legislature didn't provide for making "a clean sweep" on the 22d of September instead of nine days after. What a set of starvelings these democratic sleuth-hounds are!

Full returns from every town in York county shows the following majorities: Dingley, 915; Burleigh, 1279; Senators, average, 852; Ivory Lord received 87 more votes than Benj. F. Last Hours of Parepa-Rosa.

[Lucy Hooper in Philadelphia Press.]

I have recently heard some touching details connected with the last hours of the beloved and lamented Parepa-Rosa. She was in unusual health and spirits during the days that immediately preceded her death, and, one day, she not only rehearsed the whole of "Lohengrin," but also entertained some company in the evening. That night her child was born—dead. On learning the fact of the death of this ardently expected and long-desired infant, the shock seemed to turn the poor mother's brain; she became delirious, wildly accusing herself of having caused the death of her child by imprudence and over-exertion, and in that state she continued till her death. Her husband is sadly broken down both in health and spirits by his great loss, and though he is now engaged in forming an English opera troupe to travel during the coming season through the leading cities of Great Britain, he is said to be totally indifferent and spiritless, possessing scarce a shadow of his old business energy and artistic enthusiasm. How well I remember the grand farewell performance of the Parepa-Rosa troupe in New York; the crowded house, the overwhelming enthusiasm, the scarcely concealed emotion of the sweet and lovable and womanly prima donna, and the agitated farewell speech of Carl Rosa himself: "God willing," he cried, "we will soon be with you again!" But God was not willing, for the other half of that "we" will never return to us any more.

Murders for Fun.

Gail Hamilton, who usually hits the nail on the head when she strikes, but often pounds it in deeper than safety requires, frees her mind upon "murders for fun," with characteristic vigor. She deprecates the maudlin sentiment that shudders at the thought of sending into another world, where for aught we know they may be born again as pure and perfect as the happy infants of this one, the little abnormal monsters who stick knives into children in order to enjoy their tortures, or to drown a playmate "to see the little devil kick in the water," as one of these young fiends said. She says that it is as sure as statistics that if Jesse Pomeroy is sent to prison for life he will be pardoned out at the end of six years, to renew his atrocities on an enlarged scale. If nature puts out a bad piece of work, she would have it returned on her hands, and thinks to whatever world these maniacal children may go, they cannot find one that has less use for them or is less adapted to their peculiarities than this. If it is generally understood that society has a mania for hanging all little girls and boys who have a mania for murdering other little girls and boys, it may be possible to keep mania the first under until such time as it may be possible to repress it altogether.

—During a performance in the Metropolitan Theatre, in Sacramento, California, a few nights ago, it was ascertained that a large number of young "hoodlums" had managed to gain access to the loft of the building, from whence they could look down through the ventilators upon the stage, and several men connected with the theatre, accompanied by two policemen, went up to dislodge them. While they were doing so the occupants of the loft flew around nervously to avoid arrest, and three of them, in their fright, made missteps, and their legs passed through the ceiling and dangled in sight of the audience below. The falling plaster, and the jar of the building occasioned by the general shrinking of the audience created the impression that an earthquake had occurred, and quite a panic ensued.

—A Pennsylvania paper foolishly asks if Goldsmith Maid will lecture this Winter, just as though she would have anything to do with a stage.

Mulligan up a Telegraph Pole.

It is a true saying that necessity is the mother of invention, and it is wonderful the amount of activity that can be got out of a man's legs and arms under a pressure of excitement.

Now, ordinarily, Mulligan hasn't enough gum-elastic in his heel for a little dance, but the way he established his reputation as the champion climbist, on Broadway, the other day, was wonderful to see, and if he can find Jack's beanstalk it is probable he will undertake a trip to the moon or the comet on a wager.

He had been reading about mad dogs until his teeth would rattle if he saw a poodle on a door-step, and he'd stick his eyes around a corner to see if any dog was coming before he'd venture on the turn; and as he naturally supposed he had been scratched by the teeth of pet dogs in his childhood, he never would venture to bed at night until he had first drank a glass of water to see if it would bring on spasms, and of course this was all getting him high strung for a little adventure. He was coming down town the other morning, when, suddenly, there appeared around the corner a half-grown pup, which came into Broadway evidently in search of a master. It was a friendly thing, and was so glad to see Mulligan that it came running to him, twistiug itself into all sorts of shapes, in evidence of friendship, which the horror-stricken Mulligan imagined to be the contortions of hydrophobia. He dodged round the hydrant with that pup at his heels; he yelled "be gone!" and "git out!" but the pup didn't know what that meant, and thought Mulligan was in for a play, so it barked and set its teeth in the legs of his pantaloons in the most dog-goned, hilarious manner. It was all fun for the dog, but it was a horrible, blood-curdling affair to Mulligan. He knew that dog had been laying for him to bite him, and now his worst fears were all realized; he was in the power of a mad dog that already had its poisonous fangs set in his pants, and the next hitch would be on his shins. He saw but one way of escape; that was up the telegraph pole, and in the few but awful moments in which he was reaching the pole, with the pup hanging to his leg, his whole life passed in review before him. He regretted that he had never practised climbing telegraph poles and water spouts, or the daring feats of the flying trapeze, and he resolved that if he ever got away from that dog safely he would at once join the repairing force of a telegraph company—he'd eat and sleep on the poles, and never come down in dog-days.

Just as he reached the pole the pup gave a vigorous shake at his pants and Mulligan went up that pole without climbing spurs at the rate of seventeen feet per second. It would have made a monkey envious, only that Mulligan had no tail to lash himself on by. Of course the dog let go when Mulligan began to leave the earth behind him; but that pup was too young to be engaged in any business, so it had nothing else to do but wait for Mulligan to come down. He stuck so close up there that it was difficult to tell which was pole and which was Mulligan. The crowd gathered round and formed a ring to watch the result—some bet on Mulligan, and others bet on the dog. Then some of Mulligan's friend came along and raised a yell when they saw him up there, which disconcerted him so that he slid down the pole so fast it set him on fire, and the pup made a rush for him just as a little boy that owned it grabbed it up in his arms and started off with it.

Water has no effect on Mulligan now, but the sight of a telegraph pole sets him in a rage, and when a passenger brought him a telegram the other night from his mother-in-law, saying she was coming to stay while his wife was at Saratoga, so that his bed would always be ready for him at ten o'clock, he chased that messenger boy seventeen blocks, and it was the quickest return trip ever made from that branch office.

—A woman was placed on trial in the Chester (Pa.) court last week, charged with disturbing a religious meeting by riotously eating peanuts. The evidence for the prosecution was that, although she was repeatedly requested to desist, she made a loud noise by her munching, and crushed the shells with her hands, declaring to the deacon that she should eat peanuts whenever she wanted to. The woman was discharged.

THE fine country residence and farm formerly occupied by Rev. John F. Adams,—buildings in thorough repair, land well divided into mowing and tillage; fine fruit orchard, etc., well known for the large quantity of splendid strawberries produced. The house has an evergreen hedge around it and the buildings are in thorough repair. There is a fruit orchard of 300 apple trees, 20 cherry trees and as many pear trees—and a nursery with 1300 young apple trees. From the grape vines on the place fifteen bushels of fruit have been sold in a season, besides abundance retained for home use. Part of the land heavily wooded and there is a great quantity of muck on the estate. In the pasture there is a never-failing spring. The farm is situated midway between depots of Eastern and Concord railroads. For sale at a bargain, if enquired for immediately,—of O. G. Ayer's Hair Vigor.

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair re-grows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

—An enraged baggage-smasher, whose soul was first made sad and then angry at the continued interference of the press in a matter which concerns only him and his patrons, has written a letter to say that "if people would travel with trunks weighing no more than a hundred pounds, there would be little reason to complain of damaged trunks. When trunks balancing four, six or even seven hundred pounds, come down on baggage-men's arms, they must necessarily drop with some momentum. No man could continue to lift this heavy luggage and live." There are, perhaps, two sides to the vexed question of baggage-smashing.

—The night clerk of a Burlington hotel was startled about 11 o'clock by the following conversation, at a time when he supposed he was alone in the office: "Come long, you hoodlum, let's go up stairs." "Go nothin'," was the gruff reply; "lets wait till the midnight train comes in; there's nothing you can get blood out of in the house now." And the amazed and horrified clerk could see nobody in the room but two old gray mosquitoes, dozing on a Saratoga trunk.

FRANCES L. KENT, vs. FRANK KENT.

TO THE CIRCUIT COURT, ROCKINGHAM, SS.

RESPECTFULLY represents FRANCES L. KENT of Newton in said county, that she was lawfully married to FRANK KENT of Hampstead in said county on the twenty-sixth day of November, A. D. 1862,—that she and her said husband after the said intermarriage resided together in said Hampstead, in Haverhill in the State of Massachusetts, and in South Berwick in the State of Maine, until the summer of 1870, when they removed to Rollinsford in our county of Strafford, and that she has since resided in the State of New Hampshire,—and that she now resides in said Newton.

Said libellant had one child by her said husband, who is now living, viz: George E. Kent; who is nearly eleven years of age. And said Frances L. Kent avers that since the said intermarriage she has always conducted herself as a faithful, chaste and affection wife toward her said husband; yet, the said Frank, wholly regardless of his marriage covenant and duty, at said Rollinsford, on the fifth day of September, A. D. 1871, and more than three years before the filing of this libel, without sufficient cause, and without her consent, abandoned the said libellant, and now refuses, and during all the time since her said abandonment has refused to cohabit with her.

And said Frances L. Kent further avers that said Frank Kent on said fifth day of September, 1871, at said Rollinsford, without her consent, willingly absented himself from her, and went away to some place to your libellant unknown, without making suitable provision for her maintenance and support, and ever since that time, for more than three years together, has continued to so absent himself, without making such provision.

Wherefore, the said Frances L. Kent prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony between herself and said Frank Kent may be decreed, and that the custody of said George E. Kent may be committed to her. FRANCES L. KENT.

O. H. KEY, Solicitor for Libellant.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT, ROCKINGHAM, SS.

THIS Libel having been filed in the office of the Clerk of said Court this eighth day of September A. D. 1874: It is ordered that said Frances L. Kent notify the said Frank Kent to appear at the next term of said Court, to be holden at Portsmouth on the third Tuesday of October next, then and there to show cause, if any he has, why the prayer thereof should not be granted, by causing a true and attested copy of said libel and this order thereon to be published one week in the Portsmouth Daily Chronicle, a newspaper printed at Portsmouth in our County of Rockingham, the last publication whereof to be at least one week before said term. By special order of HON. WILLIAM L. FOSTER, C. J.

Attest, C. G. CONNER, Clerk.

A true copy of the original libel, and of the original order thereon.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,

For all the Purposes of a Family Physic

CURING

Costiveness, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Dysentery, Foul Stomach and Breath, Erysipelas, Headache, Piles, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Tetter, Tumors and Salt Rheum, Worms, Gout, Neuralgia, as a Dinner Pill, and purifying the Blood,

are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA- DEBILITY- DROPSY AND HUMORS

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, so easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

THOUSANDS have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

by a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN

HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever. It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effective or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, as desired. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AYER' SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhœa arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure, health returns.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs!

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

DR. FLINT'S

QUAKER BITTERS.

These celebrated Bitters are composed of choice Roots, Herbs and Barks, among which are Gentian, Sarsaparilla, Wild Cherry, Dandelion, Juniper and other Berries, and are so prepared as to retain all their medicinal qualities. They invariably cure or greatly relieve the following complaints: Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Liver Complaint, Loss of Appetite, Headache, Bilious Attacks, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Ague, Cold Chills, Rheumatism, Summer Complaints, Piles, Kidney Diseases, Female Difficulties, Lassitude, Low Spirits, General Debility, and, in fact, everything caused by an impure state of the Blood or deranged condition of Stomach, Liver, or Kidneys. The aged find in the Quaker Bitters a gentle, soothing stimulant, so desirable in their declining years. No one can remain long unwell (unless afflicted with an incurable disease) after taking a few bottles of the Quaker Bitters.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein, and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for boiling tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, for which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city. m25 d3m

Daily Chronicle.

A Joke Well Taken.

Two or three weeks ago, says the Detroit Free Press, a very squint and very solemn boy took a seat on the wharf at the foot of Griswold street, and began to fish. There are, mayhap, fish at the foot of Griswold street, but probably a man or boy might fish there 10,000 years, and never get a bite, because those fish—if any there are that frequent that locality, have had their eye teeth cut, and know their business. Steamers and boats are passing, men shouting and drays rolling, and the fish have a good deal to think of. But this boy didn't look into the case. He may have heard theories and speculations, but he kept them to himself and kept on fishing. Men asked him if he had got a bite, and the boys told him to be careful and not exhaust the supply, but four or five hours per day he sat there and fished, unmindful of what was said or done. He pulled up the line once in a while, surveyed the piece of meat on the hook, saw that it was there, and then it went down again to wait for a sturgeon. At last the boy's patience and perseverence excited general notice, and men said it was too bad he didn't get any fish. Saturday afternoon three or four individuals planned to call him away from his line for a moment and while he was gone one of them fastened a big, dried herring to the hook. The boy returned and resumed his fishing, and finally he hauled up and saw the herring. He was too astonished to speak for a time, but he finally unhooked the fish, laid it aside, and put a piece of scrap iron on it to keep it from escaping; pretty soon he was as solemn as ever. One of the men felt piqued at the boy's lack of enthusiasm, and stepping forward he said, "Well, bub, had any luck?" "One herring," replied the boy in solemn tones. "And what do you expect to catch now?" continued the man. The boy waited a long time before answering, and then mournfully glancing at the herring he replied: "Crackers and cheese to go with him!" He is still fishing.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1874.

The Tennessee Ku Klux.

A correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial, who is writing from Tennessee about the disturbances there, says:

"The great mass of the people of Tennessee are law-abiding, and deplore the present condition of things, but they allow themselves to be run over by the lawless element, which, although in the minority, is desperately aggressive. This lawless class is animated by an absorbing antipathy to the negroes, an antipathy which has been increased and aroused by the rumors which spread through the rural districts regarding the Civil Rights bill. Living so far away from the scenes of these race-turmoils, you cannot imagine what immense harm has been done by the agitation of that subject. I verily believe that five negroes have been killed in the South for every republican Senator who voted for the bill. And I fear we are but at the beginning of trouble."

In a letter dated September 12th he relates the following:

"Old Dick McKinley was an inoffensive old negro living in Putnam county. He was held in high respect by the whites, for he attended strictly to his own business, and voted the democratic ticket. The only thing the Ku Klux had against him was that he had 'made threats' that if the Ku Klux came to his house at night he would give them a warm reception with a double barreled shot-gun. He kept a shot-gun loaded in his cabin.

One night, about the middle of August, eight Ku Klux sailed down on McKinley at the hour of midnight. He had 'made threats' and must suffer. The fact that he voted with 'our people' could not save him. When Old Dick heard the Ku Klux at the door he went for his shot-gun, but it was missing. The family had moved it and neglected to tell him. In the confusion it could not be found. The Ku Klux beat down the door; Dick grabbed an axe to defend himself, when one of the party shot him in the bowels, but Dick gave him a parting blow with the axe. Another Ku Klux, Apple by name, wrenched the axe from Dick's grasp, and broke the poor negro's skull with it so that his brains protruded. But this was not enough. Another, James Bush, shot Dick again as he lay on the ground, mangled, helpless, dead.

This cruel and unprovoked murder aroused the citizens of Putnam. The Governor offered $500 reward. One Franklin Hall was arrested on suspicion, and lodged in jail. To save his own self, he turned State's evidence, confessed, and implicated Joe Petty, Tim Apple, James Bush, John Bush, Allen Draper, Buford Calicut and Carroll Reed. Warrants were issued for their arrest, and the authorities seemed on the track of some genuine Ku Klux. James Bush and Calicut were captured and put in jail along with Hall.

Now we have another chapter. On Wednesday night, the 2d instant, a party of masked men rode into Cookeville, the county seat of Putnam. They overpowered the jailor and took the three prisoners out. In the edge of the town they shot Hall, the witness, to death, notwithstanding his piteous appeals for mercy. But there was no mercy for him. He had implicated the members of the Klan, turned witness against them, and must die, and die he did. The others were taken off in triumph.

Now what are the civil authorities in Putnam to do? Their actions show them to be in earnest in their attempts to enforce the law, but how can they help themselves in the face of such organized gangs of masked murderers? This leads me to say, as I have said before, that in many counties of West and Middle Tennessee the civil authorities are powerless, and the laws are trampled under the feet of masked mobs. If a negro commits an offence and gets into jail, the masked mob can take him out and hang him without law, judge or jury. If one of their own gang is jugged they can break down the jail and liberate him. If one turns evidence against them they murder him. Courts, jails, judges and civil authorities are not in their way. They over-ride and trample under their feet the whole legal machinery."

"Nigger-Hunting."

CONFEDERIT X ROADS,
(Wich is in the State uv of Kentucky,)
August 27, 1874.

The Corners hev, up to a very recent date, enjoyed the most profound pease. I bein the only one of the old stock wich kin read, our people have never bin vexed with the Beecher-Tilton scandal, and thank Heaven Bascom hez rekovered from the effect of the Croosade, and his grocery is runnin ez yoozual. Pollok and Bigler was tendin to their biznes tollerably decent, and not botherin uv us very much; the niggers come to town only ez often ez they cood help, and, in short, the corners hez been ez serene ez an average Joon mornin. The crops wuz lookin tollerable well, notwithstanding the diffikulty uv gettin labor, (for niggers wuz all workin for theirselves, and our people will never do meenyal servis till they are compelled to) and Bascom wuz reely cheerful with the certainty of gettin suthin on account ez soon ez the harvest wuz over.

Things wuz a runnin this way till one mornin the nooze reacht us uv the nigger outrages in Owen County, ez well ez similar ones in Texas and Mississippi. No matter what nooze don't reach us, them uv nigger outrages alluz comes direct and promptly.

Immeditly Deekin Pogram began to get oneasy. Issaker Gavitt began to cleen his double-barrel shot gun, and Capt. McPelter appeared at Bascom's with two navy revolvers slung to himself.

"Why this warlike array?" I asked. "Why this armin of yourselves ez if a deadly and imminent fray wuz impendin?"

Capt. McPelter replied that there wuz a fiery and wicked devil abroad. The niggers wuz in insurreckshun in Owen County and everywhere else, and it wuz his unbiassed opinyun that the niggers uv the Corners and visinity wuz meditatin an uprisin, and for one he proposed to be prepared for it. The white race hed suffered enuff from bein ground into the yearth by the yoosurpers, and his blood biled when he thot uv it. Shood niggers—an inferior race—lord it over the proud Caucashin? Shood their heels be forever on our necks? It wuz the dooty uv every white man to protest agin bein thus enslaved.

And Capt. McPelter askt us all to take suthin, wich we did with the alacrity wich hez ever distinguished the Cross Roads. About this time Deeken Pogram came in. It is a singler thing, and a providenshul one, that the Deeken alluz does come in jest ez somebody invites all present to take suthin. He is forchnit in that respect. And one by one all the reglers dropped in. To these McPelter expressed his feers uv a nigger uprisin, and after ten or a dozen drinks all round, the danger seemed so imminent that it wuz deemed wise and prudent to arm and wait for the bustin uv the comin storm. Accordingly messengers wuz sent out to get sech arms ez wuz handy at their respective houses. The rifles, shot guns and revolvers wuz cleened up and loaded, and we waited calmly for the comin uv the black hosts.

But they didn't come, and after waitin awhile Capt. McPelter, who hed histed in ten or a dozen drinks, sejested that the best thing to do under the circumstances would be to go and look for the invaders.

"This thing," sed the Captain, "shood be nipt in the bud. In such matters ez this the heroic treatment is the best. Look to the caps on your guns, and let us hence."

And takin another drink or two, we sallied out to find the gatherin host that hed determined upon our destrukshun. We wuz a gallant force. By the time we got fairly under way there wuz a hundred uv us, armed to the teeth, with weapons offensive and defensive.

We diskivered no nigger till we got outside the village. The first one we saw wuz a bloodthirsty wretch who wuz a hoein corn. He looked at us and glared defiance, leanin in an offensive manner on his hoe.

One look uv hizzen wuz suffishent to inflame Capt. McPelter with rage.

"That double-dyed villain voted the cleen republikin ticket last fall—ef he lives he will do it agen this fall."

And puttin his faithful gun to his shoulder he giv one look at the hidjus bein, and shoutin "Deth to our persecooters!" drawed the trigger.

There wuz one feendish persecooter less, for the top uv that nigger's head wuz blowed into an adjinin field.

Fortunately there happened to be ten or a dozen niggers conspiring agin us in ez many different feelds in the visinity, and when they heerd the report uv McPelter's gun they came running to the spot. Seein the lifeless body of their fellow-invader a lying there, and notisin that McPelter wuz calmly reloadin the empty barl uv his shotgun, they defiantly fled in every direkshun. This wuz enuff. This wuz the last feather on the white camel's back. Ef they wuz innosent of intendin harm to us, why did they fly? Do innosent men fly like hoss-theeves in the night?

Capt. McPelter gave the word and a pursoot commenced, the heroism uv wich hez seldom bin ekalled in the history uv the world. Away thro the corn, over the stubble, down the gulches, and over the hills we chased the infooriated demons. The reassurin note uv the revolver, the swisly explosion uv the shot-gun, the clear sharp ring uv the deadly rifle wuz heerd in all direkshuns, proclamin each in its own sweet voice that the proud Caucashin wood never, never, never rest with the heel uv an inferior race onto his neck.

At this pint came the catastrofy wich set the blood uv the Corners bilin. That venerable saint, Deekin Pogram, wuz clost behind one of the wampires, and hed his shotgun raised and a bead drawd onto him. Jist as he pulled the trigger the infamous nigger dropt, and the slugs and buckshot passed harmlessly over him. Before the good old man could cock the other barl the bloodthirsty demon turned and knocked him down with his hoe, wich weepin he hed doubtless kept with him for the purpose. When Issaker Gavit came up he found the Deekin welterin in his goar, and the feend who had thus slaked his thirst for blood runnin away in the most insultin manner. Issaker is a man of decision. His shot-gun wuz at his shoulder in a minit, and in a second more that nigger hed paid the penalty of his crime. His body wuz a leadmine.

Uv coarse after this there wuz no compermising with these demons. It wuz a struggle for life, and we realized the fact. Loadin our guns and seein that the caps were all good and liable to go off properly, we started after em afresh, determined to protect our homes and firesides, at no matter what hazzad. The news uv our comin preceded us, and the conspirators, doubtless in pursoot uv their polisy, took to the woods. We follered em ez rapidly ez we cood, but we only overtook five uv them. Them we shot at site, and them ez we didn't find at home burned their cabins.

Then come another trouble onto us. We shood hev cleened out the entire bilin uv em, but Joe Bigler and Pollock hed heern uv our summary defence, and hed gathered a lot uv niggers and armed em and they appeared onto the scene. Bigler remarked to me that the party had better disperse, and he emphasized his remark by drawin the ugliest navy revolver I ever saw, and kiver-in me with it.

"Parson," sed he, "ef there is a man uv koo in sight in three minits, this yer pistol goes off, and yoo are ez dead a man ez ever wuz put under ground. Do yoo hear?"

I did hear, and so did all the party. They wuz irresoloot, and I shivered with dread. Wood they permit me to become a corpse? No, I owed every man uv em, and they knowd that the only chance uv ever gettin their pay wuz in my livin. Ef the next President shood be a democrat, an offis wood enable me to pay—dead, I wuz good for nothin to em for any purpose. They wavered a minit—Bascom figgered ez to wich wuz better, to let me go and sink wat I owed him, or to save me and make the indebtedness bigger, on the chance uv a democratic success. He finally decided to chance it, and I wuz saved. They dispersed.

We hed a meetin the same nite, however, and pledged ourselves to resist to the death every attempt to subjoogate us, and to lay down our lives ef need be ruther than submit to nigger rool at the Corners, nor allow niggers to oppress us in anyway. The Corners is now serener than it hez bin for years.

PETROLEUM V. NASBY,
(Wich wuz Postmaster.)

Determined to Get an Answer.

[Boston Bulletin.]

A tall, portly, dignified citizen of the Quaker persuasion, well known in Philadelphia, arrived in New York, and having no baggage but a light travelling satchel, was utterly oblivious to the appeals of the hackmen as he emerged from the railway station.

"Fee—thayaneo hotel! Fifth avenue—go in' ritup! Fifth avenoo?"

Broadbrim stalked right on without a word. Another knight of the whip charged down upon him.

"Say Nicholas Hotel! Say Nicholas Hotel coach? This way for the S'Nicholas!"

No response from the passenger, and not a muscle moved at this appeal. Then there was a rush of half a dozen.

"Kerridge, sir, kerridge? Wanter ride up?"

"Winsur House? Whose going up to the Winsur?"

"Astor House, sir?"

"Breevort House? Breevort?"

"Metropolitan Hotel! Right down Broadway!"

"Ere you are, kerridge, sir?"

The traveller loomed up like a tenpin among vinegar-cruets, and with a face as placid as a pan of milk, was calmly and silently moving away from the crowd of jarvies who looked after him with something like amazement, when a sudden thought seemed to strike one, who, running after him, seized hold of the handles of his travelling bag—

"Deaf and Dumb Asylum, sir? Going right up."

This was too much. Dignity relaxed into a laugh, and the driver got a fare for a down town hotel.

You Understand Me?

[Max Adeler.]

It was a great many years ago, at a camp meeting, that Brother Higgins, a good man but passionately fond of dogs, came in one day accompanied by a black-and-tan hound. Somebody asked him to address the congregation, and he mounted the stand for the purpose, while his dog sat down upon his haunches immediately in front, looking at his master. In the midst of the discourse, which entertained us much, another dog came up, and after a few social sniffs at Brother Higgins' dog, began to examine the hind legs of the latter with his teeth, apparently for the purpose of ascertaining if it was tender. An animated contest ensued, and one of the congregation came forward for the purpose of separating the animals. His efforts were not wholly successful. He would snatch at the leg of Higgins' but before his hand got there the yellow dog would be on that side, and would probably take an incidental and cursory bite at the deacon. Brother Higgins paused in his discourse, and watched the deacon. Then he exclaimed, "Spit in his eye, Brother Thompson, spit in the hound's eye!" Brother Thompson did, and the fight ended. "But I just want to say," continued Mr. Higgins, "that outside of the sanctuary, that dog of mine can eat up any salmon colored animal in the State, and then chaw up the bones of its ancestors for four generations without turning a hair! You understand me?"

Then the service proceeded.

—Early to bed and early to rise will be all in vain if you don't advertise.

LAWS

OF THE

UNITED STATES

PASSED AT THE

FIRST SESSION OF THE FORTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 50.]

AN ACT to amend the act "entitled an act transferring the control of certain Territorial penitentiaries to the several Territories in which the same are located," approved January twenty-fourth, eighteen hundred and seventy-three.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the act entitled "An act transferring the control of certain Territorial penitentiaries to the several Territories in which the same are located," approved January twenty-fourth, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, be, and the same is hereby, amended by striking out the words Montana, Idaho, and Wyoming wherever the same occur in said act, and the said act shall hereafter have no applicability to the Territories of Montana, Idaho, and Wyoming.

SEC. 2. That the penitentiaries in the Territories of Montana, Idaho, and Wyoming, shall continue under the care and control of the marshal of the United States for said Territories, under and pursuant to the provisions of the act entitled "An act in relation to certain territorial penitentiaries," approved January tenth, eighteen hundred and seventy-one; which said last mentioned act is hereby revived and reenacted so far as the same applies to the Territories of Montana, Idaho, and Wyoming.

Approved, June 20, 1874.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 60.]

AN ACT providing for publication of the revised statutes and the laws of the United States.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the existing contract or contracts between the Secretary of State on the part of the United States, and Charles C. Little, Augustus Flagg, Henry T. Miles, and John Bartlett, of Boston, known as the firm of Little, Brown and Company, dated the twenty-eighth day of May, eighteen hundred and sixty-six, and all other contracts between the United States or any officer thereof with said firm of Little, Brown and company, respecting the printing or publication of the laws of the United States, are hereby declared to be determined, pursuant to the powers therein reserved.

SEC. 2. That the Secretary of State is hereby charged with the duty of causing to be prepared for printing, publication and distribution the revised statutes of the United States enacted at this present session of Congress; that he shall cause to be completed the head notes of the several titles and chapters and the marginal notes referring to the statutes from which each section was compiled and repealed by said revision; and references to the decisions of the courts of the United States explaining or expounding the same, and such decisions of State courts as he may deem expedient, with a full and complete index to the same. And when the same shall be completed, the said Secretary shall duly certify the same under the seal of the United States, and when printed and promulgated as hereinafter provided, the printed volumes shall be legal evidence of the laws and treaties therein contained, in all the courts of the United States, and of the several States and Territories.

SEC. 3. That the revision of the statutes of a general and permanentinature with the index thereto, shall be prnted in one volume, and shall be entitled and labeled "Revised Statutes of the United States;" and the revision of the statutes relating to the District of Columbia; to post-roads, and the public treaties in force on the first day of December, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-three, with a suitable index to each, shall be published in a separate volume, and entitled and labelled "Revised Statutes relating to District of Columbia and Post-Roads. Public Treaties."

SEC. 4. That the Secretary of State shall cause the two volumes to be stereotyped and such number of each volume to be printed and substantially bound at the Government Printing Office as he may deem needful, for public distribution as hereinafter provided, and for sale by his office.

SEC. 5. That he shall, in like manner, cause to be edited, printed, published and distributed pamphlet copies of the statutes of the present and each future session of Congress, to the officers and persons hereinafter provided, and bound copies of the laws of each Congress to the number of two thousand copies to be distributed in the manner now provided by law, and uniform with the said edition of the revised statutes.

SEC. 6. That at the close of every session of Congress the Secretary of State shall cause to be distributed pamphlet copies of the acts and resolves of Congress for that session, edited and printed in the manner aforesaid, as follows: To the President and Vice President of the United States, two copies each; to each Senator, Representative, and Delegate in Congress, one copy; to the librarian of the Senate, for the use of Senators, one hundred and twenty-six copies; to the librarian of the House, two hundred and fifty copies, for the use of the Representatives and Delegates; to the Library of Congress, fourteen copies; to the Department of State, including those for the use of legations and consulates, six hundred copies; to the Treasury Department, two hundred copies; to the War Department, including those for the use of officers of the Army, two hundred copies; to the Navy Department, including those for the use of officers of the Navy, one hundred copies; to the Department of the Interior, including those for the use of the surveyors-general and registers and receivers of public land offices, two hundred and fifty copies; to the Post-Office Department, fifty copies; to the Department of Justice, including those for the use of the chief and associate justices, the judges and the officers of the United States and territorial courts, four hundred and twenty-five copies; to the Department of Agriculture, ten copies; to the Smithsonian Institution, five copies; to the Government Printing Office, two copies; to the governors and secretaries of Territories, one copy each; to be retained in the custody of the Secretary of State, one thousand copies; and ten thousand copies shall be distributed to the States and Territories in proportion to the number of Senators, Representatives, and Delegates in Congress to which they are at the time entitled.

SEC. 7. That after the close of each Congress the Secretary of State shall have edited, printed and bound a sufficient number of the volumes containing the Statutes at Large enacted by that Congress to enable him to distribute copies, or as many thereof as may be needed, as follows: To the President of the United States, four copies, one of which shall be for the library of the Executive Mansion, and one copy shall be for the use of the Commissioner of Public Buildings; to the Vice President of the United States, one copy; to each Senator, Representative, and Delegate in Congress, one copy; to the librarian of the Senate, for the use of Senators, one hundred and fourteen copies; to the librarian of the House, for the use of Representatives and Delegates, four hundred and ten copies; to the Library of Congress, fourteen copies, including four copies for the law library; to the Department of State, including those for the use of legations and consulates, three hundred and eighty copies; to the Treasury Department, including those for the use of officers of customs, two hundred and sixty copies; to the War Department, including a copy for the Military Academy at West Point, fifty copies; to the Navy Department, including a copy for the library at the Naval Academy at Annapolis, a copy for the library of each navy-yard in the United States, a copy for the library of the Brooklyn Naval Lyceum, and a copy for the library of the Naval Institute at Charlestown, Massachusetts, sixty-five copies; to the Department of the Interior, including those for the use of the surveyors-general and registers and receivers of public land-offices, two hundred and fifty copies; to the Post-Office Department, fifty copies; to the Department of Justice, including those for the use of the chief and associate justices, the judges and the officers of the United States and territorial courts, four hundred and twenty-five copies; to the Department of Agriculture, five copies; to the Smithsonian Institution, two copies; to the Government Printing Office, one copy; and the Secretary of State shall supply deficiencies and offices newly created.

SEC. 8. That the said printed copies of the said acts of each session and of the said bound copies of the acts of each Congress shall be legal evidence of the laws and treaties therein contained, in all the courts of the United States and of the several States therein.

SEC. 9. That the said laws of each session of Congress shall also be stereotyped and printed for sale as provided in respect to the said revised statutes. And the copies of the said revised statutes and of the said laws of each session of Congress, as issued from time to time, shall be respectively sold at the cost of the paper, press work and binding, with ten per cent. thereof added thereto, to any person applying for the same. And the proceeds of all sales shall be paid into the Treasury.

SEC. 10. That the Secretary of State shall cause all the copies of the Revision of Indian treaties made by Thomas J. Durant, now printed to be bound, and the same shall be deposited with the Secretary of the Interior, for the use of the Departments and officers of the Government.

Approved, June 20, 1874.

Business Notices.

Too Late.

The way men put off important matters to the last moment is one of the curious things in nature. The fifth concert in aid of the Public Library of Kentucky was advertised to take place July 31. The day after, August 1, Gov. Brambette, the manager at Louisville, received over $50,000 for tickets. Had the drawing taken place at that time the Governor would have had to send this money back, but as the concert was postponed to November 30, it was all right with them. We presume that on the first day of December next, the day after the concert, thousands of dollars will be received, one day too late, for there will be no further postponement. This money might just as well have been sent a week before, as when it was. eod&6t24

"Not Very Well."

A feeling of vague bodily discomfort, which does not amount to positive illness, and yet is incompatible with health, is often aptly described by the phrase, "Not very well." This feeling usually arises from a deficiency of the nervous power which is required to keep the vital machinery in vigorous and healthful operation. Nervous weakness has too frequently proved to be the prelude of some serious malady to admit of any doubt in the matter. Inactivity of the bodily functions as surely begets their derangement as cause precedes effect. It is therefore absolutely essential for the preservation of health, perhaps of life itself, that this warning should be promptly heeded. The case does not admit of delay. Revitalize the system at once and effectually with Hostetter's Bitters—that peerless invigorant which, by infusing new health and strength into the system protects it against disease more surely than ever knight of old was protected by armor of proof against the foe.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

MONDAY EVENING, Sept. 28th.

From Theatres Royal, London, England.

RETURN, after an absence of six years, of the now famous Cosmopolitan Comedian,

EDMUND COLES,

Who will appear in the chaste and exquisite romance of UNDINE, re-written and designed expressly for this American tour, and presented under the title of

THE BLACK FIEND:

Introducing all the brilliant and novel effects (and none of the objectionable features) of the BLACK CROOK. New and elegant scenery, painted expressly for the production, by the renowned artist, Charles Hawthorne. In addition to this gorgeous Spectacle, the Star Premiere of the World,

THE GREAT GALLETTI,

With a Brilliant Dramatic and Opera Company, composing a most unique organization. The entertainment of the evening will commence with Madison Morton's Merry Little COMEDY,

YOUR LIFE'S IN DANGER,

In which EDMUND COLES appears, supported by the leading artists of the Dramatic Company. Notwithstanding the enormous attractions, the popular prices will be retained, viz.:

Thirty-five, Fifty, and Seventy-five Cents.

Local Matters.

Laconics.

All efforts to recover the body of George Henry Wendell, drowned off Whalesback on the 13th inst., have failed.

The visiting Knights Templar left for their homes Thursday afternoon,—and we sincerely hope they took "The Mulligan Guards" with them. That tune is about equal to "Shoo Fly," is hammered away at just as much by bands and gamins, and will live about as long. The Knights made a fine show on their short march around the streets before they proceeded to the depot.

Nepotism? the appointment of the Mayor's son as City Clerk.

Miss Morgan's boarding and day school for young ladies opened on Thursday under flattering auspices. Accommodations had been prepared for a number of pupils in excess of what were expected to be present on the opening day, but the preparations had to be supplemented.

The Dover (Foster's) Democrat nominates Hon. Moses H. Goodrich as a democratic candidate for Governor. Too hasty, Joshua! If the democrats have any prospect of electing a Governor of New Hampshire next year, they will not select a decent man for the position.

The Cabot street bell was hung and rung on Thursday. It has a tone like the bell at Christian Shore.

The Enquirer says the Dover Cornet Band's mission here on Wednesday was to attend a Masonic funeral! 'Twas not Sir Knight "Mulligan" who was buried.

Edna Dean Proctor vs. Moulton.

It was rumored after Moulton had made his last statement that he would have difficulty with his firm, and would not be very well received at the Corn Exchange. Two members of the firm, Robinson and Woodruff, are among the most eminent citizens of New York. Mr. Woodruff is a member of Dr. Storrs' church, and is an indefatigable worker in the Sunday-school cause. He spent two or three years abroad and spent his time in establishing Sunday-schools in Italy and Germany. In conversation with a friend he said recently that the firm had unbounded confidence in Mr. Moulton and intended to stand by him in his troubles. The suit against Moulton by the lady who feels aggrieved has been commenced in the United States Courts, a process not very usual. It is not believed that this suit will be pressed. It is well known that the scandal has been rife in Brooklyn for over four years. It originated in a letter written by a well-known gentleman who laid the offence in his own house. Certified copies of this letter are in the possession of persons in Brooklyn. It is doubted whether the writer of that letter or his friends would be glad to see him on the stand in a United States Court. The Tilton suit is to be brought in the city court. There are three Judges in this court. But one of them can try the case. Judge McCue has openly avowed his sympathy with Mr. Beecher. Judge Reynolds has been counsel for Tilton. Both of these gentlemen will have to step aside, while Judge Neilson, who has kept his mouth shut, is alone competent to the trial.

State News.

The berry crop in the vicinity of Bow Pond, Strafford, has been the largest ever known. It is estimated that forty bushels per day were gathered during the season which lasted several weeks. The major part were sent to Boston and Portland.

On the 18th, a large bay horse, with head halter and shoes on, was washed ashore at Boar's Head, Hampton Beach. Afterward another horse came ashore without shoes on. The query is where did these horses come from?

Some miscreant pushed over the monument of Colonel E. P. Emerson, at Nashua, and completely covered it with a coat of tar. It is thought some one did it in a spirit of revenge for some punishment inflicted upon him by Colonel Emerson while he was judge of the police court in that city.

A boy named Willie Wallace, in Milford, only six years old, while playing with a little girl named Stearns, stabbed her in the back, it is feared fatally.

The Science of Smuggling.

The Boston Commercial Bulletin, in an article on smuggling at the port of New York, relates the following story:

"There is a very important traffic carried on in diamonds over the various European lines to this country, and as the duty upon them is ten per cent. ad valorem, the sharpest watch is kept upon those suspected to be engaged in it. By means of agents abroad the Collector's office has often information by cable of the departure from the various ports of suspected diamond smugglers, and is prepared to intercept them. In nine cases out of ten the stones are concealed upon the persons of the passengers. When this becomes a certainty, or what is supposed to be a certainty, the passenger is arrested and taken up to the Searcher's Bureau in the Custom House. Here, if found necessary, the party is stripped to the skin, and his clothes examined inch by inch and seam by seam; the heels are taken from his boots, and his hair and beard are combed, and every means taken to discover the hiding-place of the secreted treasures. Once this mode of search used to be tolerably successful, but now it rarely serves any purpose except in the case of raw recruits to the smuggling ranks. An old bird is caught with chaff but once.

"A New York Jew, who was reputed to be in the business of smuggling diamonds, used to cross the water on the Cunard line from three to four times a season. Two years ago, in the early part of the season, he was seized upon his arrival, and taken to the searcher's room. Nearly a thousand dollars' worth of precious stones were found secreted in the lining of his boots. He returned to Liverpool by the same steamer, and four weeks afterward again landed upon the company's wharf on North River. He was again seized and subjected to the same rigorous search, but with no success. The Jew took it smilingly and philosophically. When he took his leave he said; 'Better luck next time, gentlemen. I shall go back by the same steamer on business, and when I return you can try it again.'

"The officers mentally determined if he did they would try it again. Upon inquiry it was found that he really had engaged a return passage, having held his stateroom for that purpose. Two hours before the sailing of the steamer he was driven down to the pier in his carriage, his wife and daughter with him to see him off. When they returned they carried with them over ten thousand dollars' worth of diamonds which had lain secreted in his stateroom during the whole time the steamer had remained in port. Before his return to New York the Collector was notified by one of the revenue agents abroad that 'Max Fischer would return by the——, which would leave Liverpool October 25th, with several thousand dollars' worth of diamonds.' In due time the Jew arrived, and for the third time was escorted before the searcher. He was evidently not prepared for such persistent attention. He seemed nervous and agitated, and finally attempted to compromise. He was politely informed that that was out of the question. He was again put through the searching process. His pocketbook, which was first investigated revealed a memorandum showing the purchase of eighteen diamonds of various sizes and prices, amounting in all to about $12,000. When this came to light the Jew begged with tears to be allowed to compromise. A deaf ear was turned to his entreaties. His coat was removed, and the lining examined. Nothing there. Then the waistcoat. As the searcher passed his practical fingers along the lining his heart gave a tremendous thump as he recognized the 'feel' of something pebbly, like little rows of buttons. The garment was hastily ripped, a strip of chamois skin withdrawn and unrolled, and there they lay, one, two, three—eighteen! All there.

"'You can put on your coat and waistcoat again, Mr. Fischer,' said the searcher, blandly. 'Good day.'

"Without a word the Jew departed, took a horse-car home, kissed his family, ate a rousing dinner, repaired to the bath room, and, after soaking a rather capacious plaster across the small of his back for a few minutes in warm water, peeled it off, and with it 'eighteen diamonds, of various costs and prices.' What the searcher and Collector may have said or thought when they found their seizure to be nothing but clever glass imitations, worth from ten to thirty cents each, nobody knows; for although the seizure was loudly heralded, the finale was never made public. A lady in this city, moving in fashionable circles, wears a valuable diamond which was imported in the cavity of a double tooth, said tooth being in the mouth of an Israelitish gentleman of New York. It was placed in its rather unromantic hiding place in London, and safely covered with bone filling, which was displaced after the arrival in New York."

For Sale in Greenland.

THE fine country residence and farm formerly occupied by Rev. John F. Adams.—buildings in thorough repair, land well divided into mowing and tillage; fine fruit orchard, etc., well known for the large quantity of splendid strawberries produced.

The house has an evergreen hedge around it and the buildings are in thorough repair. There is a fruit orchard of 300 apple trees, 20 cherry trees and as many pear trees—and a nursery with 1300 young apple trees. From the grape vines on the place fifteen bushels of fruit have been sold in a season, besides abundance retained for home use. Part of the land heavily wooded and there is a great quantity of muck on the estate. In the pasture there is a never-failing spring. The farm is situated midway between depots of Eastern and Concord railroads. For sale at a bargain, if enquired for immediately.—of O. G. Ayer's Hair Vigor.

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair re-grows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

FRANCES L. KENT, vs. FRANK KENT.

TO THE CIRCUIT COURT, ROCKINGHAM, ss.

RESPECTFULLY represents FRANCES L. KENT of Newton in said county, that she was lawfully married to FRANK KENT of Hampstead in said county on the twenty-sixth day of November, A. D. 1862,—that she and her said husband after the said intermarriage resided together in said Hampstead, in Haverhill in the State of Massachusetts, and in South Berwick in the State of Maine, until the summer of 1870, when they removed to Rollinsford in our county of Strafford, and that she has since resided in the State of New Hampshire,—and that she now resides in said Newton.

Said libellant had one child by her said husband, who is now living, viz: George E. Kent; who is nearly eleven years of age. And said Frances L. Kent avers that since the said intermarriage she has always conducted herself as a faithful, chaste and affection wife toward her said husband; yet, the said Frank, wholly regardless of his marriage covenant and duty, at said Rollinsford, on the fifth day of September, A. D. 1871, and more than three years before the filing of this libel, without sufficient cause, and without her consent, abandoned the said libellant, and now refuses, and during all the time since her said abandonment has refused to cohabit with her.

And said Frances L. Kent further avers that said Frank Kent on said fifth day of September, 1871, at said Rollinsford, without her consent, willingly absented himself from her, and went away to some place to your libellant unknown, without making suitable provision for her maintenance and support, and ever since that time, for more than three years together, has continued to so absent himself, without making such provision.

Wherefore, the said Frances L. Kent prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony between herself and said Frank Kent may be decreed, and that the custody of said George E. Kent may be committed to her. FRANCES L. KENT.

O. H. KEY, Solicitor for Libellant.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT, ROCKINGHAM, SS.

THIS Libel having been filed in the office of the Clerk of said Court this eighth day of September A. D. 1874: It is ordered that said Frances L. Kent notify the said Frank Kent to appear at the next term of said Court, to be holden at Portsmouth on the third Tuesday of October next, then and there to show cause, if any he has, why the prayer thereof should not be granted, by causing a true and attested copy of said libel and this order thereon to be published one week in the Portsmouth Daily Chronicle, a newspaper printed at Portsmouth in our County of Rockingham, the last publication whereof to be at least one week before said term. By special order of Hon. WILLIAM L. FOSTER, C. J.

Attest, C. G. CONNER, Clerk.

A true copy of the original libel, and of the original order thereon.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,

For all the Purposes of a Family Physic

CURING

Costiveness, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Dysentery, Foul Stomach and Breath, Erysipelas, Headache, Piles, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Tetter, Tumors and Salt Rheum, Worms, Gout, Neuralgia, as a Dinner Pill, and purifying the Blood,

are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA- DEBILITY- DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of ever forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN

HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.

It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color.

It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima Thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Coughs, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, &c.

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AYER' SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leuchorrhœa arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure, health returns.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE RILEY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with despatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

QUAKER BITTERS.

These celebrated Bitters are composed of choice Roots, Herbs and Barks, among which are Gentian, Sarsaparilla, Wild Cherry, Dandelion, Juniper and other Berries, and are so prepared as to retain all their medicinal qualities. They invariably cure or greatly relieve the following complaints: Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Liver Complaint, Loss of Appetite, Headache, Bilious Attacks, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Ague, Cold Chills, Rheumatism, Summer Complaints, Piles, Kidney Diseases, Female Difficulties, Lassitude, Low Spirits, General Debility, and, in fact, everything caused by an impure state of the Blood or deranged condition of Stomach, Liver, or Kidneys. The aged find in the Quaker Bitters a gentle, soothing stimulant, so desirable in their declining years. No one can remain long unwell (unless afflicted with an incurable disease) after taking a few bottles of the Quaker Bitters.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city. m25 d3m

Daily Chronicle.

The Effect of Camphor on Seeds.

Some curious and all but forgotten experiments, of much interest to agriculture and gardening, observes a London paper, have lately been revived by a German savant. Very many years ago it was discovered and recorded that water saturated with camphor had a remarkable influence upon the germination of seeds. Like many another useful hint, the stupid world took no notice of this intimation; but a Berlin professor came across the record of it, and he appears to have established the fact that a solution of camphor stimulates vegetables as alcohol does animals. He took seeds in various sorts of pulse, some of the samples being three or four years old, and therefore possessing a very slight degree of vitality. He divided these parcels, placing one moiety of them between sheets of blotting paper simply wetted, and the other under strictly similar conditions between sheets soaked in the camphorated water. In many cases the seeds did not swell at all under the influence of the simple moisture, but in every case they germinated where they were subjected to the camphor solution. The experiment was extended to different kinds of garden seeds, old and new, and always with the same result of showing a singular awakening of dormant vitalism, and a wonderful quickening of growth. It also appears from the professor's researches that the young plants thus set shooting continued to increase with a vigor and vivacity much beyond that of those which were not so treated. On the other hand, when pounded camphor was mixed with the soil, it appeared to exercise a rather bad effect upon seeds. The dose in this latter case was possibly too strong. At all events, there is a line of inquiry well worth following up by seedsmen and gardeners, and even farmers might try how far wheat and barley would profit from the strange property which seems to be possessed by this drug over the latent life of vegetable germs.

—If you want to realize the heights to which feminine eloquence can mount, go home and find your wife in company with a table covered with jars of canned fruits, and ask her why she has her hand wrapped in a cloth.

Petitions are in circulation asking the legislature to protect the moose in the Maine wilderness, as the Canadian Indians are likely to soon exterminate them.

The principal mills on the Kennebec and Penobscot rivers are shutting down and discharging their hands. It is reported that this is the result of a understanding among the heaviest lumber operators for the purpose of increasing the price of lumber and reducing the wages of workmen. Another cause assigned is the dullness of the lumber market.

The two girls, Mary A. and Georgiana Perkins, abducted from Saco, were found in Lewiston, by City Marshal Durgin of Saco, who took them home.

Later and fuller reports from the Black Hills are said to show conclusively that the reports of mineral wealth in that region are greatly exaggerated, if not substantially groundless.

A boiler exploded at the tack factory of A. Field & Sons, Taunton, Mass., Thursday afternoon, killing one man and wounding two other persons.

A bloody affray occurred on board the American ship S. F. Hersey, in the English channel, on the 23d, one sailor being killed and several others wounded.

Two trains on the Parkersburg branch of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad came into collision at Smithton on the 23d. The engines were wrecked, a postal car and the mail matter set on fire and consumed, and a clerk was burned to death. No passengers were injured.

At Portland, Thursday, Libby, the young clerk who tried to shoot Miss Rolfe, was sentenced to State prison for two years.

State News.

Not long since a gentleman who carries the keys of one of the bank vaults in Nashua was returning home late at night, when he was accosted by two suspicious looking persons. The banker's dog, a large Newfoundland, whose presence is unaccounted for, immediately took a position between the ruffians and his master, which position he maintained until home was reached. The gentleman has owned the dog for years, and, what is singular, never before knew him to wander away from the house at night to meet him on his way home.

Curious Case of Insanity.

Miss Cross, a school teacher in Stark, lately committed suicide by drowning, under the following circumstances, as related by a local paper: She had had charge of the school for several weeks. The scholars thought much of her, and till within a short time of her death she kept an orderly and excellent school. But during the last week all seemed to be disorder and confusion in the school. The committee, Dr. A. Thompson and M. T. Pike, Esq., having heard of the fact, visited the school on Friday, and found it much as above described, on which, after the school was dismissed, they kindly talked with her privately relative to the school, told her how it seemed to them, and advised her, as she appeared pale and nearly sick, quietly to go to the agent, and resign her position; or if she felt strong enough to go on with the school, and thought she could improve in the particulars mentioned, she could do so. She said she would determine what was best between that time and the hour of school the next morning. They left for their homes. She did not return to her boarding-house that night, and her friends became alarmed. The school house was locked. On looking in at the window the key was seen on the floor. On entering they discovered on her desk some little articles of value she had taken from her person and the following note, addressed to her sister:

DEAR MARY: All I have to say is that the curse is fulfilled. The daughters shall die in sorrow if not in shame before they are twenty. Ask Albert Thompson and Thomas Pike why. Good-by all.

LAURAINA.

Search was made for her body. The school house was situated on the bank of the river, where the water was deep and still, and the body was found near by. Before the coroner's jury her sister explained the note by relating that they were the children of Amos K. Cross, of Waterford, Me., and that in consequence of some difficulty between them, her father separated from his first wife, and was again married, on which his mother taking sides against him, pronounced with dreadful emphasis this curse upon her son's children: "His daughters shall die in sorrow if not in shame, before they are twenty, and the sons shall be cut off in infancy." She said that for some time Lauraina had constantly dwelt upon the subject of the curse, and the more so, recently, as she was nearing the age of twenty, and she had done and said things which had caused her to think her sister meditated suicide. And her room-mate testified that only a week before she had spoken of it to her, and alluded to the fact that she was over nineteen years of age, and if the curse was fulfilled she had but a short time longer to live. The fact that some of her brothers died in infancy tended to strengthen the superstition, so that insanity and death were the consequence.

Treason to the State.

[Providence Journal.]

When President Grant refused to countermand the instructions intended to preserve the peace in Louisiana, he was wiser than some of his advisers. It is difficult for the northern mind to comprehend the unwisdom of the southern rebels. We could not understand in 1860; we do not understand it now. As a mere matter of policy, without regard to law or right, we could faintly comprehend, though not believe in, the expediency of a rebellion against the State of Louisiana, which, ending there, and securing the military rule of the general government, might be considered as so much gain as against an opposing party in the State. But this scheme failed. Kellogg was neither assassinated, nor set aside by the President. The Constitution was enforced; Kellogg was reinstated as Governor, and the rebellion apparently quelled; actually, so far as the words of the rebels could be trusted, and really so far as overt action was for the moment concerned. But the rebellion was scotched, not killed. Nobody doubted that the same feelings of enmity to law and order remained, after as before the pretended surrender, but no one, outside of the South, supposed that there would be, even before the expiration of the five days, a new and actual rebellion.

But such is the case. We begin to see the ill fruits of the unwarranted negotiations of General Emory. It will be recollected that he assured the rebels that they should not be prosecuted for treason by the State Government; a promise he had just as much right to make, and power to carry into effect as our noted fellow citizen Tom Collins. We have before said that this, his indiscretion, or worse, would have a baleful influence; it has already. The leaders in the late rebellion, and their followers, supported, it is said, although we can hardly believe the statement, by army officers, now declare that such prosecutions for treason would be in bad faith, because of the assurance of Gen. Emory. Further, the rebels have not only been for a long time arming themselves, but they have, as is alleged, armed themselves with the arms of the State, illegally taken. Now they say that both the attempt to prosecute for treason, and the attempt to search for State arms, by State officials, will be resisted to the death. That is to say, the rebels declare that they only surrendered to Gen. Emory upon the ground, and with the understanding that in Louisiana treason is not to be punished, and that stealing State arms is a proper, if not meritorious, proceeding. In other words, rebellion if successful will carry out its purposes in "thinning out", the negro, and resisting the general government, and if unsuccessful, will accept the command of Gen. Emory: "As you were."

Not only this; the rebels are arming and moving in one, at least, of the parishes. This may or may not amount to anything. Rebellion may be renewed, or it may be restrained. That which is perfectly evident is, that, whether renewed or withheld, it will be entered upon or not without the slightest regard to the legality or illegality of the proceeding. Herein is the point of great difference between the North and the South. No man here thinks of taking his gun in his hand to redress what he considers a political wrong. In the South, the only question seems to be: "Are we strong enough to do as we please?" It is very much the habit of some of our Northern democratic papers to say inferentially, if not in so many words: "The South has such a hard time of it between the niggers and the carpet-baggers, that they ought not to be blamed if they shoot and hang without law, and without judgment." Admit that the South is hard pushed. That it is in a very uncomfortable position. Who began this fight? If there had been no secession there would have been no emancipation; no suffrage for the negro, and the Southern chivalry would now have been trading, instead of killing "niggers."

Barnum's Hippodrome Blown To Pieces

The Baltimore Sun describes the sudden collapse of Barnum's huge tent, in that city, on Sunday last. About half-past 11 o'clock a terrific wind storm burst upon the hippodrome, and in an instant every inch of canvas covering the amphitheatre proper, the stables, the hotel, the dressing-rooms, side-shows, etc., with the poles sustaining the canvas, was carried up in the air, making a much more rapid ascent than ever Prof. Donaldson dreamed of making. The force of the wind was so great that the canvas, with the 350 quarter-poles, which were jerked from the earth, were in an instant lodged in the trees on the north of the enclosure. The five centre poles, each as large as a ship's mast, were levelled with the ground. The anchor which sustained the guy of the high wire on which Mlle. Victoria makes her perilous ascent, fastened six feet below the surface, and which it was supposed that no ten locomotives could move, was drawn out as if it had been a pin, and the interior of the arena presented a scene of utter devastation, nothing being left standing but the seats. Such was the force of the wind that four of the quarter-poles that refused to leave mother earth were snapped off as if they had been mere sticks, and that portion attached to the canvas went up in the trees with the canvas. The force of the hippodrome was immediately set to work, and in less than an hour upwards of three hundred men were engaged in getting the canvas down from the high trees. The canvas originally cost $18,000, and the damage is estimated at not less than $2500. A number of the men connected with the establishment were in the amphitheatre at the time, and at the first giving way of the poles ran for their own safety and escaped, with the exception of one man, who had his collar-bone broken. Of course, Barnum, who is spending a honeymoon with his bride, at the White Mountains, was telegraphed to, and his laconic reply was: "Well, repair the damages."

The Most Northerly Town in the World.

A correspondent of the Alta California, in a letter from Norway, thus refers to the most northerly town in the world:

Next we visited Hammerfest, the most northerly town in the world. It has a population of 2,067. There are many Laplanders and Finlanders in the town. The principal business is in cod-liver oil and fish, and the odor from the oil makes it very disagreeable. Reindeer and goats abound here, while there are but six horses in the town. I don't know whether it is because of the fish diet or of the long winter nights, but any disconsolate, childless couple had better come and spend a season here. The sun sets here November 18, and does not rise again until January 28. Children go to school with lanterns for about six weeks. In the summer the sun does not set from the 1st of June till the 22d of July. There is no chance for the hotel-keepers to make any money on candles, as they do in Germany and France. I had my photograph taken by the midnight sun. You get demoralized here. Mrs. K. has already. She sits up to one and two o'clock knitting socks, waiting for night to come. On the 27th of June the Laplanders brought many children into town to have them baptized or confirmed. Reindeers you can see fifty at a time on the side-hills, and goats by the hundred. On June 23 (called here St. Han's-day) or Midsummer-day, they kindled bonfires on the sides of the mountains around the town, and had a jolly time. The weather is horrible. The thermometer stands from four to five Reaumur. There is one hotel here, and its management might be easily improved, although the landlady is kind and obliging. We have fish and reindeer for breakfast, reindeer and fish for dinner, and for supper some more fish and reindeer. This jumping off place is in latitude 70 40 11.3. This is cut on a granite pillar, surrounded by a bronze globe, with projecting axis, indicating the plane of the celestial pole; and on two sides of the pillar are inscriptions, in Latin and Norwegian, that this is an important station, though not terminal; that it is on the north cape of the great European arc of meridian, the southern termination being on the meridian. It was undertaken by the sovereigns of Norway, Sweden, and Russia in 1816-52. On the same spot, or nearly so, Gen. Sabina made an important series of pendulum experiments in 1823. Fughenes was one of the chain of stations extending nearly from the equator to the pole, at which pendulum observations were made for obtaining the variations of gravity on the earth's surface.

Dangers of Civilization.

The Portland Advertiser has an excellent article on this subject. First, it speaks of the great achievements of science during the last two centuries, noting some of the wonderful improvements resulting from the inventive genius of the present age. It then refers to the dangers of this higher civilization as follows:

"This is undoubtedly true to a great extent; but this higher civilization has also brought new dangers to the human race. The mammoth moving palace on the ocean, with hundreds of valuable lives on board, collides with another vessel, and the wild waves still the cries of the hapless victims. The railroad train with its living freight runs off the track, and from the wreck are taken the mangled bodies of perhaps fifty men and women. A defective boiler, which furnishes the motive power of a large manufactory, explodes, and without warning the employees are torn to pieces or scalded to death by the escaping steam. A large mill reservoir in the construction of which the contractor saved a few hundred dollars by slighting his work, gives way at last, under the pressure, and the swollen tide sweeps down the valley, carrying hundreds of persons to a watery grave. A large factory is built upon an uncertain foundation or with thin walls, to save expense to the owners, and one day the great sham falls to the ground burying the operatives in a living grave, beneath the brick and broken timbers and crushed machinery. Another factory takes fire through carelessness, at a time when it was crowded with men, women and children, all unsuspecting the great calamity which is impending; suddenly the smoke and flames rush through the rooms, and the panic-stricken people are burned to death or fall upon the sidewalk, mangled and bleeding lumps of flesh."

It concludes by suggesting that means should be devised to prevent such great calamities, and that the legislator should follow with the laws necessary to secure the use of these means; and also that it is more important to solve the problem how to prevent the wholesale slaughter of human beings, regardless of their origin, than to determine the question whether man is descended from monkey.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during each year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

"Not Very Well."

A feeling of vague bodily discomfort, which does not amount to positive illness, and yet is incompatible with health, is often aptly described by the phrase, "Not very well." This feeling usually arises from a deficiency of the nervous power which is required to keep the vital machinery in vigorous and healthful operation. Nervous weakness has too frequently proved to be the prelude of some serious malady to admit of any doubt in the matter. Inactivity of the bodily functions as surely begets their derangement as cause precedes effect. It is therefore absolutely essential for the preservation of health, perhaps of life itself, that this warning should be promptly heeded. The case does not admit of delay. Revitalize the system at once and effectually with Hostetter's Bitters—that peerless invigorant which, by infusing new health and strength into the system protects it against disease more surely than ever knight of old was protected by armor of proof against the foe.

Local Matters.

Laconics.

Now that cool weather is approaching, and all want the best stove in the market for cooking and heating purposes, purchasers will do well to call on the new firm at No. 61 Market street, Earing, Morrissey & Martin, who advertise great bargains. For Ranges, they have the "Hub" and "Granger," and for Stoves the "Electric Improved" and the "New Magnet" for model cooks to use and praise; while for parlor use they sell the "Gen. Grant," the "Union Gas Burner," and soapstone and airtight stoves of every style. The members of the new firm are reliable and well known to our citizens. Read their advertisement and take a look at their stock.

The Journal, referring to Thos. B. Aldrich's article in Harper's Magazine, says: "Wake up, Tom. It is you, rather than the old city, that is asleep."

M. T. Betton & Co., will sell the Dockum house by auction to-day.

At the annual meeting of the Portsmouth Washington Total Abstinence Society, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, J. Horace Kent; Vice President, Rev. John A. Goss; Secretary and Treasurer, A. F. Craig; Executive Committee, Thomas E. O. Marvin, Rev. A. C. Hardy, Frank W. Miller, William D. Fernald, Benjamin F. Thorndike, Isaac Dow.

The dissatisfaction of a portion of the stock-holders of the Boston and Maine Railroad at the contract recently made with the Eastern Road, by which a division of business and receipts of the two roads is arranged, has taken form in a bill in equity, which was presented in the Circuit Court of Rockingham County, at Exeter, on Monday. The bill charges that this contract in effect consolidates the two roads and deprives the public of the facilities and accommodations for travel and transportation and the benefits it is entitled to and did enjoy prior to the date of the contract, and the stockholders of their just share of earnings.

Willis W. French, who graduated at the High School last July, was admitted at Bowdoin College on the 24th inst. He successfully passed a rigid and searching examination in mathematics and the English branches generally. The fact that he thus passed from our High School to College without any intervening study is a great credit to himself and the school. It is but proper to state that of the fifteen candidates examined at the same time five were rejected.

The Methodist Sabbath School of Rochester have an excursion to Kittery and the Navy Yard to-day. They will enjoy a basket-lunch at Rogers' conservatory.

"The Black Fiend" will appear at the Temple, Monday evening. The Pittsburg Chronicle says: The great Galletti we spoke of last Sunday as an accomplished representative of terpsichoric science, who would not find an audience here sufficiently cultivated in that particular direction to understand or appreciate her. She is very pretty, and executes such marvellous evolutions upon "the light fantastic" as to make one wonder whether she is flesh and blood or a combination of watch-spring steel and India rubber.

The democrats already find snags in their way. They preach economy but have the hungriest set of camp followers at their heels. The leaders propose to make a show of reducing the salaries of the police force, but there are seventy-five applicants for positions. Then the foreign element, which furnishes nearly if not quite half the voters of the party, demands recognition, and with good cause. The party is in a very unhappy way, already. Threats of reducing the pay of the firemen have been made, but the leaders know too well that such action will only presage political disaster. The fire department of Portsmouth was never in such efficient condition as at present, and the less tinkering with its management and organization, the less dissatisfaction among citizens and firemen.

The Knights from Charlestown and Chelsea were so lively at "The Wentworth" that sleep was worth "$10 a wink." At the banquet on Thursday, P. E. C. Daniel E. Chase, on whose invitation the Knights visited "The Wentworth," remarked that "from the quiet manner in which the Sir Knights have run this hotel since last evening, I certainly think I should never attempt to run it while they are present."

"Kent" writes that a marriage which has been brought about in a novel way is to take place in one of the pretty villages in Rockingham county, next Wednesday. The bridegroom left Portsmouth some twenty odd years ago, while quite a young man, for California, and finally located in one of the extreme frontier States, where he has accumulated a fortune. Some of his Eastern acquaintances hearing of his good success, and learning that he remained single, sportively wrote to him and suggested the name of a lady friend as a good person for a wife. The frontiersman replied, asking for a photograph of the fair one, which was forwarded. A short correspondence sprang up, and a day or two since the gentleman came East for the first time for more than twenty years, was introduced to the lady in question, and became pleased with her. She also liked him, and next Wednesday they are to be married, and will leave for his home in the West.

The Kearsarge Mills will cease operations for one week on account of an overstock of goods. The annual meeting of this company occurs October 6.

A valuable black horse, one of a pair owned by Messrs. Eldredge of this city, broke a fore leg in pasture at the brewery, and was killed. A colt of Hon. Frank Jones' cut his fore leg very severely in pasture, and the veteran Dr. N. B. Sides, while sewing it up, received a stunning blow in the face from the colt's leg, but fortunately without serious injury.

A pet three-year-old colt belonging to Rear Admiral Pinkering of this city, while moored to a pear tree about twelve feet high and three inches through at the butt, a few days since, being started at something, dragged her anchor, and with the tree trailing at the end of a good length of cable, gave a tremendous leap over the Admiral's six-foot fence, and ran pretty much all over town, but was finally hove to without material damage to herself or anybody else.

The Times fails to see any "nepotism" in the city government because Mercer was "elected" not "appointed." Thin!

Vespers at the Unitarian church on Sunday evenings hereafter at 7.30.

City Council.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, Thomas Murphy was granted leave to relay drain on Bow street.

The subject of building a reservoir on Union street was referred to Committee on fire department.

The following resolution was passed: Resolved, That no debt against the city shall be contracted, or any article purchased on the credit of the city, without the express order of the Mayor, or under authority of vote of this Board.

The following committees were appointed:

Bills on Second Reading: Ald. Hatch and Davis.

Enrollment: Ald. Sise and Hennessey.

Police: Ald. Morrison and George.

Laying Out and Widening Streets and Repairing Drains: Ald. Stimson, Davis and Morrison.

Gas Lights: Ald. Marvin and Sise.

House of Correction: Ald. Russell and George.

Supervising Committee on Records, Journals and Accounts: The Mayor and Ald. Hatch and Hackett.

In the Common Council the following Standing Committees were appointed:

Elections—Messrs. Alison S. Littlefield, Watkins and Gould.

Bills on Second Reading—Messrs. Michael R. Perkins, Hall, and Oliver G. Fernald.

The following are the Joint Standing Committees:

Finance—The Mayor, Ald. Hatch and Hackett; Councilmen Alison S. Littlefield, Aimsi F. Davis and Charles C. Akerman.

Engrossing Bills—Ald. Russell and George; Councilmen Green, G. A. Perkins and Oliver G. Fernald.

City Land and Buildings—Ald. Stimson and Davis; Councilmen C. W. Norton, Hall and Joseph E. Fernald.

Claims—Ald. Hatch and George; Councilmen Littlefield, Michael R. Perkins and John W. Gray.

Burying Grounds—Ald. Hennessey and Davis; Councilmen Green, Ayers and Livingstone.

Printing—Ald. Stimson and Sise; Councilmen Davis, Hall and Vaughan.

Accounts—Ald. Hatch and Hackett; Councilman Michael R. Perkins.

The Boot on the Other Foot.

[Rochester Courier.]

One of our democratic leaders was rather sharp on Joshua Foster the other day, while in Dover. It is reported that meeting Foster, he asked him about his black eye and was informed "That it was done by a cowardly fellow, who, for words said in the Democrat, stole up behind him and, with a cane, beat him." Foster was very invective against his assailant, when Mr. Democrat from Rochester said that the affair reminded him of a story: "Once on a time a distinguished Senator said words in debate that fell on the sensitive ears of a South Carolina man named Brooks, who, knowing them to be unanswerable, stole into the Senate chamber of the United States, crept up behind that Senator, and with blows from a bludgeon felled him to the floor, and continued to deal his senseless victim blows, while the blood ran down the Senate floor. The north was indignant and the press condemned it as an outrage upon free speech and the rights of the people. The only editor in the State that ever fully justified it was Mr. Foster, who, years afterwards, in the States and Union, called the caning justifiable." Of course, Mr. Foster saw the point, but it makes all the difference in the world whether the caned man was an abolitionist or himself.

For Sale in Greenland.

THE fine country residence and farm formerly occupied by Rev. John F. Adams.—buildings in thorough repair, land well divided into mowing and tillage; fine fruit orchard, etc., well known for the large quantity of splendid strawberries produced. The house has an evergreen hedge around it and the buildings are in thorough repair. There is a fruit orchard of 300 apple trees, 20 cherry trees and as many pear trees—and a nursery with 1500 young apple trees. From the grape vines on the place fifteen bushels of fruit have been sold in a season, besides abundance retained for home use. Part of the land heavily wooded and there is a great quantity of muck on the estate. In the pasture there is a never-failing spring. The farm is situated midway between depots of Eastern and Concord railroads. For sale at a bargain, if enquired for immediately.—of O. G. ROBINSON, on the premises, or Butler & Laighton, Market Square, or Bailey & Co., Market street. jel

Ayer's Hair Vigor.

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointments, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair restored to a healthy growth; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

FRANCES L. KENT, vs. FRANK KENT.

TO THE CIRCUIT COURT,
ROCKINGHAM, ss.

RESPECTFULLY represents FRANCES L. KENT of Newton in said county, that she was lawfully married to FRANK KENT of Hampstead in said county on the twenty-sixth day of November, A. D. 1862,—that she and her said husband after the said intermarriage resided together in said Hampstead, in Haverhill in the State of Massachusetts, and in South Berwick in the State of Maine, until the summer of 1870, when they removed to Rollinsford in our county of Strafford, and that she has since resided in the State of New Hampshire,—and that she now resides in said Newton.

Said libellant had one child by her said husband, who is now living, viz: George E. Kent; who is nearly eleven years of age. And said Frances L. Kent avers that since the said intermarriage she has always conducted herself as a faithful, chaste and affection wife toward her said husband; yet, the said Frank, wholly regardless of his marriage covenant and duty, at said Rollinsford, on the fifth day of September, A. D. 1871, and more than three years before the filing of this libel, without sufficient cause, and without her consent, abandoned the said libellant, and now refuses, and during all the time since her said abandonment has refused to cohabit with her.

And said Frances L. Kent further avers that said Frank Kent on said fifth day of September, 1871, at said Rollinsford, without her consent, willingly absented himself from her, and went away to some place to your libellant unknown, without making suitable provision for her maintenance and support, and ever since that time, for more than three years together, has continued to so absent himself, without making such provision.

Wherefore, the said Frances L. Kent prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony between herself and said Frank Kent may be decreed, and that the custody of said George E. Kent may be committed to her. FRANCES L. KENT.

O. H. KEY, Solicitor for Libellant.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT,
ROCKINGHAM, SS.

THIS Libel having been filed in the office of the Clerk of said Court this eighth day of September A. D. 1874: It is ordered that said Frances L. Kent notify the said Frank Kent to appear at the next term of said Court, to be holden at Portsmouth on the third Tuesday of October next, then and there to show cause, if any he has, why the prayer thereof should not be granted, by causing a true and attested copy of said libel and this order thereon to be published one week in the Portsmouth Daily Chronicle, a newspaper printed at Portsmouth in our County of Rockingham, the last publication whereof to be at least one week before said term. By special order of Hon. WILLIAM L. FOSTER, C. J.

Attest, C. G. CONNER, Clerk.

A true copy of the original libel, and of the original order thereon.

Attest, C. G. CONNER, Clerk.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,

For all the Purposes of a Family Physic

CURING

Costiveness, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Dysentery, Foul Stomach and Breath, Erysipelas, Headache, Piles, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Tetter, Tumors and Salt Rheum, Worms, Gout, Neuralgia, as a Dinner Pill, and purifying the Blood,

are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA- DEBILITY- DROPSY AND HUMORS,

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the system. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of ever forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN

HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever. It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color.

It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, at discretion. It is neatly applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AYER' SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the foulest humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leuchorrhœa arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure, health returns.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other nuisance, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city. m25 d3m

DR. FLINT'S QUAKER BITTERS.

These celebrated Bitters are composed of choice Roots, Herbs and Barks, among which are Gentian, Sarsaparilla, Wild Cherry, Dandelion, Juniper and other Berries, and are so prepared as to retain all their medicinal qualities. They invariably cure or greatly relieve the following complaints: Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Liver Complaint, Loss of Appetite, Headache, Bilious Attacks, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Ague, Cold Chills, Rheumatism, Summer Complaints, Piles, Kidney Diseases, Female Difficulties, Lassitude, Low Spirits, General Debility, and, in fact, everything caused by an impure state of the Blood or deranged condition of Stomach, Liver, or Kidneys. The aged find in the Quaker Bitters a gentle, soothing stimulant, so desirable in their declining years. No one can remain long unwell (unless afflicted with an incurable disease) after taking a few bottles of the Quaker Bitters.

Daily Chronicle.

Ludicrous Scene in a Pulpit.

A South German paper relates the following: In a Bavarian town of the most pronounced Catholic orthodoxy, the priest preached lately against the Old Catholics, and related such horrible things about them that his pious hearers were literally horror stricken at Old Catholic impieties. At last the preacher cried out: "The Old Catholics are so vile that they will all be cast into the pit, and if what I tell you is not true, may the devil take me now on the spot!" His excitement was terrible, and he so struck the cushion that the book fell from it. Not far from the pulpit there sat an American, who had a negro servant with him, to whom he beckoned to take the book up to the priest, who, perhaps, had never seen one of those sons of Ham in his life. The negro at once obeyed, and as he mounted the lowest of the pulpit steps, the clergyman repeated his wish that the devil might come and take him if what he said against Old Catholics was not true.

Although the negro went softly, the preacher heard his footsteps, and, turning round, saw a black object solemnly, steadily, and surely approaching him. He looked at him with terror, and believing that he would be the next instant collared by his Satanic Majesty, he cried out, with trembling voice, "It is, after all, possible that there may be good people among the Old Catholics." Turning then round to see if the object had disappeared, he saw it still steadily approaching. The perspiration burst out on his brow, and full of despair he called out, "There are even many good people among the Old Catholics."

Thinking that this would suffice, he turned round, but what was his horror to find that the object was close at hand. Imagining himself in the very grasp of Beelzebub, turning partly to the negro and partly to the congregation, he cried out: "May the devil come and take me if all the Old Catholics are not better than we are!" The terrified priest fainted from the fright, and it was only after some time that he recovered.

—I called at Magruder's the other morning on my way down town, and as I knew them well I entered the side door without knocking. I was shocked to find Mr. Magruder prostrate on the floor, while Mrs. Magruder sat on his chest, and rumbled among his hair, as she bumped his head on the boards, and scolded him vigorously. They arose when I came in, and Magruder as he wiped the blood from his nose, tried to pretend it was a joke. But Mrs. Magruder interrupted him: "Joke? Joke? I should think not! I was giving him a dressing down. He wanted to have family prayers before breakfast, and I was determined to have them afterward; and he threw the Bible at me, and hit Mary Jane with the hymn book. I roused down on him. If I can't rule this house I'll know why. Pick up them scriptures and prayers! You hear me, Magruder! It's more trouble regulatin' the piety of this family than runnin' a saw mill. Mary Jane, give your pa that hymn book." I left before the exercises began.

—A California genius is the author of a new invention, intended to do away with servants around tables at mealtimes. It consists of a movable railway, acting within a circle inside the plates that are to be served. It will suffice for an oblong table as well as for a round one, and is operated by the person who sits at the head, or, in other words, the one who does the carving. This individual is enabled, by means of his or her feet under the table, after the manner of working the treadle of a sewing-machine, to send a plate of hash, so to speak, sailing round at lightning speed to the spot of destination, followed up with the condiments, cutlery, etc., necessary to the thorough enjoyment of the meal. The advantages of such an improvement are apparent and manifold. Besides the delays and confusion consequent upon the prevailing custom, accidents, such as spilling soup over the shoulders of those seated around the table will be avoided.

—A tablet has been erected in Emanuel church, New York, which tells its own story. The public remembers the young lady whose memory is thus honored. This is the inscription: By this tablet the trustees of Temple Emanuel honor the memory of Deborah Stiner, daughter of Jacob and Linah Stiner, a former pupil of this school, who in a conflagration clung to her invalid mother, and, forgetful of her own safety, cried, "Save my mother!" She remained only to die with her, giving her youthful life of twenty-one a free-will offering to filial duty. Parent and daughter died at the same time, viz., January 13, 1874. "Those beloved and dear to each other in their lives were not divided in death."—I. Samuel, i. : 23.

—A lady undertook to chase the flies out of her room the other day with a towel-pin, when her husband, darting carelessly in, received a whack on the head which could be heard all over the house. Upon recovering his senses he gazed on her with a look of mingled pain and melancholy, only to remark: "I even wish that you were dead."

—The Richmond Enquirer suggests that some one in authority should send two men down to Georgia to hold Toombs.

—A sign-board can't tell anything. It takes an advertisement to do that.

Daily Chronicle.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1874.

Readables.

Some good Philadelphians conceived the happy thought of giving an excursion to old folks. They were recently driven out of town, fed on dainties, regaled with music and, most delicate of all attentions, listened to with attention and respect while they recounted their reminiscences with all the garrulity of age.

Hepworth's new lecture is on "The Ocean."

Miss Edna Dean Proctor's suit for $100,000 damages against the New York Graphic for publishing Moulton's statement doesn't seem to alarm the publishers, who state that they propose shortly to give a picture of Miss Proctor with a skotch of her life and works. This advertisement thus given her publicly, they think will net from the increased sale of her publications a considerably larger sum than she can obtain from a libel suit.

Thomas Wood, of Newport, R. I., refused to pay the fifteen cents extra required of passengers not purchasing tickets before entering the cars, on the train from Fall River to that city, and the matter will go to the courts.

The new ten-hour law which goes into effect in Massachusetts October 1, will not materially affect the manufactures of the State. The wages to be paid under the new arrangement will be in most cases proportionately the same as paid for eleven hours' labor, or in other words one-eleventh smaller than formerly.

The N. Y. Sun for once is right when it says: "We cannot conceive of a man more unfit for healthy influence in a legislative hall than George F. Hoar. He moves around in an egotism which is always offending. Dyspeptic in manner if not in habit, with a supercilious sneer upon his lips, he rather repels than invites intimacy, wrapping himself in a home-wrought mantle of pretension and conceit."

The New York Journal of Commerce says that Mr. Stewart never in his life bought so many goods in one season, and never before was an assortment of equal elegance so cheaply purchased. The power of cash in hand was never so near omnipotent in Europe as in the current season. Tons of silks, laces, shawls and every thing have thus come into the great magician's hands, at prices which will prove a great temptation even to those who have not a fortune to spend in dress. Our teeming harvest fields insure cheap food the coming season, and the visit of Mr. Stewart to Europe will give to the women of the land over $50,000,000 in cheaper attire than they have had for many years.

Toombs is getting the worst of it all round. The Richmond Enquirer advises him to let himself to Barnum, and the Georgia Constitutionalist politely advises him to shut up.

Farmers and others in Vermont and Northern New England interested in the producing and sale of butter will be interested in knowing that members of the New York Butter and Cheese Exchange, in imitation of the bulls and bears of the Stock Exchange, introduced the system of a daily "call" in the board last week, and hereafter the quotations of "Eastern," "firkins," "half firkins," "welsh tups," "Orange county," etc., will be announced officially by the indicator. The new arrangement bids fair to work a complete revolution in the butter market.

In nominating Samuel J. Tilden, instead of Sanford E. Church, for Governor, the New York democrats made a mistake two stories high with a Mansard on it. First, the Western New Yorkers wanted Church and they now expect defeat. Secondly, the rural democrats cannot be persuaded that the nominee is not the pugnacious Tilton. By way of a Mansard or a cap-shief to their troubles the democrats can't find any fault with Governor Dix, who will be reelected by a handsome majority.

The fishing schooner Fleetwing, sixty-two tons burthen, of Lamoine, Me., sailed from the Grand Banks, homeward bound, on the evening of August 21. At about two o'clock the next morning she was run into and sunk by the French barque Marseilles, bound for Greenock, Scotland, there being a dense fog at the time and raining heavily. The schooner was struck on the starboard bow, the forward timbers crushed in, and the bowsprit and foremost carried away. The captain, Isaiah Bowden, of Penobscot, Me., was in his berth, but awakened by the crash rushed on deck, and seeing the vessel must sink, sprang for the main chains of the barque, which he was fortunate enough to seize and was saved. Two others of the crew were also saved. Hammond Winterbotham of East Lamoine, and Sylvanus Heath. The rest of the crew, seven in number, were lost, together with two men belonging in the British Provinces, who a few days before had been picked up in a fog from their dory.

The Herald says: It was a pistol ball that attended strictly to business which was, on Tuesday afternoon, discharged through carelessness by a young boy named Gardiner Gould. The accident occurred in Bartlett place, Boston, where Gould, in the presence of a boy named Maguire, was examining a loaded pistol. The bullet, which was a first-class item-maker, passed through Gould's hand, and next into Maguire's hip. Had half-a-dozen more boys been present, doubtless the bullet would have done its full duty by them. Gould was taken to his home on Pearl street and Maguire to the City Hospital.

The banking firm of Townsend & Co. of New Haven failed Friday, with liabilities of nearly $3,000,000, and its affairs are in the hands of a receiver. The cause of the failure is the depreciation of Southern State and railroad bonds, in which the bank had invested heavily. The greatest sufferers are among the laboring classes. Rumor says that the depositors will realize about forty per cent.

State News.

The new democratic Solicitor of Strafford county, Thos. J. Smith, recently had a case decided against him in Court, a man he was prosecuting for assault on an officer being discharged for want of evidence. The sapient Solicitor gave notice to the Court that he should take an appeal, at which everybody laughed. The Judge declined to entertain the idea.

Miss Proctor's Case.

[N. Y. Graphic.]

When Mr. Moulton, in the course of his last statement published in The Daily Graphic, asserted that Mr. Beecher had been guilty, in addition to his seduction of Mrs. Tilton, of criminal intimacy with another lady, he gave no possible clue to the identity of the lady in question. Not only did he abstain from mentioning her name, but he did not include her letter of retraction among those which were reproduced in fac-simile in The Daily Graphic, thus shielding her from the possibility that she should be identified by her handwriting. We ourselves were utterly ignorant as to who the author of that letter really was, and until Miss Edna Dean Proctor was mentioned by name by a Brooklyn paper as being the lady referred to by Mr. Moulton we had no knowledge that her character had been in any way assailed.

But in as much as Miss Proctor has permitted herself to be used as an instrument to distract attention from Mr. Beecher's misdeeds by appearing as the plaintiff in a libel suit against The Daily Graphic, we propose to show by evidence which no jury will reject that Mr. Beecher himself is the originator of the charge against Miss Proctor's character. The charge may not be true, but whether it is or not, Henry Ward Beecher is the person who is responsible for it. We shall permit no delay on the part of the plaintiff in bringing this cause to trial. She has chosen to appeal to a legal tribunal, and before such a tribunal she shall be compelled to go. Mr. Beecher is evidently as ready to sacrifice her in his desperate defence as he has been to sacrifice the character of Mrs. Tilton and to attack the sanity of his own sister. In this instance, however, he will be hoist with his own petard, and Miss Proctor will discover that the man in whose behalf she has committed the folly of rushing into court is the man who has himself originated what she now chooses to regard as a libel upon her reputation.

The Niagara Falls Suicide.

[Buffalo Express, Sept. 22.]

The Press dispatches yesterday morning gave a brief account of a terrible suicide which was committed at Niagara Falls, on Saturday, a man having deliberately walked over the Falls, near Table Rock. We have since received the following additional information concerning the extraordinary affair:

Shortly after 1 o'clock P. M., on Saturday, there arrived at the Canadian side of the Suspension Bridge, by the Canada Southern road, a stranger, described as a man, about five feet eight inches in height, of light complexion and sandy colored hair, who, on alighting, inquired the charge of a cab thence to the Falls and back.

After some of that sparring which is inseparable from negotiations attending cabhire, one Christopher Flannigan offered to drive him to the Table Rock and back for $2. "How much if you leave me there?" inquired the stranger. "A dollar," replied the cabman, and the bargain was struck. Nothing particular in his face or demeanor attracted Flannigan's attention during the drive, except that he remembers he knelt on the front seat of the carriage looking about him freely at the Falls and objects of interest that were passed. He also asked whether bodies going over the Falls were ever found again. To which the driver replied that some were and some were not.

When he reached the museum he took the driver in to get a glass of beer, which he paid for and also then paid Flannigan his dollar carriage hire. He also then gave the driver the letter mentioned in the press dispatch addressed to Mr. Robertson, a banker at Brantford, to post, and an envelope bearing his own address, which was, "Robert Salmond, Mohawk Institute, Brantford." Walking then leisurely, as any other visitor might do, to a piece of square timber by which but a thin stream of water runs, he stepped into the current, and almost immediately made a false step and slipped on to his knees; but immediately regained his feet and walked on till carried off his feet by the increasing volume of water; and then as if it were a chip on the tide his body shot over into the abyss below.

It took but a few seconds for all this to occur, and men were at once sent down under the comparatively thin sheet of water there to see if any traces of the body were to be found on the ledge of rocks; but their search was fruitless. Mr. Robertson was immediately telegraphed news of what had occurred and a reply was received directing that the letter be at once forwarded by mail, and asking if Salmond's wife was with him. Nothing further concerning the case has yet transpired.

Yellow Fever at Pensacola.

The Army and Navy Journal publishes the following extract from a letter to a friend from Acting Passed Assistant Surgeon George B. Todd, U. S. Navy-yard, Pensacola, Fla.: "I have got myself into a scrape this time for sure, but if I am spared I will stand by until all hands are piped down. When I came here, the general health of the Yard was good, and for about a week Dr. Ackley and I had but little to do, but on the 1st of September a strong breeze sprang up from the E. N. E. in a direct line from the Quarantine ground where were anchored four vessels that had lost all hands,—even the Quarantine Doctor died. Now the distance from here to those ships is four miles, a long distance. There has been a strict quarantine against Pensacola City, and there is no fever there. No one has communicated with those vessels; and again the cases that first made their appearance were all on that side of the point where the wind from those vessels first touched. Now, did the disease come on the wings of the wind? I have now the bag to hold and it is a pretty big bag. Ackley is down; the Apothecary is down, Mrs. Franklin and child, Mr. and Mrs. Chandler and three children, six marines and one of the men who worked in the Yard, and all looking to Todd for relief. God grant I may be able to give it. I have so far no place to sleep but in the hospital, where of course I must inhale all the noxious vapors from those poor fellows, and God alone knows how long I can do it with impunity. There is a big prospect that there will be but very few of us in the Yard in a week, as those that are not on their backs, save Franklin, Thompson and Semmes, are making preparations to sleep away. If I am taken I shall go outside and do the best I can. I believe the Commodore has telegraphed for permission to employ help for me, which I don't fancy, as there is no use exposing any more. If I peg out I shall have the consciousness of knowing I have done my duty even though I am a volunteer or Mustang—as I have been called here—and if they wait for me to show the white feather, they will wait until these sand heaps blossom as the rose."

Surgeon Todd died of the fever last week.

The Montpensier Pictures.

Æsthetic Boston is tepidly excited over the exhibition of the pictures of the Duke de Montpensier, just opened in the art gallery of the Athenæum. The Duke had determined to send his collection to England for safe-keeping during the political troubles in Spain, and they had got as far as Gibraltar, when the death of Sir Edwin Landseer, and the adoption of a plan to exhibit his works in London broke up the arrangement for the reception of the Spanish pictures. A Boston gentleman, accidentally at Gibraltar, and finding these works of art likely to remain in the English custom-house shut up in their boxes for an indefinite period, suggested that the loan of them should be asked for this country. The Duke gladly assented, asking only assurance against their loss by fire or marine accident. There is a Murillo, one or two originals by Valasquez, and altogether about thirty specimens of the old masters—not their most famous pictures, but showing their distinctive styles and affording the chance for the first time in America of studying the highest art.

Grasshopper Cannibalism.

Grace Greenwood, in a letter to the New York Times, tells this story of the Colorado grasshoppers:

"Colorado Springs is now the capital of El Paso county, so it will have the county fair this fall. They have enclosed more than a hundred acres for the grounds. It was expected that we should have a fine exhibition of farm and garden products, but 'man proposes and the grasshopper disposes.' He has disposed of everything green, and now, as though acting on the Scriptural assertion, that 'All flesh is grass,' has taken to regaling himself on his brother hopper. It is shocking to discover what remorseless cannibals these small creatures are. If one becomes disabled in the slightest degree, his friends and relatives rally around him in his extremity and generally help themselves to whatever is eatable. They generally go first for the brain, as the daintiest morsel, cunningly abstracting it from its cells, and yet he somehow lives on for a time, and hardly seems to miss that rather important organ. The younger ones seem the most voracious and rapacious, but while they make a fatal charge, grave-looking elders will stand about, watching their old friend's demise, evidently speculating as to how he will 'cut up.' They are in no haste, but are always in at the death.

The other day I whiled away a half hour in one of the summer-houses near the springs in watching the proceedings of a set of these small ruffians toward a disabled comrade. He had lost a leg—how I need not state; 'thou canst not say I did it'—though if for the sake of scientific investigation I brought myself to perform that little surgical operation, what harm? It is surprising to see how easily a grasshopper's leg is detached. It seems always to be a semi-detached member. That creature don't seem to mind the loss much, and will go on eating as though grasshopper's legs 'grew on every bush!' This one evidently did not realize his misfortune till he was attacked and found he could neither walk nor fly.

How he was beset, to be sure! First a brisk young fellow, with the cool, business air of a surgeon, began tapping his rather distended stomach; another probed him about the joint whence the leg had been removed; a third set himself to dissect the amputated limb. One slim starveling began browsing on the tips of his wings; then a big, bustling old wretch stepped forward and interviewed him by deliberately boring into his brain; next a yellow-jacket settled on him and stung and sucked here and there, while, to add insult to injury, two spiteful black ants pierced through the joints of his cuirass and worked their way into his vitals.

He fought bravely—it was astonishing to see how pluckily he stood up against his fierce assailants, like a miniature Moulton. He kicked furiously with his one sound hind leg 'against the pricks' of the wasp. He struck out and gesticulated wildly with his arms or forelegs—his moustache or antennæ bristled with defiance—but the great congregation of his foes was too much for him, though he did not cease to struggle while anything remained to struggle with. They did not leave him till he was reduced to the mere shell of a grasshopper."

—In the police court at San Jose, Cal., a witness was asked, "Did you ever kill a man?" He answered, "No; but I killed a Chinaman once."

Unnecessary Municipal Machinery.

[Boston Transcript.]

The new democratic Mayor of Portsmouth, in his inaugural address, deprecates the tendency of small communities to imitate the manners and expenses of larger ones, and says, "We adopt too much machinery and use it without necessity." Call you this blacking your friends, when, as part of the machinery of his own election, his party more than doubled the original number of wards in the city, correspondingly increasing the total of ward officials, where there were sufficient of both before? But from the same document it appears that to him is due the credit of not indorsing the gerrymandering which necessitated the holding of the special election at which he was chosen, as he further says that he wishes to "reduce all extravagances and return, as nearly as possible, to the primitive simplicity of the better days of the republic." Probably he means the time when Portsmouth had but three wards, instead of seven with their disproportionate strength in electing city officials. Seven wards for a little more than two thousand voters is a very extravagant extension of municipal machinery. It would be quite safe in that community to address most any resident male personage met as "Mr. Moderator," or "Selectman," as the good old seaside city still continues to mix dozens of those primitive titles among its metropolitan airs that the new mayor laments, and, in the matter of opening and closing the polls, cumbersomely holds town meeting in every ward at every election.

"The Black Fiend."

An Ottawa, Canada paper, says of this play, which is on the Temple boards for this evening: We confess we were agreeably disappointed when we witnessed the performance, which was far superior to what we expected. Mr. Coles has contrived very happily to select such effects as could be made to tell well, and puts upon the stage a much better spectacular drama than we thought he could have done. As an actor, Mr. Coles is a comedian of no common ability, and is well worth seeing. The terpsichorean part of the entertainment was principally sustained by the great Galletti, who is the most highly trained ballet danseuse of the troupe, and those whose ideas of stage dancing are derived from the performance of variety troupes and such like entertainments, would do well to see this lady in the "Black Fiend." Since Lola Montez visited Canada in 1857, no danseuse equal to this lady has appeared on the Canadian boards, with perhaps the exception of Signora del Cubas. The company is not only well organized for the stage, but in its outside managers has secured good men.

The Black Crook at the Academy.

[Montreal Witness.]

There has never been greater excitement round the doors of the Academy of Music than last night. An immense crowd gathered, and, as soon as the doors were opened, rushed for seats. In a short time the building was filled. The curtain did not rise until after half-past eight, and the delays between the acts were long, so that it was nearly twelve o'clock before the performance was out. The play is a succession of scenic effects, ballet dancing, singing, and variety performances. The scenic effects are certainly fine, and elicited loud and prolonged applause. "The Golden Grotto of Statacta" was splendidly arranged, and was the most brilliant scene in the play. Miss Fanny Burt, Queen of the Golden Realm, favored the audience with several songs, and was repeatedly encored. Emma Carle, of the ballet troupe, also appeared in this scene. She is a beautiful danseuse, and her many graceful steps and movements were much admired. In contemplating her graceful motions spectators entirely forgot the airiness of her costume. The rest of the ballet troupe, who appear in several costumes, are graceful dancers. They were much admired in the Amazon drill, though their petite figures hardly approached the general idea of warlike women. Miss Ione Lang, a simple village maid, delighted the audience with several songs. She was recalled four times and gracefully responded. Manchester and Jennings, as the jolly darkey aldermen and Irish Emigrants, sang and danced well. Austin and Hess, on parlor skates, introduced something never before seen in this city. The closing transformation scene, showing the home of the Diamond Queen, was very brilliant. The performance contains nothing indecent, unless the familiar sight of a woman in tights and short skirts is indecent, and may be witnessed unblushingly by all whose modesty permits them to look at the female circus riders and trapeze performers.

Many gentlemen who were present last night have engaged seats for themselves and their lady friends for this evening.

Holding Him Every.

A paper out in Dakota Territory, the Elk Horn Gleaner, relates the following story of a fellow who solemnly pledged himself not to drink a drop of liquor either inside or outside of a house for two years. Soon afterward he passed a saloon where three of his former boon companions were taking their drop in comfort, and he could not help stopping and casting one mournful look of longing within. One of them spied him and invited him to join them. "Oh, no," said he, "I wish I could, but I've sworn not to take a drop neither inside or outside of a house for two years." "Oh," says one, "you can have one drink for all that; we'll lift you off the threshold and you can drink half inside of the house and half out." So one took hold of each leg and thus they raised him up, while the third filled and passed the bottle. He took one long drink and was just drawing breath for another, when one of his supporters shifted a little, and he shouted, "O! hold me even, boys, my soul's in your hands."

—Those good, old, open wood fires which we used to see in our boyhood can never be forgotten. They were so bright, so clear, so comforting, and kept the air so sweet and healthy. The good, large backlog, that burned two or three days, the forestick that kept the smaller wood in its place, and the filling up of any combustibles, to stand the blaze,—why, it was a delight to stand by such a fire, to hear how it crackled and moaned and spread a glowing warmth through the domicile. How delighted we were to see such a fire on a long, cold, winter evening; to sit in the chimney corner and read Don Quixote and Sinbad the Sailor, and Capt. Riley's Adventures among the Algerines. But, alas! those splendid fires are gone never to return; we have the black stove and the abominably unhealthy furnace. Oh! for the fires of our grandfathers.

—The sun should never be allowed to shine on butter or a package containing butter. More butter is injured from the farm house to the village store and in transportation by the careless, unthinking or willful parties, than from all other causes combined. The farmer has an easy and effectual remedy, an old umbrella for a shade, green grass or wet flannels, or any other substitute whereby a rapid evaporation can be effected for the cooling arrangement, and you can carry your butter for miles to market in good condition.

—Dusty carpets may be cleaned by setting a pail of cold water out by the door, wet the broom in it, knock it to get off the drops, sweep a yard or so, then again wash the broom as before and sweep again, being careful to shake all the drops off the broom and not sweep far at a time. Change the water once or twice during the process. Moistened corn-meal sprinkled over the carpet and swept off is used with good effect by some housekeepers.

—In view of the fact that Watts' hymns have been translated into the Choctaw language, and have become favorites of the braves, an admirer of the noble red man says it is very affecting to think of a noble red man sitting upon a fence and singing, "How doth the little busy bee," while he watches his wife carrying home a couple of bushels of potatoes upon each shoulder, and wondering if he couldn't swap that squaw for a jug of robust rum.

—They were standing on the piazza. Her gaze was riveted upon some blank nothingness on the sidewalk below; moreover was she gnawing away at an irritating corner of her thumb nail. Beside her was a hay seed youth, gaunt and freckled, pouring into her ear in homeopathic doses the molten contents of his heart of hearts. But, ever and anon, were the youth's passionate protestations quenched with her snappy cries of "Shut—up,—con—found—you!"

—A repentant bride recently wrote to her parents from across the seas: "The motion of a crew steamer is like riding a gigantic camel that has the heart disease, and you do not miss a single throb. I know of nothing to compare with it for boredom, unless it be your honeymoon when you have married for money."

—Dr. Cuyler wants all young ladies to band together and say: "No lips shall touch my lips that have touched a bottle." Rather rough this on the fellows that were brought up by hand.

Business Notices.

"Not Very Well."

A feeling of vague bodily discomfort, which does not amount to positive illness, and yet is incompatible with health, is often aptly described by the phrase, "Not very well." This feeling usually arises from a deficiency of the nervous power which is required to keep the vital machinery in vigorous and healthful operation. Nervous weakness has too frequently proved to be the prelude of some serious malady to admit of any doubt in the matter. Inactivity of the bodily functions as surely begets their derangement as cause precedes effect. It is therefore absolutely essential for the preservation of health, perhaps of life itself, that this warning should be promptly heeded. The case does not admit of delay. Revitalize the system at once and effectually with Hostetter's Bitters—that peerless invigorant which, by infusing new health and strength into the system protects it against disease more surely than ever knight of old was protected by armor of proof against the foe.

Throw Not People's Faults

in their teeth, for there are few teeth that have not faults of their own. There is but one way to preserve them without spot or blemish, and that is, by the daily use of fragrant SOZODONT, cool, refreshing and agreeable.

Piles can be cured only by ANAKESIS, the greatest discovery of the age and the sole, infallible remedy for the worst cases of Piles. Thousands of sufferers after trying in vain all manner of lotions, ointments and internal remedies, have been instantly relieved and permanently cured by Anakesis. It is the happy discovery of Dr. SILSBEE, a regular scientific physician, and doctors of all schools endorse and recommend it. Price $1.00. Sold by druggists everywhere, and sent free by mail from Principal Depot, 46 Walker street, New York.

Too Late.

The way men put off important matters to the last moment is one of the curious things in nature. The fifth concert in aid of the Public Library of Kentucky was advertised to take place July 31. The day after, August 1, Gov. Bramlette, the manager at Louisville, received over $50,000 for tickets. Had the drawing taken place at that time the Governor would have had to send this money back, but as the concert was postponed to November 30, it was all right with them. We presume that on the first day of December next, the day after the concert, thousands of dollars will be received, one day too late, for there will be no further postponement. This money might just as well have been sent a week before, as when it was. eod&ow24

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Oven Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the ages of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

Desirable Estate

AT PRIVATE SALE.

The convenient and well located HOUSE and the lot of 4000 feet at the corner of Lincoln Avenue and Broad Street, is offered for sale on easy terms. The house has a fine prospect, is located in a portion of the city where gentlemen are rapidly selecting sites for dwellings, and where the best houses are being erected. The house has well arranged rooms, a very cheerful outlook on either side, is supplied with excellent well water introduced into the house, and has garden plot and well built henery attached. The site is peculiarly pleasant, and the opportunity of purchasing a house built for a residence for the owner, and sold only because his business requires his presence in another city, is one that well deserves the attention of any one who desires a home for immediate occupancy. THE fine country residence and farm formerly occupied by Rev. John F. Adams,—buildings in thorough repair, land well divided into mowing and tillage; fine fruit orchard, etc., well known for the large quantity of splendid strawberries produced.

The house has an evergreen hedge around it and the buildings are in thorough repair. There is a fruit orchard of 300 apple trees, 30 cherry trees and as many pear trees—and a nursery with 1300 young apple trees. From the grape vines on the place fifteen bushels of fruit have been sold in a season, besides abundance retained for home use. Part of the land heavily wooded and there is a great quantity of muck on the estate. In the pasture there is a never-failing spring. The farm is situated pleasantly between depots of Eastern and Concord railroads. For sale as a bargain, if enquired for immediately,—of O. G. ROBINSON, on the premises, or Butler & Laighton, Market Square, or Bailey & Co., Market street. jel

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

'Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry'

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever.

It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color.

It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties, it renews the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

FOR THE WHISKERS.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AYER' SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucrhœna arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure, health returns.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs!

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON.
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY Applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city. m25 d3m

OF THE

UNITED STATES

PASSED AT THE

FIRST SESSION OF THE FORTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 64.]

AN ACT for the government of the District of Columbia, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That all provisions of law providing for an executive, for a secretary for the District, for a legislative assembly, for a board of public works, and for a Delegate in Congress in the District of Columbia are hereby repealed: Provided, That this repeal shall not effect the term of office of the present Delegate in Congress.

SEC. 2. That the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, is hereby authorized to appoint a commission, consisting of three persons, who shall, until otherwise provided by law, exercise all the power and authority now lawfully vested in the governor or board of public works of said District, except as hereinafter limited; and shall be subject to all the restrictions and limitations now imposed by law on said governor or board; and shall have power to apply the taxes or other revenues of said District to the payment of the current expenses thereof, to the support of the public schools, the fire department, and the police, and to the payment of the debts of said District secured by a pledge of the securities of said District or board of public works as collateral, and also to the payment of debts due to laborers and employees of the District and board of public works; and for that purpose shall take possession and supervision of all the offices, books, papers, records, moneys, credits, securities, assets, and accounts belonging or appertaining to the business or interests of the government of the District of Columbia and the board of public works, and exercise the power and authority aforesaid; but said commission, in the exercise of such power or authority, shall make no contract, nor incur any obligation other than such contracts and obligations as may be necessary to the faithful administration of the valid laws enacted for the government of said District, to the execution of existing legal obligations and contracts and to the protection or preservation of improvements existing, or commenced and not completed, at the time of the passage of this act. All taxes heretofore lawfully assessed and due or to become due shall be collected pursuant to law, except as herein otherwise provided; but said commissioners shall have no power to anticipate taxes by a sale or hypothecation of any such taxes, or evidence thereof: Provided, That nothing in this clause contained shall affect any provisions of law authorizing or requiring a deposit of certificates of assessment with the sinking-fund commissioners of said District; and said commissioners are hereby authorized to abolish any office, to consolidate two or more offices, reduce the number of employees, remove from office, and make appointments to any office authorized by law; and the compensation of all officers and employees, except teachers in the public schools, and officers and employees in the fire department, shall be reduced twenty per centum per annum. Said commissioners shall each, before entering upon the discharge of his duties, take an oath to support the Constitution of the United States and to faithfully discharge the duties imposed upon him by law; and shall each give bond in the penal sum of fifty thousand dollars, to be approved by the Secretary of the Treasury, for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office; and shall each receive for his services a compensation at the rate of five thousand dollars per annum: Provided, That nothing in this act shall be construed to abate or in any wise interfere with any suit pending in favor of or against the District of Columbia; And Provided further, That in suits hereafter commenced against the District of Columbia, process may be served on any one of said commissioners, until otherwise provided by law.

SEC. 3. That the President of the United States shall detail an officer of the Engineer Corps of the Army of the United States, who shall, subject to the general supervision and direction of the said board of commissioners, have the control and charge of the work of repair and improvement of all streets, avenues, alleys, sewers, roads, and bridges of the District of Columbia; and he is hereby vested with all the power and authority of, and shall perform the duties heretofore devolved upon, the chief engineer of the board of public works. He shall take possession of, and preserve and keep, all the instruments pertaining to said office, and all the maps, charts, surveys, books, records, and papers relating to said District, or to any of the avenues, streets, alleys, public spaces, squares, lots and buildings thereon, sewers, or any of them, as are now in or belonging to the office of said engineer of the board of public works, and shall, in books provided for that purpose, keep and preserve the records now required to be kept, and such as may be required by regulations of said board. He may, with the advice and consent of said board of commissioners, appoint not more than two assistant engineers from civil life, who shall each receive a salary of one thousand eight hundred dollars per annum, and shall be subject to his direction and control. He shall receive no additional compensation for such services. And he shall not be deemed by reason of anything in this act contained to hold a civil office under the laws of the United States. And no salary or compensation shall be paid to the surveyor of the District, or any of his subordinates, except such fees for special services as are allowed by law. And the offices of assistant surveyor and additional assistant surveyor of the District of Columbia are hereby abolished.

SEC. 4. That for the support of the government of the District of Columbia, and maintaining the credit thereof, for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-five, there shall be levied upon all real estate in said District, except that belonging to the United States and to the District of Columbia, and that used for educational and charitable purposes, the following taxes, namely: Upon all such real estate in the city of Washington, three dollars on each one hundred dollars of the present assessed value thereof; upon all such real estate in the city of Georgetown, two dollars and fifty cents on each one hundred dollars of the present assessed value thereof; and upon all such real estate in the District of Columbia outside of the cities of Washington and Georgetown, two dollars on each one hundred dollars of the present assessed value thereof; which said taxes shall become due and payable on the first day of November, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, and, if not paid, shall be in arrears and delinquent from that date; and shall, except as herein modified, be assessed and collected as now provided by law for the assessment and collection of general taxes for the District of Columbia; and of the sums so collected, one-fourth thereof shall be applied, first to re-imburse the United States for its advances on account of interest, which shall have been paid by the United States on the funded debt of the District of Columbia and Washington and Georgetown, due and payable July first, eighteen hundred and seventy-four; and the remainder shall be used to pay deficiencies in the various funds for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-four. And all the remainder of said taxes not required for the aforesaid purposes shall be distributed for the purposes and in the proportions provided by the act of the legislative assembly of the District of Columbia, approved June twenty-sixth, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, entitled "An act imposing taxes for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-four," so far as said apportionment is not inconsistent with this act: Provided, That no evidence of debt issued by the District of Columbia, or any branch thereof, or by the board of public works, shall in any manner be received in payment for said taxes: And Provided further, That no payment shall be made on account of the militia of said District, or for the purpose of erecting a District jail. Upon all payments of said taxes hereby imposed which shall be made in advance of the said first day of November, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, there shall be an abatement allowed of one per centum per month for each and every month so paid in advance; and that upon all said taxes which shall be delinquent and unpaid on said first day of November, there shall be added a penalty of one per centum to the amount thereof, to be collected with such taxes; and a like penalty of one per centum upon the amount thereof shall be added on the first day of each succeeding month to all of said taxes as are then delinquent and unpaid, to be collected as aforesaid. It shall be the duty of the collector of taxes to prepare a complete list of all taxes and property upon which the same are assessed in arrears on the first day of March next, and shall, within ten days thereafter, publish the same, with the notice of sale, in a newspaper published in said District, to be designated by said board of commissioners, for the time and in the manner required by the provisions of the act of the legislative assembly entitled "An act prescribing the duties of certain officers for the District of Columbia, and fixing their compensation," approved August twenty-third, eighteen hundred and seventy-one. And all the provisions of said act as to the sale of property and the collection of taxes in arrears are hereby made applicable to the taxes hereby imposed and in arrears as aforesaid, except that the deed conveying the property so sold shall be executed by the said board of commissioners instead of the governor and the secretary.

SEC. 5. That a joint select committee shall be appointed, consisting of two Senators, to be appointed by the presiding officer of the Senate, and two members of the House, to be appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, whose duty it shall be to prepare a suitable frame of government for the District of Columbia and appropriate draughts of statutes to be enacted by Congress for carrying the same into effect, and report the same to the two Houses, respectively, on the first day of the next session thereof; and they shall also prepare and submit to Congress a statement of the proper proportion of the expenses of said government, or any branch thereof, including interest on the funded debt, which should be borne by said District and the United States, respectively, together with the reasons upon which their conclusions may be based; and in the discharge of the duty hereby imposed, said committee is authorized to employ such assistance as it may deem advisable, at an expense not to exceed the sum of five thousand dollars; and said sum, or so much thereof as may be necessary, be, and the same is hereby, appropriated for that purpose.

SEC. 6. That it shall be the duty of the First Comptroller of the Treasury and the Second Comptroller of the Treasury of the United States, who are hereby constituted a board of audit, to examine and audit for settlement all the unfunded or floating debt of the District of Columbia and of the board of public works, hereinafter specified, namely: first, the debt evidenced by sewer certificates; secondly, the debt purporting to be evidenced and ascertained by certificates of the auditor of the board of public works; thirdly, the debt evidenced by the certificates of the auditor and the comptroller of the District of Columbia; fourthly, claims existing or hereafter created for which no evidence indebtedness has been issued, arising out of contracts, written or oral, made by the board of public works; fifthly, claims, for which no evidence of indebtedness has been issued, arising out of contracts, written or oral, made by or on behalf of the District of Columbia; sixthly, all claims for private property taken by the board of public works from the avenues, streets, and alleys of the cities of Washington and Georgetown; and, seventhly, all unadjusted claims for damages that may have been presented to the board of public works, pursuant to an act of the legislative assembly of the District of Columbia, entitled "An act providing for the payment of damages sustained by reason of public improvements or repairs," approved June twentieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-two, which last-named claims shall severally be examined and audited without regard to any examination heretofore made; and shall make a detailed and tabular statement of all claims presented, the persons or corporations owning the same, and the amount found to be due on account of each; together with a tabular statement of the funded debt of the District of Columbia and of the cities of Washington and Georgetown of every kind and character whatsoever, giving the date of issue, time of maturity, and the rate of interest. And it shall further be the duty of said board to ascertain the amount of sewer-tax or assessment paid by any person, persons, or corporation, under the act of the legislative assembly of said District, entitled "An act creating drainage and sewerage sections in the cities of Washington and Georgetown, in the District of Columbia, and providing for the payment of the construction of sewers and drains therein by assessments, and issuing certificates therefor," approved the twenty-sixth day of June, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, and to prepare a tabulated statement thereof. Said board of audit shall also issue to each claimant a certificate, signed by each of said board and countersigned by the comptroller of said District, stating the amount found to be due to each and on what account; and a register thereof shall be kept by said board, to be transmitted to Congress, and also by the comptroller of said District; and said board of audit shall also ascertain and report to Congress, at the next session thereof, the amount equitably chargeable to the street-railroad companies on account of paving along and within the tracks of said companies, pursuant to the charters of said companies or the acts of Congress relating thereto, together with their reasons therefor. It shall further be the duty of said board of audit to examine into and audit all of the accounts of the auditor and of the treasurer of the board of public works, and of the auditor, the treasurer, the collector, and the comptroller of the District of Columbia, from the date of the organization of said board and of the present government of said District; and for the purposes hereinbefore specified shall have the power to subpœna witnesses, administer oaths, and examine witnesses under oath, and shall have full access to all of the records, books, papers, and vouchers of every kind whatsoever of the board of public works and of the District of Columbia; and to the end that said books and accounts may be thoroughly examined, and the indebtedness of said District, and of the board of public works, and the state of the books and accounts of each of the officers aforesaid, may be accurately ascertained, shall employ one or more skillful and impartial accountants non-resident of the District of Columbia, and such other assistants as they may deem necessary, to make examination of said books, vouchers, and papers, and discharge their other duties under this act, and shall procure inspection of such blank books and papers as may be necessary; and they are hereby authorized to allow for the services of such accountant or accountants and assistants such sums as they may deem proper which shall be paid by the Board of Commissioners out of the revenues of said District. And said accountant or accountants shall take an oath to faithfully discharge the duties imposed by this act. Said board of audit shall give notice for the presentation of the claims hereinbefore specified in such manner as may be deemed necessary; and no claim shall be audited or allowed unless presented within ninety days after the first publication of such notice, and said board shall make full report of all their acts and proceedings to the President, to be by him transmitted to Congress on the first day of the next session thereof. Each of the said officers constituting said board shall be paid the sum of two thousand dollars for his services under this act, out of the funds of said District, in addition to his present compensation.

SEC. 7. That the sinking-fund commissioners of said District are hereby continued; and it shall be the duty of said sinking-fund commissioners to cause bonds of the District of Columbia to be prepared, in sums of fifty and five hundred dollars, bearing date August first, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, payable fifty years after date, bearing interest at the rate of three and sixty-five hundredths per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, to be signed by the secretary and the treasurer of said sinking-fund commissioners and countersigned by the comptroller of said District, and sealed as the board may direct; which bonds shall be exempt from taxation by Federal, State, or municipal authority, engraved and printed at the expense of the District of Columbia, and in form not inconsistent herewith. And the faith of the United States is hereby pledged that the United States will, by proper proportional appropriations as contemplated in this act, and by causing to be levied upon the property within said District such taxes as will provide the revenues necessary to pay the interest on said bonds as the same may become due and payable, and create a sinking-fund for the payment of the principal thereof at maturity. Said bonds shall be numbered consecutively, and registered in the office of the comptroller of said District, and shall also be registered in the office of the Register of the Treasury of the United States, for which last named registration the Secretary of the Treasury shall make such provision as may be necessary. And said commissioners shall use all necessary means for the prevention of any unauthorized or fraudulent issue of any such bonds. And the said sinking-fund commissioners are hereby authorized to exchange said bonds at par for like sums of any class of indebtedness in the preceding section of this act named, including sewer taxes or assessments paid, evidenced by certificates of the auditing board provided for in this act.

SEC. 8. That the authority conferred on the board of public works to issue additional certificates of indebtedness by section four of the act of the legislative assembly approved on the twenty-ninth day of May, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, is hereby annulled. No property shall be advertised for sale or sold for the collection of any assessment authorized by the legislative assembly by the act entitled "An act creating drainage and sewerage sections in the cities of Washington and Georgetown, in the District of Columbia, and providing for the payment of the construction of sewers and drains therein by assessments and issuing certificates therefor" approved on the twenty-sixth day of June, eighteen hundred and seventy-three, until otherwise ordered by Congress; and it shall be unlawful to issue any further certificates of indebtedness authorized by said act.

SEC. 9. That no board or commission of which the governor is ex officio a member (the board of public works excepted) shall be abolished by this act, but the members of the same, other than the governor, shall constitute such board or commission.

SEC. 10. That the act of the legislative assembly of the District of Columbia entitled "An act to fund unsettled liabilities of the city of Washington, and providing for the issuing of the bonds, and levying and collecting taxes to pay the same" approved June twentieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-two, is hereby ratified and approved; but none of the bonds authorized by said act remaining unsold shall be negotiated or sold at less than par.

Approved, June 20, 1874.

Destructive Typhoon.

The telegraph reports that a frightful typhoon passed over Hong Kong, China, Sept. 27th. The steamers Leonor and Albay and eight other vessels were wrecked or foundered and many are missing. A great number of houses were destroyed, and it is reported that a thousand persons were killed. The damage to property in the city and harbor and surrounding country is immense.

Democratic Victories in Tennessee.

The following incomplete list of democratic and rebel murders and other outrages in the State of Tennessee for the month of August is given by the Nashville Bulletin:

Aug. 1.—Burning of the school house at Commerce, Smith county.

Aug. 7.—Massacre of the Reeves brothers at Somerville.

Aug. 10.—Burning of two churches near Cypress, West Tenn.

Aug. 11.—Burning of two churches in Haywood county.

Aug. 12.—Midnight murder of Sandy Peebles, an inoffensive old colored man, by masked men, at Stewart's Creek, Rutherford county.

Aug. 15.—Unprovoked murder of Robert Banks, a colored musician, near Kingston Springs, by one William Kellim:

Aug. 13.—Burning of school house at Gardner's Station, Weakly county.

Aug. 14.—Burning of school house near Grant, Smith county.

Aug. 22.—Fiendish murder of Julia Hayden, a colored school-teacher, at Hartsville, by midnight marauders.

Aug. 24.—Cruel and unprovoked murder of Dick McKinney, an inoffensive and aged colored man, by maskers, at Chestnut Mound, Smith county.

Aug. 25.—Wholesale butchery of sixteen colored men, who were taken from the jail at Trenton, Gibson county, by armed and masked men, and shot down like dogs.

Aug. 29.—The finding of the dead bodies of three negroes fastened on a raft floating down the Tennessee river, with a card attached to their persons with the following inscription:—"They have a ticket to New Orleans; please let them pass."

Aug. 30.—Stopping of the train at York Station, on the Alabama and Chattanooga Railroad, and the deliberate and unprovoked murder of Thomas Ivey, a colored mail route agent.

The above are but a few of the many outrageous deeds which have been perpetrated in Tennessee during the past month, and which have been prompted by the teachings of prominent democratic politicians.

—Troy people never heard the pure, silvery Italian language in all its fluency and beauty until a corner loafer dropped a red hot nickel into the extended palm of an organ grinder.

The Fitch-Sherman Nuptials.

In Washington there has been no event, says the Washington Capital, since the Grant-Sartoris wedding, that has attracted half the attention as does that of the Sherman-Fitch marriage, to take place in that city at the Church of St. Aloysius, on Thursday, October 1, at 11 o'clock. The bride elect is Miss Maria Ewing Sherman better known in society and a large circle of friends as "Minnie Sherman." The gromm is an engineer in the United States Navy, and is spoken of in the highest regard by all who know him. The engagement has been of a year's duration, and 'tis said "they met by chance, the usual way." Several years ago, Miss Sherman, during a visit to some friends at a Western fort—Leavenworth, we think—was thrown from her horse, and sustained injuries so serious as to put her for many months on the invalid list. A protracted stay in Europe wrought a perfect cure, and en route for home, on a visit to the Crystal Palace, Lopdon, Miss Sherman and Mr. Fitch met for the first time. After a pleasant morning they said "good-by." Mr. Fitch found by what steamer Miss Sherman would sail, secured passage for himself, they came together; and how well he improved his opportunities our readers may judge when we tell them that on arriving in Washington, Fitch, with a refreshing coolness, went at once to ask the General and his wife for the gift of their fair daughter. We can imagine the surprise of the bluff, hearty old soldier when called upon to surrender what he so highly prized; but Fitch secured the promise, and on October 1st secures the bride.

Unlike the Grant-Sartoris wedding, there will be at this no pretensions to exclusiveness. Neither the Hon. Thomas Taters, of New York, nor the Hon. George L'Enfant, of Philadelphia, will be welcomed and honored guests, to the exclusion of Admiral Blank or General Gunn, both of whom served their country with such honor as to receive from the Confederates distinctive marks of bravery, taking from the one a hand and the other a leg. They, old friends of the President and welcomed guests at the White House, with a score or more of the same ilk, were "forgotten at the first," while Taters and L'Enfant were bidden to enter and be merry. At the Sherman-Fitch marriage there will be no such inclusiveness, no such exclusiveness. All of the old friends of the General and his family will be invited to the church; and if all are not bidden to the house, it will be for the reason that Mrs. Sherman's house is not as big as her great womanly heart.

There will be eighteen hundred invitations issued, at least two-thirds going from the city. They are very beautifully executed; are on Piries' finest of tinted note paper, with cards and envelopes from the same celebrated house, to match in shade and quality. On a long, narrow sheet of note paper are these words:

"The General of the Army and Mrs. Sherman invite you to be present at the Nuptial Mass and Marriage of their daughter, Maria Ewing Sherman, and Thomas William Fitch, Engineer Corps, U. S. N., which will be solemnized by His Grace, J. B. Purcell, most Rev. Archbishop of Cincinnati, in St. Aloysius Church, Washington, D. C., on Thursday, October 1, 1874, at 11 o'clock." On a small oblong card are these words: "Present this at the chnrch door."

Without this card no one will be admitted, the orders to that effect being most stringent. On a large, almost square card we read:

"The General and Mrs. Sherman at home, Tuesday, October 1, from 1 until 4 o'clock, 207 I street." Many of the invitations have been sent abroad, but those for the city will not go ont for at least ten days. The church of St. Aloysius, which is well calculated for an affair of this kind, will be beautifully decorated, and the flowers ordered for the occasion, from our city florists and those in New York, for the church and house will be in the greatest profusion and embrace everything that is rare and sweet in the floral world. Archbishop Purcell will be assisted in the interesting ceremonies by Rev. Father Young, of the order of St. Dominick, who, many years ago, united in matrimony the late venerable Judge Ewing and his wife. The clergy from other churches in town will be of the most "exquisite quality," so a prominent vocalist has told us, and the affair as a wedding will never have been equalled. There will be eight bridesmaids.

The bride's dress, imported from Paris, is white gros grain silk, with crepe finish, which gives it the most velvety appearance. This is trimmed with white satin and point lace, looped with orange flowers and clematis. The attendants will wear dresses of some white diaphanous material, relieved by colors.

The nuptial mass will last one hour—that is, from 11 till 12—but no one will be received at the house until 1 o'clock, so that during the last hour guests may linger within the sacred edifice.

Army and navy officers need scarcely be told that they are expected to appear in full uniform—not only out of compliment to the gentle bride, but as a mark of respect to her distinguished father, who, with his family, leaves Washington the day after the wedding for St. Louis. Nor should the diplomatic corps, who will never cease wondering at the queer doings of the Grant-Sartoris wedding, where the only foreigners invited were the Hon. Thomas Taters (alias Murphy) and George W. L'Enfants, of Philadelphia, be requested to appear in court dress. With their knowledge of social courtesies, they feel assured it will be the proper thing. Gentlemen will appear in morning reception dress, and ladies in full "carriage visiting" costumes, with light opera bonnets. The bride's trousseau is spoken of as being very elegant, and includes everything that an American lady should have.

The presents, some of which are already here, will, we have no doubt, be numerous and valuable, for General and Mrs. Sherman are respected if not beloved, by our people as a nation. He for his grand soldierly qualities, his contempt for snobs and snobishness, his brave American heart and pride which carried him through his European tour with such eclat that he may be reckoned the only American of note who has never sought audience with King or Emperor. Mrs. Sherman has done much for society in Washington, and we can but sigh for more like her; and Miss Sherman has scores of friends, gained by her gentleness and amiability.

A Blown-Up Rooster.

[Max Adeler.]

Shakspeare, you will remember, says that "the morning cock crew loud." I do not know that the divine bird intended this remark to refer especially to Cooley's rooster, but it fits him with singular exactness. I do not know what the breed was—Black Spanish, I believe—but he was the most animated, earnest, whole-souled, and vehement rooster anywhere around. He turned out earlier and crowed louder than any rooster in the State of Delaware. He could crow oftener in a minute, he could hold on the last note longer, and begin again quicker than any known barn-yard fowl; and he would often wake up in the night and emit half a dozen vociferous screeches in order to make sure that he had not lost his voice since sunset. When he began to run up the scale in the morning, he soon had every other rooster within ten miles hard at work, and I used to lie abed listening to the vocal contest, and observing how Cooley's bird always got more noise out of his larynx than any four of his competitors. I shouldn't have minded it if he had been a little farther off and slept later. But when I live alongside a rooster that is an early riser, and has a voice that is a cross between a fog-whistle and a steam coffee mill, the matter becomes serious. It was useless to complain to Cooley about the chicken. He owed me a grudge for banging his balloon to slithers. So, in self-defense, I procured about a dozen small torpedoes and pasted them all over with flour. Then I strewed them on a bed in my garden, whereon the bird was wont to disport himself in the early morning. He crowed a good deal that morning before I came down, but towards breakfast time I noticed that his voice was somewhat softened and his vocal exercises less frequent. When I went out I found him standing upon one leg, looking abjectly miserable, moving his head from right to left, as if he had something in his mind; and I observed that the torpedoes had disappeared. I moved toward him with the intention of jamming him against something, when he suddenly attempted to jump over the fence. He fell short and struck the post. There was an explosion, and the rooster—oh! where was he? A couple of drumsticks were found by somebody out in the turnpike, and a stray gizzard was picked up in the graveyard, while a few bloody feathers were scattered over Cooley's asparagus bed; and that was all that was ever known about it. When this meets Cooley's eye he will understand why that rooster disappeared, and he had better take the news calmly. No Spanish rooster shall interfere with my rights as an American citizen.

—One of the most extraordinary legacies ever known is that left by a man found hanging on a lamp-bracket in Central Park, New York. In a pocket of his coat was a letter signed Sylvester Philos, in which the writer said he was moneyless and friendless, and resolved to end his troubles by suicide. He had no fear of death as he had no religious scruples, and requested that a committee be appointed to sell the rope with which he hanged himself, the proceeds of the sale to go toward founding a charitable institution.

—A fellow in Swanton, Vermont, cuts off his wife's hair, every once in a while, and sells it for rum; and, occasionally, when the crop doesn't come on fast enough, he digs about its roots, and takes a strong pull at it.

The appropriation of $10,000, voted at the last session of Congress, for the improvement of the Cocheco has cleared the river at the Gulf for a distance of 165 feet in length, by 41 feet in width. The former appropriations of $20,000 in the aggregate, cleared the river for a distance of 365 feet in length, by 40 in width, so that the river is now cleared of obstructions for a distance of 530 feet, having a depth of water of 10 1-2 feet at a low course of tides, and not less than 14 feet at a high course.

By reference to our Marriage, Birth and Death list, it will be seen that Brother Biddeford of the Butler Journal is a poor hand at guessing, and that the Great Falls Journal is not published by E. Fernald & Son.

Sergeant James Davidson, who had served fifty-one years in the army, died at Fort Constitution on Saturday. He was the oldest enlisted man in the service, having served in the Florida and Mexican wars with distinction. For several years past he has had charge of Fort Constitution, and was a man universally respected both in and out of the service.

Mayor Goodrich has given the four republican Aldermen and eight Councilmen very respectable showing on the committees, though never a chairman among them; nor has he done any better for the four aldermen, representing a large majority of the voters and wealth and business of the city, and embracing fully half the talent and experience in the Board, than Mayor Miller did for the two minority representatives of the democracy.

The State Fair commences at Manchester to-day.

Maffitt and Bartholomew.

There will be rare fun at the "Temple" next Thursday evening, and we advise every citizen who thinks laughter the best of medicines to take the children along and go early. James S. Maffitt is one of the two best pantomimists in the country, and Bartholomew has no equal as "Pantaloon." "Flick and Flock" is the attraction, and we expect Maffitt's first appearance in Portsmouth will bring out such an audience as the "Temple" has not seated for many a day. In addition to the pantomime, there will be performances on the musical rocks by the far-famed Jee Brothers, an exhibition of the wonderful dogs of Wambold and as equally wonderful balancing by Master George Wambold. The principal attraction, however, is Maffitt, and all who go to see him will be satisfied beyond measure.

ngular Neglect.

[Foster's (Dover) Democrat, Sept. 26.

Yesterday afternoon a fellow named George Pierce, half drunk, came from Portsmouth to this city, and wanted the City Undertaker, Mr. J. S. Stackpole, to go to the depot when the last train arrived and take charge of the dead body of his wife and assist in burial. Mr. Stackpole went as desired, and the body came, but the man Pierce was not there.

An undertaker from Portsmouth was in charge of the body, but as Pierce himself was not there they could not tell what disposition to make of it. Stackpole finally took care of it for the night, hoping the man would appear in the morning, but he did not until about noon, and then not in condition to hardly know what he was about.

Meanwhile Coroner Drake heard something about it and thought he must have some hand in the matter to ascertain if there had been any foul play: But he discovered nothing and ordered the body buried which was done about 2 o'clock this afternoon. And now it turns out that the dead woman was while living the owner of something like a thousand dollars in cash on deposit in the Strafford National or Savings Bank, we are not certain which, and the living husband Pierce has the bank-book in his possession.

He tried to draw money on it to-day, but the Bank officers having heard the circumstances refused to pay. Thus the matter stands.

It was surmised that possibly the woman had been foully dealt with, because as we hear, she had been subject to frequent abuse by her drunken husband. They once lived in this city, and we are told that on one occasion he hanged her with a rope, and but for the timely inteference of a neighbor, she would have very shortly been dead. All in all, it is a decidedly singular looking case."

Mrs. Pierce recently resided at the South End, and died of dropsy.

Burned to Death at Sea.

The journals of Finland give an account of the conflagration of the steamer Oestenbotten, which has resulted in the loss of sixteen lives. It appears that the fire was caused by the carelessness of a young man on board, who threw away a lighted match which he had just used for his cigar. It fell into a heap of tow, which was speedily in a blaze, and could not be extinguished. The heat soon drove the helmsman from the wheel and the engines shortly afterward stopped. Anchor was cast and the vessel swinging round to the wind, the flames were driven toward the stern cabins, where most of the passengers were dining. Panic and confusion ensued. Two boats were launched, but one was overloaded, and sank, and the other was upset, her freight for the most part afterwards saved. It is said that two sailing vessels, one from Sweden and another from the Aland Island, passed by without attempting to afford any aid. A Norwegian captain, on the other hand, threw himself in the water with a rope round his body, and succeeded in saving many lives. The papers of the ship being destroyed, the number of passengers is not known, but it is said to have been about 100, and the deaths of 16 are said to be ascertained.

Tippling in the Country

George Mack, of Whitefield, is a tiptop town liquor-agent, says the Coos Republican. His sales are guarded by the following rules, which he says he received from the Selectmen, viz.:

1st. All liquor to be A No 1, and sold cheap for cash.

2d. Children under ten years of age will not be allowed to get drunk on the premises unless accompanied by their parents.

2d. No liquor will be sold to any person who cannot walk a board fence, and distinctly pronounce the name of "Erastus Richardson" without slipping; "Rassus Risson" won't do.

4th. Intoxicating liquors will be sold for medicinal purposes except on nights and Sundays, when they will be sold in cases of sickness only.

5th. In no case will more than three quarts of intoxicating liquor be sold to any one person to be drunk on the premises, except in cases of marked indisposition.

6th. No person will be considered sick unless he presents an affidavit to that effect from Judge Carleton, countersigned by three of the most eminent physicians of Whitefield, all of whom shall be sober at the time.

7th. Evidence of sobriety on the part of these essential sponsors will be deduced from their hand writing. If either of them shall write his name plain enough to be read or deciphered by any chirographical rule whatever, he shall be considered drunk on the ground that all men are either drunk or sober, and that he was never known to do such a thing while sober.

8th. No intoxicating liquors will be sold to Ned Carleton so long as he votes the prohibition ticket, unless he will solemnly swear that it is to be used at his own funeral, and give bonds in the sum of eighteen hundred dollars to have the corpse ready within twenty-four hours after purchasing the liquor.

The Scranton, (Penn.) Republican of Friday says: "Within the present week the Pennsylvania Coal Company has paid its mine employees at Dunmore and Pittston a sum of $30,000 for overweight, which the former has carefully placed to the credit of the miners during the past two years. Ever since the settlement which followed the long strike, the company has kept at all its mines, an accurate account of all overplus in the weight of cars to which the men were entitled, and the result of this during the short term of two years is a grand total of $30,000, which was generously paid. When the news first became known to the men, about a week ago, it seemed like a pleasing romance. The instances are the first of the kind on record; and while it is but a simple act of justice, it goes a great way to strengthen that bond of union between employer and employed which should always exist, and which is the surest earnest of the company's prosperity."

New York papers are quarrelling over Dix's prospects. It all depends on how you look at the same figures. If the visual angle of your mind's eye can be adjusted to admit the fact that in 1872, Dix received 5063 more votes than Grant did in New York State, 6694 more votes than the Lieut.-Governor, and 7870 more than the Canal Commissioner on the same ticket, you must allow that his chances are pretty good in 1874.

Sour Stomach.

If the food taken into the stomach is not digested it decomposes. In the latter case a pungent gas is developed which causes sour eructations, or else the stomach itself secretes an acid, which, rising upward at intervals, stings the gullet sharply. These extremely disagreeable sensations are attributable to impaired digestion. To get rid of them, or to prevent their recurrence, it is only necessary to tone and regulate the gastric organs with Hostetter's Bitters. It will not answer to postpone the great corrective with the idea that the unpleasant symptoms will disappear of themselves. So far from that being the case, they almost invariably culminate, if neglected, in chronic dyspepsia, with its concomitants of gnawing in the stomach, dizziness, perverted vision, headache and sleeplessness. It is true that all these disagreeables may be obviated by a course of the Bitters, but how much wiser to anticipate their arrival with one or two doses of that sure preventive of indigestion and strengthener of the alimentary organs.

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Open Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

Desirable Estate

AT PRIVATE SALE.

The convenient and well located HOUSE and the lot of 4000 feet at the corner of Lincoln Avenue and Broad Street, is offered for sale on easy terms. The house has a fine prospect, is located in a portion of the city where gentlemen are rapidly selecting sites for dwellings, and where the best houses are being erected. The house has well arranged rooms, a very cheerful outlook on either side, is supplied with excellent well water introduced into the house, and has garden plot and well built henery attached. The site is peculiarly pleasant, and the opportunity of purchasing a house built for a residence for the owner, and sold only because his business requires his presence in another city, is one that well deserves the attention of any one who desires a home for immediate occupancy. The premises may be examined on application to

ENQUIRE 34 MARKET STREET.

For Sale in Greenland.

THE fine country residence and farm formerly occupied by Rev. John F. Adams,—buildings in thorough repair, land well divided into mowing and tillage; fine fruit orchard, etc., well known for the large quantity of plendid strawberries produced.

The house has an evergreen hedge around it and the buildings are in thorough repair. There is a fruit orchard of 300 apple trees, 30 cherry trees and as many pear trees—and a nursery with 1300 young apple trees. From the grape vines on the place fifteen bushels of fruit have been sold in a season, besides abundance retained for home use. Part of the land heavily wooded and there is a great quantity of muck on the estate. In the pasture there is a never-failing spring. The farm is situated midway between depots of Eastern and Concord railroads. For sale at a bargain, if enquired for immediately,—of O. G. ROBINSON, on the premises, or Butler & Laighton, Market Square, or Bailey & Co., Market street. j21

Remarks to the Point.

[Political Speech by a South Carolina Citizen.]

"Mista Churman: I can't help cussin', butterderdam ef things ain't mixed, sa' de Ripublikin party is gwine to de devil. Dar's Guvnor Moses a raisin' uv bonds an' pothecaryin' uv 'em, an' dea gitten de money an' puttin' of it in his pocket. I don't like dis pothecary bizniz no how, and in specially when it comes to money matters. Now Guvnor Moses heap better stop pothecaryin' dem bonds an' leave 'em in de safe whar dey won't do nobody no harm; an' I repeats, sah, I can't help cussin', butterderdam ef things sin't mixed, an' de Rippublikin party is gwine to de devil fast enough."

—Chignon is dead. The great deity of the feminine toilet is no more. Paris has given it up for the sake of economy. It was very costly. Every year there was taken into Paris 110,000 pounds of human hair in a raw or unworked state—worth $880,000, to be made into chignons. Now all that money can be spent in some other nonsense.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Cheratice he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs!

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week in neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vendor of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores overnight, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers, by order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for carrying feather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city. m25 d3m

Lump's Disappearance.

There had been a wild storm, and now, although the sun was setting, and the sky was clear, the waves dashed up angrily against the rocky cliff and then fell back on the "shingle," and sunk into silence until forced up again by the incoming surf. The fishermen had barely got over the bar in safety, and were rejoicing in their poor cottages, as they dried their drenched garments before their driftwood fire.

The village near by was an humble one. In it lived a poor forlorn woman named Hicks, who was blessed by a family of boys, the oldest of whom bore the very grand name of "Christopher Columbus." But the name had degenerated into "Lump," and he never got any other except when his mother was angry and called from the cottage door, thus:

"Chris-to-pher Co-lumbus Hicks! Come here, or you'll ketch it when I git hold o' you!"

The neighbors said: "Mrs. Hicks never seems to care nothin' for her children till she gits them safe into their coffins; and then she's a most lovin' mother, for she screams so you can hear her out to sea."

Lump was an explorer in his way as well as his great prototype. He was always poking about in the sand, and among the rocks for rare bugs, worms, shells and fish, and he was authority among the boys in their discussions, as to whether a newly-discovered "critter" was a "reptile or fish."

The road from Mrs. Hicks' house to the store was sandy and pleasant, and about half a mile long; but Lump could make it stony and hard and a mile and a quarter long, by going round the shore.

The afternoon after the storm alluded to above, he was dispatched with a molasses jug and strict orders to "run as quick as his legs would carry him to the store at the village," and with hints that he might rue it if he stopped to play, or to come back by the big rocks.

As she had a few more "last words" to say after he had left the house, Mrs. Hicks flew to the window to shout them to him. She did not see him on the road, and so concluded he had gone around the cliff to have a frolic in the surf, as he always did when he had a chance.

She screamed, but the winds screamed louder, and she had to content herself with threats of what Lump would get when he got back.

When sufficient time had passed for him to have done his errand and returned home, she began to grow a little uneasy. "If he had tried to go round by the big rock to show what he could do, he might have been washed off," she said to herself; "and if she lost him, she'd lost all worth having. She couldn't feed the little boys without his work."

One of the little boys soon came in the house all out of breath, screaming: "Mammy! mammy! where's Lump gone?"

"Gone to the store. Why?"

"Cause Bill Dawes see him go round towards the big rock an hour ago; and Davis had tried to go round there in his boat after a barrel he lost overboard, and he says the waves are so high they licked the boards, and barrel, and stuff off in no time, and—and—"

"And what? Speak out, child."

"And—and—" here poor little Tom broke down, and began to scream with all his might, and to jump up and down as he did when he got a sharp stone in his foot.

Looking up the poor mother saw several boys peeping in at the window, and flying out, cried:

"What on arth is it, boys? What ails Tom?"

"Davis says if Lump tried to go over the big rock, the waves licked him off, sartin; and—and—"

"And what, Ephin? Do tell it all!"

Ephin couldn't go on, but a third bearer of evil news took up the dark thread. "And—and we see a great black thing, just like Lump's head, bob up and down two or three times, and then we couldn't see it no more."

Mrs. Hicks didn't have to send for her neighbors; her screams soon brought them to the house, and among the sympathizing crowd were half a dozen ladies from the city who had made the acquaintance of poor Lump on the bluff, and bought bits of sponge, shells, and seaweed from him.

Davis, the fisherman, was there among the rest, and the frantic woman talked as if he had drowned her boy, instead of only innocently looking at the floating molasses jug.

"Why didn't you save him, if you knew he was drowned?" she cried sharply.

Poor Davis only bowed his head in silent pity.

"Why on arth don't somebody run for the doctor and the minister? And why don't you put out your boats you hard hearted men?" she shrieked.

"No boat can go round the big rocks. I've tried, and had to give it up. Where did you see him come up, Tommy?" asked Davis in a subdued tone, as if he felt that Lump's death lay at his door.

"Over yonder," replied Tommy, whose fists were too much engaged with his eyes to spare a finger to point with. "His hair was all parted down slick with water, and he was bouncin' and bouncin' and bouncin' with every wave, and—and—boo—hoo—hoo!"

By this time the minister had arrived, and he tried to unravel the tangled accounts by cross-questioning the witnesses. When he came to Tommy, he said, "Now tell all you know about it." And then poor, kind little Tommy finished the sentence which had choked him.

"And I think his head was loose from the rest of him; for I see it hove clear up once, and there was no body hitched to it."

"A shark's been at him," shrieked the mother, and then her neighbors began to cry with her.

Poor Davis, looking as if he expected arrest, beckoned to two men who had come in. The three left the house, and gathering the weary fellows who had just escaped with their own lives they took to their boats and rowed out, hoping to find the body of poor Lump before the receding tide should carry him out to sea.

The silence in the cottage was unbroken save by the sobs and groans of the mother, who was now too much exhausted to scream. The boys gathered at the windows to watch the boats put out in the surf; the women rocked or leaned against the wall, while the minister sat at the table, with his head on his hand, hardly knowing what to say.

And so they sat, while the shadows were falling, for more than an hour, hoping for the return of the men. No one could do any good, and yet it seemed very heartless to go away and leave the poor widow alone in her grief. No one thought of supper that night. Occasionally a woman whispered to her neighbor some kind word of the lost boy, and the mother, catching it, would sob out a full inventory of Lump's virtues, in charming forgetfulness of the threats she had been pouring out an hour before.

The minister knew the boy—impetuous, brave, quick-witted and enterprising, with more sense than all the rest of the family. He had frequently made him his companion in searching for shells and minerals, and had always thought his lot a hard one—ordered, and scolded, and knocked about, as he had to be, by this petulant and weak minded woman. So now he joined in and corroborated all she said in his praise, and remarked, hopefully:

"I hope our fears may be groundless; he may yet be alive."

"Alive, after two hours in the water!" snarled out the afflicted mother. "Anybody might know that you had come up inland, where there ain't water enough to drown a kitten!" And then she added, "I guess I've seen drownin' enough in my day to know how long it takes to do it. My husband's skiff was overturned right afore my eyes, out in the bay here, and he wasn't in the water two minutes afore he was dead. O, how awful it is to have 'em bro't in dead! How shall I stan' it—how shall I stan' it?"

The minister made some remark about our strength being equal to our day, when the silly woman replied:

"I shall see and hear spirits to-night; I know I shall! I see Mr. Hicks, after he was all laid here, a walkin' along the beach with a load of snails on his shoulders, and I was skeart nigh out o' my—"

"O, mammy, mammy!" cried little Tom, with a bound which brought him to his mother, and then, with his face buried in her lap, he said in smothered tones, "I—I see Lump's ghost jest now come round the p'int, with a 'lasses jug in his hand, and whistlin' Yankee."

"Didn't I tell you so," now shrieked the mother, glancing triumphantly at the minister, as if he had been contradicting her.

Before the minister had time to speak, the door burst open, and sure enough there was Lump, jug in hand.

"I've got the biggest red lizard!—hollo, what's the matter?" he cried, amazed at the company before him.

Some of the women laughed, and some of them cried, while others, with real mother hearts for all boys kissed him.

The minister grasped his hand and cried, "Thank heaven, my dear boy, that you are safe!"

"Safe? Safe from what, in the name of nater?" cried Lump.

An explanation ensued, and when Lump heard that the weary fishermen were out hunting his headless body, he first scolded and then laughed; and I am sorry to say, called his mother the very irreverent name of—old goose."

"Well," she cried, as if to defend herself, "didn't I tell you to come straight back?"

"Yes; but ain't I old enough to go round by the old rock to look for lizards after a storm, if I've a mind to?" cried Christopher Columbus.

Just then two men came in, one of them holding a big black foot-ball which the little city boys had lost a few days before, and which the waves had found and carried out.

When he saw Lump, he laughed and said: "Here's your head, boy; and the jug Davis see was Stevens', that was washed overboard last night in the gale."

The women all slipped away, feeling for the first time that their children must be hungry; and soon the others went, leaving Lump to define his position and make new terms with his mother.

The Difference.

It will be remembered that during the Legislative session of 1873, there was a movement among ardent republicans in different sections of the State, for the removal of all democratic law and other State officers; and much complaint was made of Governor Straw by his republican supporters, that he did not favor nor permit this purely partisan action. But his course was impelled by due regard for true statesmanship, and had it been thoroughly carried out, the present result might have been different,—though the conduct of the democracy since does not warrant very strong belief in this.

The proposition was, to remove the democratic judge of probate, county solicitor, and police justice of Portsmouth, in the county of Rockingham, and others in the other counties, by address from the Legislature to the Governor, as provided by the constitution. "But," said Gov. Straw, "I do not believe that it was intended to thus remove capable and efficient officers, merely because of their political complexion, but only as a speedy means of removing incapable or offending men, nor that the Legislature has the moral right, though they have the power, to do this thing." And in this high-toned view of the matter, it was understood that he was unanimously sustained by the Supreme Judicial Court—that same eminent and honorable body that has since suffered disintegration and dismissal by the very process they all condemned, whatever their politics when they had any.

Gov. Straw was desirous that the Legislature would bring such an address before him, that he might procure the authentic opinion of the Court thereon; but the members of the Legislature, perhaps being more politicians than statesmen, or not desiring to present a case wherein defeat was certain in advance, declined to move further in the matter. Possibly such an adverse opinion coming unanimously from the Supreme Court might have had some influence in staying the shameless partisan action of the late democratic Legislature—the like of which, doubtless, in its entirety, the world never saw before in any elective legislative body; but there is little in the conduct of the democrats since, either collectively or individually with those most affected by Gov. Straw's action, to base much hope of this upon.

It is not a little singular, considering the various candidates talked of for the governorship at the last election, that Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett, (who by the whirligig of local politics is now elected alderman of his adopted city,) when in the Legislature years ago, and decided and earnest party man as he is and always was, should have voted against the address for the removal of Judge Roberts of Rollinsford, from the same statesmanlike appreciation of this power or right of "address" as entertained by Gov. Straw and his legal advisers.

But the democratic partisans found a man of a different mould in Governor Weston,—one ready to do their bidding to the utmost—even to the danger of the subversion of all government; and the removal of all republican officials, solely for their politics, was entered upon with as much zest and as little hesitation as the Jacobins of the French revolution inaugurated their judicial murders for opinion's sake.

However much cause for regret and vexation republicans may have at the present juncture, it should be some satisfaction to every right-minded man, that it is always better to suffer wrong than do wrong.

State Teachers' Association.

The twenty-first annual meeting of this Association will be held at Whitefield, commencing Thursday evening, October 15, and continuing two days. The order of exercises embraces a variety of school topics of interest to every teacher and adult scholar. The address will be given on Thursday evening by Joseph G. Edgerly, Superintendent of the Manchester schools, to be followed by a lecture upon the "Duties of parents in relation to schools," by Joseph Kidder of Manchester. An interesting lecture upon Physical Geography will be given on Friday evening by W. W. Colburne, formerly principal of the Manchester High School. Some of the best talent of the State will be represented at this meeting and it is hoped that there will be a full attendance. Free return tickets will be furnished at the close of the convention.

How to Have a Secretary of the Treasury.

[Chicago Tribune.]

Mr. Gamaliel Bradford, of Boston, has suggested a plan for the accomplishment of that most desirable end,—a definite financial policy. He would have the English system of Ministerial responsibility adopted, so far as the Secretary of the Treasury is concerned.

At present, this official is little less than a head clerk while Congress is in session. The House committees arrange about taxation and appropriations and map out a general financial policy. The House ratifies it, and the Secretary does as he is bid. During the Congressional vacations he does what he wishes. A Boutwell issues a few millions of shinplasters to "move the crops," and syndicates the public debt to suit himself. A Richardson resumes specie-payments, $5 at a time. The result of all this is that we have no fixed policy. Our temporary makeshifts are patched up, in the odd moments of a busy session, by this or that committee, and the man nominally in charge of our finances is little more than a cashier. There are incidental evils. The question of finance is not regarded from a national point of view. Every man concerned in settling it is busily thinking of the probable effect of this or that measure, not upon the country, but upon his own constituency. It is not handled by men to whom it is the great object. It is one of many things that claim their attention. It is not handled by men trained to finance. Alexander Hamilton is not reproduced in the average Congressman, but this average man, under the present system, decides what makeshift shall bridge over the vacation. To secure the essentials of good financial administration, which he regards as unity, continuity, publicity, responsibility, national representation, individual talent, and skill, Mr. Bradford suggests this plan: "The conversion of the nominal into the real head of the finances, the admission of the Secretary of the Treasury to the floor of Congress, with the right and duty of taking part in debate, and subjection to what the French call interpellation."

Such a Secretary would receive estimates of necessary expenses from all heads of departments. He could increase or diminish these, if he wished. He would prepare a balance-sheet and submit it to the House. If it showed a probable surplus, he would recommend the remission of certain taxes, or the retirement of a certain amount of greenbacks, or the increase of certain expenditures. If it showed a probable deficit, he would recommend an increase of taxation upon some article or articles, or a decrease in expenditure. The financial debate would be confined to this one plan. Any member of the House could suggest an amendment. The Secretary would signify his acceptance or rejection of it. If he rejected it and the House maintained it, he would resign, and the President would appoint his successor. So, too, if his whole plan were ultimately rejected, he would resign. This plan would place power and responsibility in the hands of the Secretary of the Treasury. Trained financiers would be called to the place. Their recommendations would enlighten Congress. Continuity of plan, so far as it is needed, would be secured by the necessity imposed upon each Secretary of showing why he departed from his predecessors' plan, if he did so. The utmost publicity would attend the final formation of the plan. Its unamended draft would be constructed by a man representing the whole nation, and therefore thinking only of the interests of the whole nation. Thus the essentials of financial administration, as enumerated by Mr. Bradford, would be compassed.

The theory, on a larger scale, has worked like a charm in England. Guizot and Thiers have both praised it there without stint. A writer whom Mr. Bradford quotes speaks of the principle of ministerial responsibility as "the latent essence and effectual secret" of the English Constitution. May, in his "Constitutional History of England," speaks of it in equally high terms. We ought not to imitate our British brethren, who are apt to reject anything that is American, by rejecting this theory because it is English. If, as Mr. Bradford claims, it would bring order out of confusion, establish a fixed, wise policy, and so take us one step nearer specie-payments, the sooner we have it the better. Its adoption would not be difficult if public men would tacitly consent to it. If they should do so, a mere change in the business arrangements of the Treasury Department, and of the House Committees on Ways and Means and Appropriations, would effect it. But if they should oppose the idea, as they probably would, a constitutional amendment would be needed.

Fifty Pounds Reward.

[Donald G. Mitchell, in St. Nicholas.]

In England, a great many years ago—when Anne had just become Queen, and when the Duke of Marlborough was making those dashing marches on the continent of Europe which went before the fearful and the famous battle of Blenheim; and when the people of Boston, in New England, were talking about printing their first newspaper (but had not yet done it,)—there appeared in the London Gazette a proclamation, offering a reward of fifty pounds for "the arrest of a middle-size, spare man, about forty years old, of a brown complexion and dark brown-colored hair, who wears a wig, and has a hooked nose, a sharp chin, and a large mole near his mouth." And the proclamation further said that "he was for many years a hose-factor in Freeman's yard in Cornhill."

And what do you care about this man with a hooked nose, for whose capture a reward was offered about the year 1730?

Had he plotted to kill the Queen? No. Had he forged a note? No. Had he murdered anybody? No. Was he a Frenchman in disguise? No.

What then?

He had written some sharp political pamphlets, which the people in authority didn't at all like, and were determined to punish him for.

But, I suppose, there were a great many hot political writers who were caught up in the same way in those old-fashioned times, and put in the pillory or in prison for the very same sort of wrongdoing, whose names we don't know, and don't care to know.

Why, then, have I brought up this old proclamation about this forty-year-old, hook-nosed man?

Only because his name was Daniel Defoe, and because he wrote that most delightful of all the story books that ever were written—ROBINSON CRUSOE!

To be sure, he had not written "Robinson Crusoe" at that time; if he had, perhaps the sheriff, or whoever sent out the proclamation would have described him as the writer of a story-book instead of describing him as a hosier of Freeman's Court. But I don't know. People in authority never know or care so much about the books a man writes, as about the shop he keeps and the debts he owes.

But did they catch the man? and did somebody get the pounds?

Yes, they caught him; and yes, too, about the pounds.

But he had an awful time in prison, and chafed horribly; for he was one of those restless, impatient busy-bodies, who want always to be at work in their own way. He was what would have been called in our time, a hot headed radical; and if he had been born a century and a half later, he would have made a capital editorial writer for a slashing morning journal in such a city as New York or Washington. But our people in authority would not have shrugged their shoulders, or failing of this would have given him an office.

He had all the more enemies because he had been befriended by King William (who died 1702,) and who was a staunch Protestant and—as you know—had come over from Holland to take the English throne. Defoe was a staunch Protestant, too, and a very hot-headed one. And it was his sharp talk about religious matters—which were then closely mixed up with political ones—that brought him to grief.

But he kept on writing. The prison did not stop that, and at last, when he came out, he wrote all the more. He was a born writer and never grew tired of writing. Yet it was fully seventeen years after the offer of that fifty pounds reward, and he was well on towards sixty, that he published, "The Life and Adventures of Robinson Crusoe, of York, Mariner," who lived eight and twenty years all alone, on an uninhabited Island on the coast of America, near the mouth of the great river Oroonoque.

Ah, what a book it was! What a book it is!

You don't even know the names of those political booklets which this man wrote, and which made him a good friend of the great King William, and gave him great fame, and brought him to prison; nor do you know much about those other books which this man wrote upon Trade, and Religious Courtship, and a score of other things. But as for that dear old figure in the high goat-skin cap, and with the umbrella to match, and the long beard—who does not know him and all about him, all over the Christian world?

Why, long as it is since I first trembled over the sight of those savage foot-marks in the sand, and slept in the cave, and pulled up the rope-ladder that hung down over the palisades,—yet, if that dear old figure in the goat-skin cap and the goat-skin leggins were to march up my walk on some mild, spring evening, I don't think I should treat him as a stranger in the least. I think I should go straight to him and say: "My dear Mr. Crusoe, I'm ever so glad to see you; and did Mr. Friday come with you? And is Poll at the station? And have you been to York? Do you think of going to sea again?"

I don't know any figure of the last two centuries that it would be so hard to blot out of men's minds as the figure of "Robinson Crusoe."

A Practical Answer.

Says the Indianapolis Journal: In the absence of a teacher last Sunday, Superintendent Knippenberg, of the Garden Baptist Sunday-school, took charge of the class himself—some six bright boys. Indirectly he had occasion to speak of the two roads, one leading to heaven and one to hell, and stated that God had placed the Bible in our hands to direct us to the right road and warn us from walking in the road which leads to ruin. The Superintendent, wishing to illustrate the subject, asked the boys:

"Boys, have you ever been in the country?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you ever come to a point where two roads met, and found no finger-board to direct you?"

"Yes, sir."

"What road did you take?"

"The road that had the most black walnuts on," was the quick response of one of the bright lads. Mr. K. found the answer too much, and with a loud smile replied; "That's right boys; go for the black walnuts."

An Imitator of Father Hyacinth.

An Old Catholic priest in Switzerland is about to follow Father Hyacinthe's example, abandoning celibacy. St. Ange Lievre of Biel, in announcing his betrothal to a Prostestant lady, says:

"I marry because I wish to remain an honorable man. In the sixteenth century it was a proverbial expression to say as "corrupt as a priest," and this might be said, to-day. I marry, therefore, because I wish to get out of the Ultramontane slough."

During the last two years, sixty-seven Roman Catholic priests have been convicted of immorality in France and Switzerland. In view of such facts, he says it is right time to restore by marriage the good name of the Romish priesthood, which the misconduct of too many of its members have covered with infamy.

Is It an Ass?

[Cinn. Times.]

"Mont Blanc must 'step down and out.' It is no longer the highest mount in Europe, for it has been discovered that Mt. Elburz, in the Caucasus, is several feet higher."

The complacent worm of the Times should hire some cheap boy to come to his office with an atlas during his intervals of mental labor, and teach him something about geography. He will find, upon examination, that Mt. Elburz is on the northern slope of the Caucasian Mountains, and far within the frontier of Russia. The boy should also inform the Times philosopher that Russia is generally supposed to be a part of Europe. The boundary between Russia and Turkey in Asia is the river Aras, at least a hundred miles south of Mt. Elburz.

The above is from the Cleveland Leader. In this connection we may remark that Texas is no longer the largest State in the United States, for Australia is considerably bigger; that Lake Superior is no longer the largest body of fresh water in America, as the Indian Ocean is several feet broader; and that Iceland is no longer the largest city in South America, as Pekin has several more inhabitants. Cowles must brush up his geography, or he can never get to Switzerland.

Was there ever such a consummate ninny in the world? "Russia is generally supposed to be a part of Europe" is it? Why, you great, big, unadulterated paralelopipedon, Russia extends clear across the Asiatic Continent to the Pacific ocean; and that is generally supposed to be a part of Europe, is it? Go and get your Colton, or any other good atlas, and you will find Mount Elburz classed among the mountains of Asia as 18,943 feet high. Get your Lippincott, or any other good gazetter, and you will read as follows:

"Elbrooz, Elbrouz, or Elbruz, also written Elburz or Elberj, a range of mountain in Central Asia, occupying a middle portion between the Anti-Taurus and the Kuen-lun, and forming the connecting range by which these two systems are united."

Now get your map, and you will find first, that the river Aras is not the boundary between Europe and Asia, but that the continental boundary, in that direction, lies two hundred miles further north; second, that the Russian province of Georgia, in which Mt. Elburz stands, is in Asia; and, third, and last, that you have made an ass of yourself.

Laconics.

The S. P. C. A. Lyceum Committee deserves great credit for enterprise in catering to the tastes of lecture going people and the citizens in general. In addition to a list of first class lecturers it has engaged the English Opera Company of Boston for the opening night. The opera ("Martha") will be brought out with full and correct costumes, stage effects, etc., and in all respects —save chorus and orchestra—the work will be presented as upon the English or Italian stage. Tickets to the opera and the entire course of lectures can be had at the very low price of one dollar and fifty cents.

"The Black Fiend" was a satisfactory performance to those persons present who are easily satisfied. Edmund Coles showed no deterioration in quality, and "Galletti," the ballet dancer, showed signs of being well seasoned. Madeline Hardy and Nannie Harold are good singers and helped out the entertainment amazingly.

To-day's issue completes the 118th year of the NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE.

Of course, everybody is going to the "Temple" to-morrow evening to see Maffitt at his funniest. The woods are not very full of such lively men as he, and we greatly mistake the appetite of our citizens for amusement if there are any reserved seats to be had when the hour for the entertainment to commence arrives. There is one thing that the people of this generation will never be satiated with—fun; and such an opportunity as this presents will hardly be lost sight of.

The Franklin House will be a hostelry no longer. The second story will be converted into the largest hall in the city, and the third story will be arranged for use by secret societies.

Schooner Mary E. Caswell started for the Shoals, Tuesday forenoon, the wind being light and the tide on the flood at the time. Finding the tide taking the vessel rapidly toward Portsmouth bridge, and having no ground tackle save a small grapple, the skipper ran a line to schooner Addie Todd, laying at Dover R. R. wharf; but the line was cast off by the crew of the latter vessel, and the former went helplessly up with the tide against the bridge, which she struck with great force, broadside on, her bowsprit being carried away and her foremast unstepped by the shock, and her hull shaken up enough to make her leak freely. A gentleman and two ladies on board were considerably alarmed, but were landed on the bridge unharmed. The schooner was held against the bridge by the tide until high water, when she returned to the wharf.

Schooner Mary L. Harty, of Gloucester, took 150 barrels of mackerel at one haul on Tuesday, about half-way between the Shoals and Whalesback. A large force of extra hands was hired to take care of the fish, but at dark the schooner's decks were still covered.

A True Temperance Reform.

The public interest in the temperance movement in Saco and Biddeford is still on the increase and shows no sign of abating. On Sunday, three monster meetings were held and there were thirty speeches. Three hundred persons signed the pledge. The Biddeford Times of Monday evening says:

The Temperance reform movement now prevailing in this and the neighboring city of Saco is the most wonderful movement that ever pervaded this community. It penetrates all classes and conditions of society, high and low, rich and poor, and is the one theme of conversation on the street, in the stores and at the fireside. Its success and spread is beyond anything the most zealous advocates of temperance here ever dared dream, much less hope for. It was just two weeks old yesterday, yet such a perfect revolution has been wrought and events have followed so thick and fast upon each other that one can hardly believe the time has been so short—he appears to have lived almost a lifetime in a few days. Where this movement will end the Great Giver of all good only can tell. The workers in this cause have placed their hands in God's and earnestly beseech him to lead them on until rum drinking and rum selling shall be unknown in this community. The tide of public opinion having set in favorable to this cause is mounting higher and still higher, sweeping from the rumsellers one after another of his customers and gathering them within the total abstinence ark.

State News.

Whittaker, the eloping stage proprietor of North Conway, will be declared a bankrupt upon his creditors' presentations. His exit is mourned by many heretofore confiding creditors.

There have been no deaths in Kingston the present year thus far.

The Wallace boy who stabbed a little girl named Stearns at Milford, a few days ago, seems to have a mania similar to that of Pomeroy, the young Boston fiend. He has inflicted many cruelties on other children and on animals. The girl is still in a critical condition.

Ambrose Palmer, of Sandwich, was killed on Monday, Sept. 21st, by falling in front of his loaded cart, drawn by four oxen, while descending a hill about a mile from Sandwich Lower Corner. The cart-wheel cut off his leg just below the thigh, and death ensued in a few moments from loss of blood.

Israel Howland, of Franconia, set a loaded gun by the stove to dry, and laid down on the floor near it. The gun was jarred down and discharged, the contents entering Mr. Howland's left side and inflicting a serious if not fatal wound.

A little son of Mr. Cyril Webber of Contoocook, nine years of age, had his hand badly crushed while trying with others to start a turn table used to turn locomotives in that place, requiring the removal of three fingers near the hand. The little fellow has shown a remarkable musical turn and has been taking lessons upon an organ, and was making good progress until this calamity befel him.

Christopher A. Lewis of Marlow hung himself on Sunday forenoon. He was a respected citizen, a farmer in comfortable circumstances, 50 years old, and leaves a wife and five children. He had appeared in low spirits from long-continued ill-health.

There are more students in Dartmouth College at the present time than at any other previous year.

The Concord Monitor looks "mighty nice" in a new dress.

Readables.

The New Orleans troubles are settled by a compromise. The democrats agree to do everything in their power to aid in the maintenance of law and order and support of the legally constituted authorities. They also promise that during the approaching election they will strive to prevent intimidation and violence on the part of the party they represent. It was further agreed that the advisory board shall consist of five members—two from the democrats, two from the republicans, and one non-partisan—who is named in the person of Dr. Bonzano, superintendent of the mint. The Board of State canvassers, about which there has been so much discussion, it is agreed shall consist of five members, two of whom shall be democrats and three republicans.

A private letter received from an engineer's officer on board the steam-sloop Swatara which carried the transit of Venus party to their station, states that during the vessel's voyage from New York to the Cape of Good Hope, she attained a speed of eleven knots, and kept it up for forty-eight consecutive hours, with a consumption of about eighteen tons of coal per day. The Swatara's engines are the first compound engines placed in a vessel which were designed and built by the Bureau of Engineering, and the vessel sailed from New York on this her first voyage without having made a trial trip or test of her machinery, other than to try the valves for high pressure safety. The same letter states that she has shown herself also an excellent sailor, and dry boat.

Does the Portland Press intend to convey the idea that the New York Sun's description of Geo. F. Hoar is not a correct one? A surlier sneerer than Hoar cannot be found in Congress. Watch him for a season on the floor of the House, Mr. Press, and then admire him if you can.

Francis D. Moulton has given bail in the sum of $20,000, in the suit of Miss Proctor against him for $100,000 damages. Although the issue is technically a side one, it can hardly fail to reopen the Beecher controversy, and a considerable addition to the literature of the scandal may be looked for. In the first place, the judicial inquiry, if it be thorough and searching, will show whether there has been a conspiracy against Mr. Beecher. In the second place, it will show how far Mr. Moulton and Mr. Tilton are credible witnesses, and the test will affect their trustworthiness, not only as to the Proctor story, but as to the other branch of the case. In the third place, Mr. Beecher will probably be a witness, and his examination and cross-examination will go far finally to settle many disputed points. In the fourth place, Mr. Bowen can hardly keep off the witness stand, and a silence which is as remarkable as anything in this remarkable affair will be broken by the power of a subpœna. Persons who most regret the letting loose of the scandal upon society will at least rejoice that it is about to be subjected to the rules of judicial investigation, and that trial by a competent court is to take the place of inconclusive "trial by newspaper."

The Newburyport Herald says an amusing feature of the clambake at Salisbury Beach was the spectacle of a young lady and gentleman who hungered for the shellfish. The lady hardly wished to soil her new kids, and so, while she held her mouth open, the gentleman put in the clams and threw away the head after her incisors had decapitated the fish.

A man was found dead in a state-room on the steamer Providence, on her arrival at Fall River from New York on Sunday morning. He had no letters except a note inviting him to the house of Mrs. Higgins, Green Point. On a handkerchief in his pocket was marked "William C. Newton." A ticket for New Bedford was also found in his pocket. In the room was a bottle partly filled with whiskey, and a vial which had contained chloral. Coroner Dillingham was notified, and decided that as it was evident the man either committed suicide, or had died from an overdose of the chloral, an inquest was not necessary.

General Kilpatrick says that the liberal party is dead, and he ought to know, since he has been there himself. He now proposes to atone for his past shortcomings by working with and for the republican party.

Sour Stomach.

If the food taken into the stomach is not digested it decomposes. In the latter case a pungent gas is developed which causes sour eructations, or else the stomach itself secretes an acid, which, rising upward at intervals, stings the gullet sharply. These extremely disagreeable sensations are attributable to impaired digestion. To get rid of them, or to prevent their recurrence, it is only necessary to tone and regulate the gastric organs with Hostetter's Bitters. It will not answer to postpone the great corrective with the idea that the unpleasant symptoms will disappear of themselves. So far from that being the case, they almost invariably culminate, if neglected, in chronic dyspepsia, with its concomitants of gnawing in the stomach, dizziness, perverted vision, headache and sleeplessness. It is true that all these disagreeables may be obviated by a course of the Bitters, but how much wiser to anticipate their arrival with one or two doses of that sure preventive of indigestion and strengthener of the alimentary organs.

Too Late.

The way men put off important matters to the last moment is one of the curious things in nature. The fifth concert in aid of the Public Library of Kentucky was advertised to take place July 31. The day after, August 1, Gov. Bramlette, the manager at Louisville, received over $50,000 for tickets. Had the drawing taken place at that time the Governor would have had to send this money back, but as the concert was postponed to November 30, it was all right with them. We presume that on the first day of December next, the day after the concert, thousands of dollars will be received, one day too late, for there will be no further postponement. This money might just as well have been sent a week before, as when it was. eod&w2w24

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Oven Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

HOUSE NO. 9 ISLINGTON STREET,

OCCUPIED by JOSEPH A. STEARNS, ESQ., with or without Furniture. sep16
ENQUIRE 34 MARKET STREET.

For Sale in Greenland.

THE fine country residence and farm formerly occupied by Rev. John F. Adams,—buildings in thorough repair, land well divided into mowing and tillage; fine fruit orchard, etc., well known for the large quantity of splendid strawberries produced.

The house has an evergreen hedge around it and the buildings are in thorough repair. There is a fruit orchard of 300 apple trees, 20 cherry trees and as many pear trees—and a nursery with 1300 young apple trees. From the grape vines on the place fifteen bushels of fruit have been sold in a season, besides abundance retained for home use. Part of the land heavily wooded and there is a great quantity of muck on the estate. In the pasture there is a never-failing spring. The farm is situated midway between depots of Eastern and Concord railroads. For sale at a bargain, if enquired for immediately,—of O. G. ROBINSON, on the premises, or Butler & Laighton, Market Square, or Bailey & Co., Market street. jel

AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cared himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.
JOHN TAGGART."

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or store's over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city. m26 d3m

OF THE

UNITED STATES

PASSED AT THE

FIRST SESSION OF THE FORTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 67.]

AN ACT to create two additional land districts in the State of Kansas.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That all the western portion of the State of Kansas, included as follows, to-wit, commencing at the northeast corner of township ten of range sixteen, and running thence west to the western boundary of the State; thence south, along said boundary line, to the fourth standard parallel; thence east, along said parallel line, to the southeast corner of Rush County; thence north to the place of beginning, be, and hereby is, constituted a new land-district, to be called the western land district.

SEC. 2. That all the western portion of the State of Kansas, included as follows, to-wit, commencing at the northeast corner of Barton county, and running thence west to the northwest corner of said county; thence south to the south-west corner of said county; thence west along the fourth standard parallel line to the western boundary of the State; thence south along said boundary-line to the southern boundary of the State; thence east along said boundary-line to the southeast corner of Barbour county; thence north to the place of beginning, be, and hereby is, constituted a new land-district, to be called the Arkansas Valley land-district; and shall, in addition, include in the district the lands lying in Rice and Reno counties.

SEC. 3. That the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, is hereby authorized to appoint a register and a receiver for each of said districts who shall discharge like and similar duties and receive the same amount of compensation allowed to other officers discharging like duties in the other land offices of said State.

Approved, June 20, 1874.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 68.]

AN ACT to create an additional land district in the Territory of Colorado.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That all that part of the Territory of Colorado commencing at a point on the south boundary line of Colorado Territory between ranges sixty-nine and seventy west of the sixth principal meridian; thence running north, to the northern boundary of township twenty-eight south; thence west, on a line between townships twenty-seven and twenty-eight south, to the western boundary of range seventy-three west; thence north, on said boundary of range seventy-three west, to a point where the line between townships forty-eight and forty-nine north, New Mexico meridian, will intersect the same; thence west, between said townships forty-eight and forty-nine north, to the western boundary of the Territory; thence south, with said boundary line, to the southwest corner of the Territory; thence east, on the line of the southern boundary of the Territory, to the place of beginning, shall constitute a separate land district, to be called Del Norte land district, the office of which shall be located at Del Norte, in Conejos County: Provided, That the President of the United States may change the location of said land office from time to time, as the public interest may require.

SEC. 2. That the President shall appoint, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate a register and a receiver of public moneys for said district; and said officers shall reside in the place where said land office is located, and shall have the same powers and shall receive the same fees and emoluments as the like officers now receive in the other land districts in said Territory.

SEC. 3. That all persons in said district who, prior to the opening of said Del Norte land office, shall have filed their declaratory statement or application for pre-emption or homestead rights in any other land office in said Territory, shall thereafter make proofs and entries at said Del Norte land office; and all unfinished business in any other land office relating exclusively to lands in said Del Norte land district shall be transferred to said Del Norte land office when notified by the officers of the opening thereof.

Approved, June 20, 1874.

Europe's Ruins.

Mr. Bailey, of the Danbury News, went out to Europe with an insatiate yearning to see some ruins. From boyhood hours his thought had been that if he could but go to Europe and see a ruined castle he would be willing to give up life and all its pleasures. He has now seen several ruins, but they do not come up to the anticipation. He says of one of them:

"The castle, like many other ruins I have seen, is formed of a curious mixture of stone chips, cobbles and brick. I had an idea that they were of huge, evenly-squared blocks of granite, with marble floors. But they are of just such composition as I mention, and how the builders ever succeeded in getting them up straight is something I cannot understand. The floors are not marble, but of concrete. Where they are not of concrete they are flagging, and in the days when they were in their prime, rheumatism must have been in the hey-day of its career. The family which didn't have four cases of it was looked down upon; and properly enough. The ground floors to many of the houses now occupied are of stone, but it is not so bad as oil-cloth.

The cement in the walls of the various ruins excites the attention of many people. They say it is impossible to make as firm mortar in these days. It is hard—harder than losing an eight dollar horse. I have nothing to say against the cuteness of the ancients except in the matter of architecture and painting. I cannot forget that several-hundred-year old revolver and breech-loader which I saw in the Tower of London. The ancients did many things which we are just discovering and proclaiming as invention, and I do not doubt that it will yet be found that they had shirts opening behind. But let us not anticipate.

The walls were built of concrete in those days, and not plastered. How their ugliness was hid I do not know. Perhaps it was not concealed at all, but that it was just as we now find it. In such a case there must have been trouble. Imagine young Lord de Rowbeer, whose father recently came over with the Conqueror, dancing a set with a bewitching partner. In the excitement of the dance he is struck against by Baron O'conner, also recently from Normandy, and sent spinning against the nutmeg-grater wall. You will have no trouble in imagining him getting on his feet in a way to conceal the damage to his pants, and with the blood trickling down his face, his sword drawn, and shaking with passion, inviting the Baron to step out in the back yard and get "nailed" between the eyes. With equal ease we can imagine the Baron, later in the night, awakened from a sound, virtuous sleep by a lump of concrete falling from the wall of his bed-chamber and striking him on the nose. We will not pause to listen to his remarks."

Why Cannot a Woman Become a Mason?

At the late anniversary celebration of the Masons of Austin, Nevada, the orator of the day thus discoursed upon this vexed question;

"Woman sometimes complains that she is not permitted to enter our lodges and work with the craft in their labors, and learn all there is to be learned in the institution. We will explain the reason. We learn that before the Almighty had finished his work, he was in some doubt about creating Eve. The creation of every living and creeping thing had been accomplished, and the Almighty had made Adam (who was the first Mason) and erected for him the finest lodge in the world, and called it Paradise No. 1. He then caused all the beasts of the field and the fowls of the air to pass before Adam for him to name them, which was a piece of work he had to do alone, so that no confusion might thereafter arise from Eve, whom He knew would make trouble if she was allowed to participate in it, if He created her beforehand.

Adam being very much fatigued with the labors of his first task fell asleep, and when he awoke he found Eve in the lodge with him. Adam, being senior warden, placed Eve as the pillar of beauty in the South, and they received their instructions from the Grand Master in the east, which, when finished, she immediately called the craft from labor to refreshment. Instead of attending to the duties of her office as she ought, she left her station, violated her obligation, and let in an expelled Mason, who had no business there, and went around with him, leaving Adam to look after the jewels. The fellow had been expelled from the Grand Lodge, with several others, some time before. But hearing the footsteps of the grand Master, he suddenly took his leave, telling Eve to go to making aprons, she and Adam were not in proper regalia. She went and told Adam, and when the Grand Master returned to the lodge he found his gavel had been stolen.

He called for the senior and junior wardens who had neglected to guard the door, and found them absent. After searching some time he came to where they were hid and demanded of Adam what he was doing there, instead of his occupying the official station. Adam replied that he was waiting for Eve to call the craft from refreshment to labor again, and that the craft was not properly clothed, which they were making provisions for. Turning to Eve he asked her what she had to offer in excuse for unofficial and unmasonic conduct. She replied that a fellow passing himself off as a grand lecturer had been giving her instructions, and she thought it was no harm to learn them. The Grand Master then asked her what had become of his gavel; she said she didn't know, unless the fellow had taken it away.

Finding that Eve was no longer trustworthy, and that she had caused Adam to neglect his duty, and had let in whom he had expelled, the Grand Master closed the lodge, and turning them out set a faithful tyler to guard the door with a flaming sword. Adam, repenting of his folly, went to work like a man and a good Mason, in order to get reinstated again. Not so with Eve; she got angry about it and commenced raising Cain. Adam, on account of his reformation, was permitted to establish lodges and work in the lower degrees; and, while Eve was allowed to join him in the works of charity outside, she was never again to be admitted to assist in the regular work of the craft. Hence the reason why woman cannot become an inside Mason."

—When an enterprising and ingenious superintendent of a San Francisco street railroad line invented a plan to register the passengers by a spring on the lower step of the rear platform, he made no provision for the ingenuity of the conductors, who became excessively polite and stepped off to assist parties to alight, but all the time kept one foot on the step, so that no more than one person was registered, as the step was not allowed to spring back.

—In childhood be modest; in youth temperate; in manhood just; in old age prudent.

THUSDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1874.

Massachusetts Politics.

Is a business beyond comprehension. Apparently, Gen. Butler is not agitating the gubernatorial waters to any great extent, being as apparently engaged in securing a Congressional renomination. Ben's weather eye, however, is always open for contingencies, and should the coming State convention get into a difficulty on account of the conflicting interests gathering there, he might (had he friends enough,) slide into the gubernatorial candidacy with ease; for, mind you, politics is the strangest of all things. The newspapers, of course, are against Butler, having never forgiven him his hearty opposition and contempt for their manner of attack. But the politicians; there's the rub! And those of Massachusetts are as like the politicians of New York as they can afford to be. Always mindful of themselves, they are open to a trade; and so it is that the controllers of conventions who have in times past fought Butler fiercely, are ready for any trade that may enhance their interests. All through the State, the primaries are being held, and the frightened anti-Butler papers abound in mysterious hints to their friends to "look out for him" for fear he and not Talbot or Loring may turn up in the lead at Worcester. Butler has not declared himself a candidate for Governor, yet the fear of his doing so makes the whole silk-stocking tribe tremble. Butler alive and quiet is as dreadful to their distorted visions as though there were immediate danger of his triumph. The elements that were against him last year are lukewarm at present. Dawes remembers that Butler did him signal service, the Hoars are disgruntled because they are not bid off at their self-estimated value, and the small sized bargainers are on the fence. The contest for the gubernatorial candidacy waxes warm, and suddenly that unrewarded agricultural statesman, Dr. Loring, finds increasing strength. Singular to relate, Messrs. Talbot and Loring are not such bitter enemies to Benjamin F. as others are, and these two are the prominent candidates. Lieut.-Gov. Talbot's veto of the license bill enlisted against him a vast influence which must be felt in the campaign. Should his defeat before the convention look probable, the dismayed prohibitionists are likely to transfer themselves in a body to any one but Dr. Loring. And in that contingency, why not to B. F. Butler? Has he not voluntarily placed himself on record as favoring the enforcement of all laws on the statute books, and is not the liquor law one of them? Then Gen. Butler has many friends among the Loring men and might send the Doctor to Congress in place of himself, could he become the nominee with the help of the standing candidate. There are many more improbable contingencies than the triumph of Gen. Butler in this quietly conducted canvass—and the Massachusetts anti-Butler newspapers will not feel at all safe until the Worcester convention shall have been held.

There are signs of improvement in the Congressional delegation, even should a little democratic element be distinguished in its make-up. Judge Hoar returns to private life wrapt in meditation. Geo. F. Hoar, a supercilious churl, finds Congressional life the best suited to his tastes after all—he can put on such airs with his average associates; and consenting though he "vowed he'd ne'er consent," he comes up with a sardonic smile confident in self-conceit and endeavoring to make the rest of mankind believe he is doing his fellow-citizens a favor by consenting to represent them. As there was a democratic majority of 1000 in his district last year, there are grounds for belief that his pride will receive a fall in November.

That prince of political humbugs, Henry L. Dawes, who by his treachery gave the democracy most effective aid in New Hampshire on critical occasions, declines to be "father of the House" longer, and soured by his defeat for the U. S. Senatorship steps back and lets the mower mow on, and is likely to be succeeded by a man of steady convictions, we trust. In other districts, improvement is likely to follow from the retiracy of present members. We view with equanimity the candidacy of Dr. Ayer, whose pills are not the worst of Massachusetts' productions; of Prof. Seelye, who will never be quite satisfied unto himself until God is complimented with recognition in the Constitution; of Gen. Banks, who would be a better man but for bad habits; and for Gen. Cogswell or Dr. Loring, in unanticipated contingencies;—because men of a single idea, pursuing that idea with sufficient pertinacity to enable it to indicate their honest convictions, are far preferable to those insociable egotists who reflect no lasting credit on any community by the assumption of a plurality of ideas that are so rare, so thin, so slim, so slender, that common-sense people when chosen to the succession will be the more duly appreciated.

The Great Scandal.

[New York Dispatch to the Boston Herald.]

The under current in the Beecher-Tilton scandal is now seething more than ever since Tilton's last statement. Orthodox people, who previously were on Beecher's side almost unanimously, are greatly divided, many having arrayed themselves against him and become open in expressions of belief in his guilt. The latter say privately that he must retire from the pulpit, and that his return to it will do irreparable injury to the cause of Christianity in America and Protestantism throughout the world. These are making great efforts to unite Congregational churches against Plymouth Church, at least to draw up a series of resolutions expressing entire disapproval of Beecher, and of the determination of his parishioners to cleave to him in the face of the strongest indications of his guilt. Present appearances are, notwithstanding published denials, that all Congregational societies will make open and relentless war on Plymouth Church if it permits Beecher to resume his ministry. Many leading preachers and laymen here and in Brooklyn do not hesitate to say they believe Beecher guilty. Tilton's friends report the Plymouth pastor almost in despair; that he sees the toils steadily enclosing him; that all his assumptions of calmness are merest bravado, and that he knows he is doomed. They still say it is probable he will commit suicide when he has played his last card; which was his first—his reputation. New libel suits are to be brought. As many as twenty have now arisen from this case, but few will be begun until Tilton's suit against Beecher is over. It is asserted that Bowen is quietly gathering very damaging evidence against Beecher, convinced that he prompted his sister Catherine to assail him (Bowen). Every day seems to add to the number of persons uttering conviction of Beecher's guilt, while Tilton's sympathizers and advocates appear to be steadily increasing in numbers. The stories of compromise with Tilton, by which his suit will be abandoned, have no foundation whatever, as suit will be commenced as soon as preparations are fully made. It is rumored that a number of leading members of Plymouth Church have again urged their pastor not to enter the pulpit until his innocence be established in court, and that it is likely he will accede to their demand. Violent differences of opinion are declared to be arising in the church respecting Beecher's innocence.

State News.

A party of coon hunters invaded the garden of Simon Cole at Wakefield, to get some apples. Cole shot at them from a window and wounded Marcellus Hanson so severely that he cannot live. Cole has been arrested.

A meeting of the New Hampshire Historical Society will be held at Concord on the 7th of October, when Mr. John Albee of Newcastle will read a synopsis of the recently recovered records of the town of Newcastle, extending from 1693 to 1726. These records were taken to England probably during the Revolution, and remained there till the winter of 1873, in the possession of a country gentleman near London. Mr. Henry Starr of 22 Margate street, London, saw these records, became interested in them, and finally procured their restoration to their status ante bellum. They are in a remarkably well-preserved condition, and are replete with interesting details of church and state during the period of these thirty-three years of the history of this then important locality, and are written in the clear and bold hand of which the clerical men of those times were masters. This ancient town, whose incorporation in 1693 was by a charter peculiar to itself is to be congratulated upon the recovery of the long lost records, and Mr. Starr should have the corporate as well as the individual thanks of the citizens for his kind efforts in restoring these valuable records.

A family was found in Nashua, last Friday, which had had nothing to eat for two days. It comprised ten children, the father being away. The neighbors fed them.

Among the cases tried at the recent term of the Circuit Court in Sullivan county previous to adjournment, that of Jennie M. Hemphill vs. Justus O. Cole, created the greatest interest. It was an action for a breach of contract of marriage, and was concluded recently after a trial of two days (during which the court-room was crowded), by a verdict for the sum of $2,500. It was a review of an action, tried in the Supreme Judicial Court at the September term one year ago, when Miss Hemphill recovered a verdict of $1625. Mr. Cole being dissatisfied, brought his review.

Readables.

The high tides for the past two days have covered the railroad track in the Eastern Railroad tunnel, at Salem, and when the locomotives went through the water was thrown up as high as the smoke stack.

"The fact that they were found in Gov. Kellogg's office is established on excellent authority." So says the despatch which announce the "startling revelation" that Gov. Kellogg had employed counsel in a legal case and paid them their fee. The "excellent authority" is the affimation of men who broke open the Governor's private desk and stole his papers. It will not be denied that they ought to know.

As there is an outcry now for a new election in Louisiana from democratic sources, says the Louisville Commercial, and as an attempt is made to throw upon the republicans in Congress the blame of preventing a new election, it is well enough to remind the country that the proposal to order a new election was bitterly opposed last winter by the democratic press and by democrats in Congress, and that the bill ordering a new election was defeated in the Senate by the democratic members. When the vote was taken there were eighteen votes cast for it, all republicans but one, and twenty votes against it, all democrats but nine, and that nine included liberal republican Trumbull.

Mr. Otis Gray Randall, a Boston broker sixty-five years old, was set upon by two ruffians about half-past eight o'clock on Tuesday evening, Sept. 29th, just as he had reached his own house at the Highlands. They attacked him on both sides at once with slung-shots, striking him nine times over the head. They then gagged him, threw him down and stole his wallet, but fortunately took nothing valuable. The family, hearing the noise, went to the rescue. One son of Mr. Randall shot at the robbers out of a window while another son hastened to the sidewalk with his mother. Throwing an iron skillet at one of the villains without effect, young Randall was surprised at receiving a shot in the wrist. The other robber also fired and barely missed Mrs. Randall. Then the villains fled. Mr. Randall was carried into the house in an insensible condition, but will recover. His mouth was badly lacerated by the gag and his head was severely injured. A man who was walking behind Mr. Randall, instead of hastening to the rescue ran for help. One of the robbers left a hat which may serve to identify him. No arrests have been made.

The rebel flag is raised over the hotels in some places in Alabama, and some of the military companies march under the ensign of treason. In many parts of the south the white military companies refuse to recognize the national flag, and insult it when it is borne by the negro companies. In the judgment of the democratic and independent journals, it stirs up strife to mention these facts, although no censure is passed on those who perpetrate them.

The Cincinnati Enquirer, which represents the inflation democracy of the Southwest, thus scoffs at the financial plank of the New York democratic platform: "This, of course, is the work of unthinking, uninformed, idiotic politicians, who sought to please the money chests. The people and the Supreme Court of the United States have said that something else than gold and silver may be a legal tender, and people who are seized of a little information are aware of the fact that this country never had a currency which was not 'inconvertible with coin.'"

Two restaurant keepers of Washington were sentenced to pay a fine of $100 for refusing to serve certain colored men. They appealed.

The Albany Evening Journal, in answer to the papers which are so much troubled because the New York republican convention did not oppose the third-term idea, very pertinently and properly says: "Instead of striking a gratuitous and wanton blow at the President, it seems to us this is a time when we should try to strengthen his hands. He stands between the murderers of the South and their victims. He stands as a shield of the law against revolution. His proclamation suppressed the rebellion in Louisiana in a day. He is the one power that the rebels respect. We do not suggest this as a reason why he should be continued to the Presidency, for it is not, but as a good reason why the republicans of New York and other States should not go out of their way to affront the President, and tell the South that his own party distrusts him."

It is fourteen years since the democrats had a President, and what with repudiation, outrages on colored voters, and internal dissensions, they stand no show for another for fourteen years to come.

Ex-Senator Osborn, of Florida, who has, for the present, at least, withdrawn from politics, says in a private letter dated recently at Jacksonville: "This State is as quiet and well governed as Massachusetts. The two present members of Congress will be returned with majorities between 1,000 and 2,000 each. The democrats have put up one modern democrat and one Bourbon, but can elect neither."

Letter from Wm. E. Chandler.

The telegrams from New Orleans, based upon the robberies by the Louisiana revolutionists of Governor Kellogg's private papers, do not misrepresent me—that I am aware of—but they are intended to do injustice to other gentlemen. Ex-Governor Warmouth applied to the Suprme Court of the United States in Washington for a writ of prohibition against Judge Durell to stay proceedings in Governor Kellogg's suit against Warmouth. This application, if granted, would have brought the whole Louisiana case before the Supreme Court for full and final adjudication. Senator Carpenter, General Cushing and General Butler were therefore retained as counsel for Governor Kellogg, and the first two argued the case before the Supreme Court, which refused the writ. So far from Senator Carpenter or General Butler being by this employment as counsel influenced as members of Congress in the political contest, both of them afterward became persistent and conspicuous opponents of the policy of the President with reference to the Kellogg administration, and the advocates of an immediate new election. General Butler was also always understood to be in favor of Judge Durell's impeachment. The suggestion that Attorney General Williams was interested and retained in the Kellogg interest is knowingly false. His only connection with the question was official and disinterested. The charge against him is characteristic of the men who in 1868 by bloodshed prevented any votes in Louisiana against Seymour and Blair, attempted the same policy of intimidation and murder in 1872, and now, being defeated in bloody revolution by the power of the Union, spitefully revenge themselves by publishing private letters stolen from Gov. Kellogg during their brief usurpation.

—A thorough western train story comes from Terre Haute. As the cars were moving away from that station the other day, a pretty young woman came from the ladies' car, and rushing into the smoking car, frantically appealed to everybody to stop the train. Catching sight of the conductor, she explained piteously, "Mr. Conductor, do please stop the train; I've left my baby." The train was stopped and the baby recovered, amidst the hearty cheers of the people on the platform and the passengers; and while the young mother laughed and cried and hugged her little one, she tried to explain how the baby was such a new one that she hadn't got used to it.

Maffitt and Bartholomew.

Reserved seats are selling rapidly for this evening's pantomime, and a crowded house will greet the first appearance of Maffitt and Bartholomew in this city. The entertainment is all that can be wished and those who fail to attend will miss rare fun. We hope the ushers will attend more strictly to their duties than at some times heretofore, when persons have been excluded from the seats they purchased because of the negligence of ushers and the presumption of others who had not paid for reserved seats. Go early.

Laconics.

The State Fair will continue to-day and to-morrow. The baby show is a success, and the exhibition of fruit and farm products is fine.

An Aërial Velocipede.

Monsieur E. Caillon, of 95 Greene street, N. Y., a maker of artificial flowers, has entered a caveat in the Patent Office for an aerial velocipede. The model is about fifteen feet in length.

There are two small balloons of equal size to balance the weight of the aëronaut, leaving him free to change his position in any direction by means of the machinery. These two balloons are confined by framework instead of network and cording. M. Caillon says that the confining of the gas in a framework will keep the velocipede more steady than netting. The seat is between and below the two balloons and behind the main shaft of the machinery, which can be rotated by either the hands or the feet of the operator, a treadle and a crank being both provided, while a small driving wheel to the right enables him to reverse the motion easily. The entire hull of the aerial vessel is a light framework, which preserves the relative position of the operator and the two balloons unchanged. Being thus seated in a contrivance which when loaded has hardly any greater specific gravity than the air, the velocipedist propels himself in any direction by means of three wheels of canvas stretched over a light framework, and fashioned similarly to the screw of a propeller. The wheels are to work in connection with a rudder which is at the front of the whole machine. The rudder consists of two parts, one of which is perpendicular, and is worked laterally, guiding to the right or left, and the other is horizontal, and guides up or down. Both are governed by cords. One of the three screw wheels is above the head of the velocipedist, and the two others at his right and left hand. They are worked together by means of a cog-wheel connecting the two shafts, and one motion is to send the velocipede onward and upward, while the reverse sends it downward and backward.

The second and third points covered by M. Caillon's caveat are the upper wheel, which raises the velocipede, and the double rudder at the front. The side wheels are similar to M. Caillon's machine exhibited in the Paris Exposition of 1867, for which the Emperor Napoleon is said to have given 30,000 francs.

Endorsements.

[Monetary Times.]

When will men of business cease from embarking in speculations foreign to their legitimate calling, or from endorsing or guaranteeing those who do? A very melancholy instance of the consequence of this kind of thing is furnished in the recent insolvency of a respectable merchant of Montreal. By many years of close attention to business, which was thoroughly understood, a leading position in the trade had been secured, and gradually accumulating means, amounting possibly to a comfortably competency, were the reward of industry and economy. In an evil hour—to serve a friend, we believe, an endorsement was given to assist in carrying out a projected line of railway. The door once opened, other endorsements followed, with the inevitable consequences of further and deeper entanglement. Renewals were required, pending arrangements for negociation of bonds. Then followed demands for further endorsements still, which went on until the commitments on this account were enormously in excess of those required for the purpose of his own trade.

Every one knows what an all-devouring business the construction of a railway is. What constant demands for money; what a strain upon those who have charge of its finances; what negotiations about bonds, for selling or pledging; what a running from bank to bank, and sometimes from city to city; what interminable correspondence, telegraphing and cabling. In such a web of entanglement did this merchant find himself, who, in conducting his own business, had been a very model of prudence, foresight, and punctuality. Negociations have been going on for some months, which it was hoped might enable him to weather through, but the results have proved them unavailing. Creditors began to sue, and matters came speedily to a crisis. There was no help for it. Insolvency had to be faced, and the labor of twenty years was lost. What the result will be in the way of dividend it is extremely difficult to tell. The warning is plain enough, however, to others in like circumstances, and particularly against the beginnings of evil.

There Was a Spider On His Head.

Old Mr. Collamore is very deaf. The other Sunday, in the midst of the service, Mr. Hoff, who sits immediately behind Mr. Collamore, saw a spider travelling over the latter's bald head. His first impulse was to nudge him and tell him all about it, but he remembered that Mr. Collamore was deaf, so he lifted up his hand and brushed the spider off. Hoff didn't aim quite high enough, and consequently, in his nervousness, he hit old Collamore quite a severe blow. The old gentleman turned round in a rage to see who dared take such a liberty with him, and Hoff began to explain, with gestures, the cause of the occurrence. But Collamore, in a loud voice, demanded what it meant. It was very painful to Hoff. The eyes of the congregation were upon him, and he grew red in the face. "There was a spider on your head," "A white place on my head, hey? S'posen there is, what's that to you?" said Collamore; "you'll know what it is to be bald headed yourself some day." "It was a spider," shrieked Hoff, while the congregation smiled and the perspiration began to roll off his face. "Certainly it's wider," said Collamore, "and got more in it than yours. But let it alone—do you mind? You may let my head alone in church." "Mr. Collamore," shrieked Hoff, "there was a bug on your head, and I brushed him off—this way," and Hoff made another gesture at Collamore's head. The old man thought he was going to fight him then and there, and, hurling a hymn-book at Hoff, he seized the kneeling stool on the floor of the pew, and was about to bang Mr. Hoff, when the sexton interfered. An explanation was written on the fly-leaf of the hymn-book, whereupon Mr. Collamore apologized in a boisterous voice, and resumed his seat. Then the service proceeded. They think of asking Mr. Collamore to worship elsewhere.

Why Pears Crack.

Concerning this important subject, Thomas Meehan, Editor of the Gardener's Monthly, writes: Pears do not crack when the soil is sufficiently supplied with lime and potash; and they crack most where those salts are deficient. Common wood ashes contain those salts, nearly in the quantity and proportions that pear trees on such soil require—forty per cent. of potash and thirty per cent. of lime. Reasoning from these facts, I applied wood ashes at the rate of four hundred bushels to the acre, after the fruit had formed and cracked. Many of them healed up and made perfect fruit the same season, others not until next season. A friend, at my suggestion, applied it heavily to a favorite butter-pear tree in his own garden for several years in succession, and has had for several years perfect and delicious pears, and I will guarantee it to cure any case, where the ashes are fairly and abundantly applied. I was told by an experienced hand that I would kill the trees, but on the contrary, I cured them. Therefore, do not be afraid; if one application will not suffice, give them a larger dose next year. A moist atmosphere undoubtedly encourages the growth of the tree and fruit, while the insufficiency of proper food prevents the perfection of either; hence, cracked fruit and "rough old bark."

Sour Stomach.

If the food taken into the stomach is not digested it decomposes. In the latter case a pungent gas is developed which causes sour eructations, or else the stomach itself secretes an acid, which, rising upward at intervals, stings the gullet sharply. These extremely disagreeable sensations are attributable to impaired digestion. To get rid of them, or to prevent their recurrence, it is only necessary to tone and regulate the gastric organs with Hostetter's Bitters. It will not answer to postpone the great corrective with the idea that the unpleasant symptoms will disappear of themselves. So far from that being the case, they almost invariably culminate, if neglected, in chronic dyspepsia, with its concomitants of gnawing in the stomach, dizziness, perverted vision, headache and sleeplessness. It is true that all these disagreeables may be obviated by a course of the Bitters, but how much wiser to anticipate their arrival with one or two doses of that sure preventive of indigestion and strengthener of the alimentary organs.

Too Late.

The way men put off important matters to the last moment is one of the curious things in nature. The fifth concert in aid of the Public Library of Kentucky was advertised to take place July 31. The day after, August 1, Gov. Bramlette, the manager at Louisville, received over $50,000 for tickets. Had the drawing taken place at that time the Governor would have had to send this money back, but as the concert was postponed to November 30, it was all right with them. We presume that on the first day of December next, the day after the concert, thousands of dollars will be received, one day too late, for there will be no further postponement. This money might just as well have been sent a week before, as when it was. eod&w2d

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Oven Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

For Sale in Greenland.

THE fine country residence and farm formerly occupied by Rev. John P. Adams,—buildings in thorough repair, land well divided into mowing and tillage; the fruit orchard, etc., well known for the large quantity of splendid strawberries produced. The house has an evergreen hedge around it and the buildings are in thorough repair. There is a fruit orchard of 300 apple trees, 20 cherry trees and as many pear trees—and a nursery with 1300 young apple trees. From the grape vines on the place fifteen bushels of fruit have been sold in a season, besides abundance retained for home use. Part of the land heavily wooded and there is a great quantity of muck on the estate. In the pasture there is a never-failing spring. The farm is situated midway between depots of Eastern and Concord railroads. For sale at a bargain, if enquired for immediately,—of O. G. ROBINSON, on the premises, or Butler & Laighton, Market Square, or Bailey & Co., Market street. jel

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the cause of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs!

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER 10.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, etc., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time specified.

SEC. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any statement, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or to cross over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any seller of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

SEC. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

SEC. 8. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 19. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 20. No person shall use or occupy any building in the compact part of the city for a slaughter-house, or for trying tallow, or for currying leather, or for the deposit of green pelts or skins, unless under such restrictions and regulations as the health officers may impose.

SEC. 22. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

SEC. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect, forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city. m25 d3m

OF THE

UNITED STATES

PASSED AT THE

FIRST SESSION OF THE FORTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 69.]

AN ACT to create the Bozeman land district in the Territory of Montana.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That all that portion of the Territory of Montana, lying east of the range line between ranges two and three west of the principal meridian and south of the first standard parallel north of the base line, of the public land surveys of said Territory, shall be constituted a separate land district, to be known as the Bozeman land district, the office of which shall be located at Bozeman, but may be changed from time to time, by the direction of the President of the United States, as the interests of the public service may require.

SEC. 2. That the President shall appoint, by and with the consent of the Senate, a register and a receiver of the public moneys of the United States for said district; and said officers shall reside in the place where the land office is located, and they shall have the same powers and receive the same emoluments as are or may be prescribed by law in relation to land officers of the United States in other Territories.

Approved, June 20, 1874.

[GENERAL NATURE—No. 70.]

AN ACT fixing the amount of United States notes, providing for a re-distribution of the national-bank currency, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the act entitled "An act to provide a national currency secured by a pledge of United States bonds, and to provide for the circulation and redemption thereof," approved June third, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, shall hereafter be known as "the national-bank act."

SEC. 2. That section thirty-one of "the national-bank act" be so amended that the several associations therein provided for shall not hereafter be required to keep on hand any amount of money whatever, by reason of the amount of their respective circulations; but the moneys required by said section to be kept at all times on hand shall be determined by the amount of deposits in all respects, as provided for in the said section.

SEC. 3. That every association organized, or to be organized, under the provisions of the said act, and of the several acts amendatory thereof, shall at all times keep and have on deposit in the treasury of the United States, in lawful money of the United States, a sum equal to five per centum of its circulation, to be held and used for the redemption of such circulation; which sum shall be counted as a part of its lawful reserve, as provided in section two of this act; and when the circulating notes of any such associations, assorted or unassorted, shall be presented for redemption, in sums of one thousand dollars, or any multiple thereof, to the Treasurer of the United States, the same shall be redeemed in United States notes. All notes so redeemed shall be charged by the Treasurer of the United States to the respective associations issuing the same, and he shall notify them severally, on the first day of each month, or oftener, at his discretion, of the amount of such redemptions; and whenever such redemptions for any association shall amount to the sum of five hundred dollars, such association so notified shall forwith deposit with the Treasurer of the United States a sum in United States notes equal to the amount of its circulating-notes so redeemed. And all notes of national banks worn, defaced, mutilated, or otherwise unfit for circulation shall, when received by any assistant treasurer, or at any designated depository of the United States, be forwarded to the Treasurer of the United States for redemption as provided herein. And when such redemptions have been so re-imbursed, the circulating-notes so redeemed shall be forwarded to the respective associations by which they were issued; but if any of such notes are worn, mutilated, defaced, or rendered otherwise unfit for use, they shall be forwarded to the Comptroller of the Currency and destroyed and replaced as now provided by law: Provided, That each of said associations shall re-imburse to the Treasury the charges for transportation, and the costs for assorting such notes; and the associations hereafter organized shall also severally re-imburse to the Treasury the cost of engraving such plates as shall be ordered by each association respectively; and the amount assessed upon each association shall be in proportion to the circulation redeemed, and be charged to the fund on deposit with the Treasurer: And provided further, That so much of section thirty-two of said national-bank act requiring or permitting the redemption of its circulating-notes elsewhere than at its own counter, except as provided for in this section, is hereby repealed.

SEC. 4. That any association organized under this act, or any of the acts of which this is an amendment, desiring to withdraw its circulating notes, in whole or in part, may, upon the deposit of lawful money with the Treasurer of the United States in sums of not less than nine thousand dollars, take up the bonds which said association has on deposit with the Treasurer for the security of such circulating-notes; which bonds shall be assigned to the bank in the manner specified in the nineteenth section of the national-bank act; and the outstanding notes of said association, to an amount equal to the legal-tender notes deposited, shall be redeemed at the Treasury of the United States, and destroyed as now provided by law; Provided, That the amount of the bonds on deposit for circulation shall not be reduced below fifty thousand dollars.

SEC. 5. That the Comptroller of the Currency shall, under such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe, cause the charter-numbers of the association to be printed upon all national-bank notes which may be hereafter issued by him.

SEC. 6. That the amount of United States notes outstanding and to be used as a part of the circulating-medium, shall not exceed the sum of three hundred and eighty-two million dollars, which said sum shall appear in each monthly statement of the public debt, and no part thereof shall be held or used as a reserve.

SEC. 7. That so much of the act entitled "An act to provide for the redemption of the three per centum temporary loan certificates, and for an increase of national bank notes" as provides that no circulation shall be withdrawn under the provisions of section six of said act until after the fifty-four millions granted in section one of said act shall have been taken up, is hereby repealed; and it shall be the duty of the Comptroller of the Currency, under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, to proceed forthwith and he is hereby authorized and required, from time to time, as applications shall be duly made therefor, and until the full amount of fifty-five million dollars shall be withdrawn, to make requisitions upon each of the national banks described in said section, and in the manner therein provided, organized in States having an excess of circulation, to withdraw and return so much of their circulation as by said act may be apportioned to be withdrawn from them, or in lieu thereof, to deposit in the Treasury of the United States lawful money sufficient to redeem such circulation, and upon the return of the circulation required, or the deposit of lawful money, as herein provided, a proportionate amount of the bonds held to secure the circulation of such association as shall make such return or deposit shall be surrendered to it.

SEC. 8. That upon the failure of the national banks upon which requisition for circulation shall be made, or of any of them, to return the amount required, or to deposit in the Treasury lawful money to redeem the circulation required, within thirty days the Comptroller of the Currency shall at once sell, as provided in section forty-nine of national currency act approved June third, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, bonds held to secure the redemption of the circulation of the association or associations which shall so fail, to an amount sufficient to redeem the circulation required of such association or associations, and with the proceeds, which shall be deposited in the Treasury of the United States, so much of the circulation of such association or associations shall be redeemed as will equal the amount required and not returned and if there be any excess of proceeds over the amount required for such redemption, it shall be returned to the association or associations whose bonds shall have been sold. And it shall be the duty of the Treasurer, assistant treasurers, designated depositaries, and national bank depositaries of the United States, who shall be kept informed by the Comptroller of the Currency of such associations as shall fail to return circulation as required, to assort and return to the Treasury for redemption the notes of such associations as shall come into their hands until the amount required shall be redeemed, and in like manner to assort and return to the Treasury, for redemption, the notes of such national banks as have failed, or gone into voluntary liquidation for the purpose of winding up their affairs, and of such as shall hereafter so fail or go into liquidation.

SEC. 9. That from and after the passage of this act it shall be lawful for the Comptroller of the Currency, and he is hereby required, to issue circulating-notes without delay, as applications therefor are made, not to exceed the sum of fifty-five million dollars, to associations organized, or to be organized, in those States and Territories having less than their proportion of circulation, under an apportionment made on the basis of population and of wealth, as shown by the returns of the census of eighteen hundred and seventy; and every association hereafter organized shall be subject to, and be governed by, the rules, restrictions, and limitations, and possess the rights, privileges, and franchises, now or hereafter to be prescribed by law as to national banking associations, with the same power to amend, alter and repeal provided by "the national bank act:" Provided, That the whole amount of circulation withdrawn and redeemed from banks transacting business shall not exceed fifty-five million dollars, and that such circulation shall be withdrawn and redeemed as it shall be necessary to supply the circulation previously issued to the banks in those States having less than their apportionment: And provided further, That not more than thirty million dollars shall be withdrawn and redeemed as herein contemplated during the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-five.

Approved, June 20, 1874.

The body of a man was found drowned in the river at Cincinnati, and the coroner after examination, identified it as that of one John Bolan. The remains were given over to the widow, and were recognized by her and prepared for burial. A masterly wake was gone through with, and twenty-five carriages turned out to join the funeral procession. Mass was said in the Cathedral, and the mourning relatives went home. Three days later the "late lamented" presented himself alive and well at his domicile, greatly to the astonishment of his friends. It has since been found that the body which was found and buried was that of a young mulatto, and now Mrs. Bolan is going to sue the county for costs of burial. No negro before ever had such a costly wake.

Charles O. Day, son-in-law of Mr. Randall, has been arrested for the assault at Boston Highlands. Mr. Day has been insane from liquor drinking and had been confined at the asylum, through the instrumentality of Mr. Randall.

Governor Kellogg prints a three-column address to the people of the United States, combating the charges of corruption and extravagance, and giving figures already published to show he reduced the debt in two years over nine millions. He charges a contraction of thirteen millions of the debt upon the democratic legislature in 1866 and 1867, of ten millions upon the Warmouth administration, and of four-fifths of the city debt upon democrats.

Joseph Bird, of Boston, in an article in the Boston Advertiser on the Fall River fire, says that a careful examination of the building and its surroundings has proved that the mill owners should receive praise and not censure, and that if anybody was in fault it was the workmen themselves. The owners had placed in the mill ample means for putting out fire, insisted that their workmen should attend to it, and there their responsibility ended. According to him very little damage was done to the mill, and nineteen-twentieths of the machinery could be set at work in a day.

The London Medical Record cautions housekeepers against wetting their coal before putting it in the bins, because, by wetting a mass of freshly-broken coal and putting it in a warm cellar, the mass is heated to such a degree that carburetted and sulphuretted hydrogen are given off for long periods of time and pervade the whole house, and sore throats and lung disease are engendered.

Four years ago a broad-shouldered, bronzed ranchman of California, who was in Detroit en route to visit his parents in Massachusetts, entered the dining room of a hotel, fell in love with the pretty girl who waited on him at the table, and as he was about leaving requested an interview with her. At a later hour she met him in the parlor, and received an offer of the ranchman's hand and heart and abundant worldly goods. She said she would consider his proposition and give him an answer at the breakfast table. During the night she thought the matter over seriously, and when in the morning she took her eccentric lover's order, and he asked in a low tone "Are you going to California?" she replied "Yes," and then went for beefsteak and potatoes. A few days ago there were seen riding about the streets of Detroit, a happy-looking wife and mother, with a curly-headed boy in her arms, and the ranchman by her side.

A man named Nash killed a large moccasin snake on Yellow River shoals, Ga., a few days ago, by cutting its head off, whereupon twenty-six young ones crawled out, gave one yell for liberty, straightened themselves out and died.

General Sherman has in course of preparation a review of the late war from a military standpoint, which will be published after his death. It will certainly be a valuable contribution to a special class of literature, and as a book of reference for the future historian of the great war will not fail of an honorable place.

Woolen Goods.

[Boston Transcript.]

A Traveller representative had an interview with a gentleman who has charge of four mills in this State, and in answer to the query as to what was the cause of the present depression in the manufactory of woolen goods, he said it was "simply over production." The manufacture of this class of goods, which at one time was remunerative, had increased more than the demand; consequently there are millions of dollars worth of goods stored up that the owners cannot realize on. Said he, "To-day I can buy in Boston a million dollars' worth of cloth at less than the cost of manufacturing. It is with cloth as it is with farming products; the greater the production the lower the value, and smaller manufacturers cannot afford to invest capital which must lie dormant for months. The outlook for the winter is dark, but perhaps by next spring the clouds will have partly cleared away, and if during that time some of the mills should be sold and the works turned into other channels of trade, so much the better." In response to an inquiry as to the workings of the ten-hour law, he said that eighteen years ago the operatives' hours were from 4 1-2 A. M. to 7 o'clock P. M., excepting the time for meals, and the help were as well off in health as now. He thought that the ten-hour provision would be beneficial as it would decrease the production, and that is the antidote for xisting evils.

"Cast Thy Bread"--etc.

In 1836, General Leslie Coombs, of Kentucky, was on the Ohio river in a steamboat, and made the acquaintance of a fellow passenger named George Lane, who told the General that he was at the west to get a school so as to enable him to study law. The General took a fancy to young Lane and invited him to Lexington and to study law in his office, and it should cost him nothing, the general to give him instruction and money to pay his board, the young man writing in the office and making himself useful. After finishing his studies, he left for Mississippi, but as the Texas fever was raging through the South at that time, he emigrated to that State, and has been settled there ever since. He has been recently appointed Judge of the Circuit Court, and is in a position of independence; and remembering his old friend in Kentucky, and hearing that he was not so prosperous as in former times, he wrote to him, inclosing a check for $650, "in remembrance of your kindness to me thirty-eight years ago." We regard this an instance of bread cast upon the waters returning after many days. The General was heartily glad to hear of the prosperity of his old friend, as well as to receive the return on the investment.

Fire Insurance.

The New York Tribune has analyzed the business of thirty-eight fire insurance companies during the past twenty years, and finds that, aside from all dividends and compensation to stockholders, these institutions have paid for losses and expenses $283,908,653.73 and have earned on premiums received $271,293,368.59, showing a loss in the business of more than $12,600,000. These are the companies regarded as most ably managed and having an extended experience, and they are those that have survived when many smaller or less fortunate concerns have withdrawn or sunk in bankrupcy. This estimate takes no account of the losses of the one hundred insurance companies that were wrecked in the great fires of Chicago and Boston, and does not at all furnish a measure of the total loss of insurance capital during the decades. But it shows very clearly that the business has been unprofitable on the average, even to the more fortunate and more ably managed concerns. Those that have paid dividends during this period have in many instances made their profits from judicious investments of their capital and reserve—principally in government securities since 1861.

Look After the Eyes.

Multitudes of men and women have made their eyes weak for life by the too free use of eyesight, reading small print and doing fine sewing. In view of these things it is well to observe the following rules in the use of the eyes:

Avoid all sudden changes between light and darkness.

Never read by twilight or on a very cloudy day.

Never sleep so that on waking the eyes shall open on the light of the window.

Do not use eyesight by light so scant that it requires an effort to discriminate.

Never read or sew directly in front of the light of the window.

It is best to have the light from above, or obliquely or over the left shoulder.

Too much light creates a glare, and pains and confuses the sight. The moment you are sensible of an effort to distinguish, that moment stop and talk, walk or ride.

As the sky is blue and the earth green, it would seem that the ceiling should be a bluish tinge, the carpet green, and the walls of some mellow tint.

The moment you are instinctively inclined to rub the eyes, that moment cease to use them.

If the eyelids are glued together on waking do not forcibly open them, but apply saliva with the finger, and then wash your eyes and face with warm water.

—An old writer says: "Read not books alone, but men, and amongst them chiefly thyself; if thou find anything questionable there, use the commentary of a severe friend rather than the works of a sweet-lipped flatterer; there is more profit in a distasteful truth than deceitful sweetness."

—Since we are exposed to inevitable sorrows wisdom is the art of finding compensation.

—Detroit Free Press: Three or four cool nights have kept the grasshoppers in bed rather late, but they crawl out about nine o'clock, cuss the weather a few times, and then walk into the next meadow and make up for lost time.

—The activity of the young is like that of rail cars in motion—they tear along with noise and turmoil, and leave peace behind them. The quietest nooks pervaded by them lose their quietude as they pass, and recover it only on their departure. Time's best gift to us is serenity.

—A Brooklyn man, in Boston, last week, rubbed a fellow-creature's head against Bunker Hill Monument until the hair came off, for daring to insinuate that the Brooklyn scandal was losing its vivacity.

—He ought to possess some himself, who attempts to make use of borrowed excellence; a golden goblet on a beggar's table serves only to expose its companions of lead.

DR. FLINT'S

QUAKER BITTERS.

These celebrated Bitters are composed of choice Roots, Herbs and Barks, among which are Gentian, Sarsaparilla, Wild Cherry, Dandelion, Juniper and other Berries, and are so prepared as to retain all their medicinal qualities. They invariably cure or greatly relieve the following complaints: Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Liver Complaint, Loss of Appetite, Headache, Bilious Attacks, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Ague, Cold Chills, Rheumatism, Summer Complaints, Piles, Kidney Diseases, Female Difficulties, Lassitude, Low Spirits, General Debility, and, in fact, everything caused by an impure state of the Blood or deranged condition of Stomach, Liver, or Kidneys. The aged find in the Quaker Bitters a gentle, soothing stimulant, so desirable in their declining years. No one can remain long unwell (unless afflicted with an incurable disease) after taking a few bottles of the Quaker Bitters.

City Councils.

Thursday evening was the time appointed by the legislature for the decapitation of the officials elected by the last city government, and both Boards opened in due and ancient form, preparatory to carrying out the programme and handing a modicum of what our democratic brethren call "pap" to each deserving member of the (just now) dominant party. But what an army of deserving members the success of the democratic gerrymander brought to the front, each individual being fully persuaded that he of all the party was best qualified for a position (with salary attached) under the city government, and best entitled to it by his invaluable work for "the party." And what a hungry army they were! Had all the applicants for positions on the police force (despised and rejected of men—democratic men—so long as the city government was republican) been accepted, the police-roll would have answered very well as a democratic check-list for the city. But all could not be fed, and many a democrat who was hungry and hopeful a week ago, is hungry and mad to-day.

Before the Councils went into convention to elect officers, amendments to the fire department and police ordinances were introduced, read and referred. That relating to the fire department provides for the appointment of a chief engineer, one assistant engineer and a clerk of the department; and that foremen of engines may be appointed assistant engineers also, to do the duties of both positions and receive $50 a year each for their services. The amendment to the police ordinance reduces the city marshal's pay from $800 to $700 a year, and provides that the salaries of the police shall be all they shall receive, witness fees, etc., being cut off; it also provides that but one assistant marshal shall be appointed.

In Convention, the following officers were elected.

City Messenger, William S. Hazel.
Street Commissioner, Joseph R. Holmes.
Keeper of City Farm, Simon H. Mills.
City Physician, Andrew B. Sherburne.
Harbor Master, George Raitt.
Port Wardens, Thomas H. Rider, Richard T. Call, John E. Locke.
Fence Viewers, Geo. E. Hodgdon, Geo. B. French, John Conlon.
Keeper of Pound, Oliver P. Marden.
City Solicitor, George E. Hodgdon.
Inspector of Flour, Thomas Neil.
Sealer of Weights and Measures, Nathaniel D. Miller.
Surveyors of Highways—Dist. No. 1, Levi Carkin; Dist. No. 2, Wash'n I. Drake; Dist. No. 3, Aaron Lang.
Weighers, Franklin Ayers, Elias Ayers, Gardner J. Greenleaf, Thomas H. Odion, Charles E. Walker, William C. Ham.
Eleven measurers of lumber and ten measurers of wood were appointed, and the Convention then rose. The Board of Mayor and Aldermen resumed, and elected the following officers:
City Marshal, Israel Marden.
Assistant Marshal, Ozro J. Hobbs.
Police, Edmund M. Clark, John Hayes, Samuel Hurley, Thomas Watkins, Frank Ellison, Elbridge C. Marden.
Chief Engineer, Ira C. Seymour.
Assistant Engineer, Wm. B. Grogan.
Health Officers, Andrew B. Sherburne, Elias Ayers, John J. Grogan.

"The Black Crook,"

It is almost unnecessary for us to call attention to the Howard & Carle company, so well known are the principal members to Portsmouth audiences. Emma Carle, Ione Lang, the Snow Brothers, Austin and Hess, and Manchester and Jennings have more than once delighted theatre goers. The orchestra is fine, the ballet is equal to anything of the kind seen away from the large cities, and there is endless amusement from the pranks of the Snow Brothers with their wonderful dogs and funny little hats. The Pas de Trais Grotesque, by the Carles, is one of the specialties.

Annie DeMontford,

The mesmerist, whose tour through Canada has been attended with successful results, commences an engagement at the "Temple" next Monday evening. The Montreal Star of a recent date says:

"Last evening this talented lady concluded a series of the most entertaining, and in every way most successful entertainments given in this city during the present season, and has demonstrated beyond a doubt that she is, as a mesmerist or electro-biologist, superior to any who have heretofore appeared in Montreal. The experiments given by her are of the most amusing description, and the large audiences were each evening kept in a continual roar of laughter. We part with her with regret, and hope that it may not be long before she pays us another visit.

Laconics.

Maffitt & Bartholomew's is the best show by all odds that has appeared here for years. Come again, James, and right quickly, too.

At a late hour, Thursday night, members of Dearborn S. F. E. Co., No. 1, and Kearsarge S. F. E. Co., No. 3, procured the services of the Naval Band and serenaded Messrs. Ira C. Seymour and William B. Grogan, the newly-appointed Chief Engineer and First Assistant Engineer of the Fire Department. Mr. Seymour has been Foreman of No. 3 for some time past.

On Thursday, one of the members of the "reform" city government—a democratic Common Councilman, no less—was taken to the police station, drunk! We leave all comment on this little eccentricity to the Times, which has had many years' experience in "raking down" city officials.

The U. S. S. Speedwell arrived at the navy yard Thursday evening, from Boston, with one hundred and thirty men for the Plymouth. Another detachment—from New York—will arrive in a day or two.

Most of the officers ordered to the Plymouth reported for duty on Thursday. A very satisfactory trial of the ship's engines has been made, and she will probably go into commission early next week.

The gray gelding Wild Eddy, owned by Hon. Frank Jones, won the second money ($60) in the 2:44 race at the State Fair, Wednesday.

The Circuit Court for Rockingham County begins its next term here, October 20. The number of cases on the docket and left from the Supreme Judicial Court is 332; on the equity docket, sixty; State actions, thirty-nine; on the session docket, eleven. Hon. Edward D. Rand, associate justice, is to preside.

Louis H. F. Wagner, convicted of the Smutty Nose Island murder, has been sentenced to be hanged on the last Friday in January next. There are but two chances for his escape from the gallows. One depends upon the action of the new executive council, and the other is dependent upon the legislature. If the efforts of the opponents of capital punishment prove successful, Governor Dingley may feel constrained to commute the sentence or issue a reprieve.

We learn that our native musician and artist, Mr. Thomas P. Moses, has recently received an invitation to become superintendent of music and painting in a high school in South Carolina. We believe no definite answer has yet been given.

Captain S. B. Luce is ordered to duty as captain of the Boston navy yard, October 12. Captain Clark A. Wells is detached from the Boston navy yard and ordered as captain of the Philadelphia navy yard the 15th of October, relieving Captain Thomas C. Harris, who is ordered to duty at the naval asylum at Philadelphia. Captain Oscar C. Badger is detached from the command of the receiving ship Ohio and is ordered as captain of the navy yard at Washington the 5th of November next. Captain Pierce Crosby is detached from the Washington navy yard and placed on waiting orders.

Sour Stomach.

If the food taken into the stomach is not digested it decomposes. In the latter case a pungent gas is developed which causes sour eructations, or else the stomach itself secretes an acid, which, rising upward at intervals, stings the gullet sharply. These extremely disagreeable sensations are attributable to impaired digestion. To get rid of them, or to prevent their recurrence, it is only necessary to tone and regulate the gastric organs with Hostetter's Bitters. It will not answer to postpone the great corrective with the idea that the unpleasant symptoms will disappear of themselves. So far from that being the case, they almost invariably culminate, if neglected, in chronic dyspepsia, with its concomitants of gnawing in the stomach, dizziness, perverted vision, headache and sleeplessness. It is true that all these disagreeables may be obviated by a course of the Bitters, but how much wiser to anticipate their arrival with one or two doses of that sure preventive of indigestion and strengthener of the alimentary organs.

Too Late.

The way men put off important matters to the last moment is one of the curious things in nature. The fifth concert in aid of the Public Library of Kentucky was advertised to take place July 31. The day after, August 1, Gov. Bramlette, the manager at Louisville, received over $50,000 for tickets. Had the drawing taken place at that time the Governor would have had to send this money back, but as the concert was postponed to November 30, it was all right with them. We presume that on the first day of December next, the day after the concert, thousands of dollars will be received, one day too late, for there will be no further postponement. This money might just as well have been sent a week before, as when it was. eod&ow24

Act on the Defensive.

Persons who are subjected to the influences of bad air and unwholesome water, to constant exposure out of doors and sudden changes of weather, should act on the defensive by imparting to their constitutions the power of resisting such influences. The fortifying effects upon the system of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are simply amazing. Thousands who use them as a preventive of malaria enjoy an absolute immunity from its attacks, although dwelling in regions where that scourge is most prevalent. Artisans and laborers whose occupations keep them in the open air, find the Bitters a complete safeguard against the effects of exposure. Travellers testify that they counteract the influences of torrid heat, intense cold, and miasmatic air. Free from every objectionable feature, pure, undeteriorating, containing only vegetable ingredients, an agreeable stimulant, a wholesome tonic and corrective, and a sovereign protective, it is not surprising that the Bitters should be the most popular of American remedies.

A New Lead.

How many times does 50 go into 250,000? It goes 5000 times. Well, that is a good per cent. even for California. Will the best "lead" ever struck pay as much? Certainly not. But there are strong probabilities that an investment of fifty dollars made in the last Grand Gift Concert, in aid of the Public Library of Kentucky, will pay that per cent. to somebody. Why not to one of us? And then we have only to wait till the 30th of November for the result. eod,w

STOVES! STOVES!

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY!

Great Bargains!

HAVING purchased the stock of STOVES and Housekeeping Goods in the well known "Jones Stove Store," and made large additions thereto, we are prepared to offer to our customers and the public generally the best assortment of the most approved and latest patterns of

COOKING and PARLOR STOVES

To be found in any establishment in the State, among which may be found the WYOMING RANGE, which we believe to be superior to anything in the shape of a cooking arrangement yet invented,—having six boiler holes, a large oven, warming closet, dump grate, shelf, sifter and ash pan,—combining all the conveniences found in others and some advantages to be found only in this; it is a quick and ready baker, splendid looking and beautifully ornamented, and in all its appointments is far ahead of anything of the kind in the market; and another important item is, we can sell it at a Very Reasonable Rate and warrant it to do all we say. Call and see it, and be satisfied that this is THE BEST COOKING STOVE IN THE WORLD.

We have for sale the HUB RANGE, said by those who use it to have no superior.

Also the GRANGER RANGE, a nicely-working stove which we sell at a reasonable price.

For the usual style of Cooking Stoves we have the ELECTRIC COOK Improved, and the NEW MAGNET, which cannot be beaten,—and we are bound to sell them at such bargains as will ensure a ready sale.

Parlor Stoves

Of the most approved kinds, such as the Eldorado, of which hundreds have been sold in this vicinity and which everybody likes,—keeps fire the whole season and is very economical. Also the Gen. Grant, Union Gas Burner, etc., etc.

SOAPSTONE STOVES in great variety: Oven Parlor and Air-Tight Stoves of every style, and to be sold as cheap as the cheapest.

We have a few Cook Stoves, new and in perfect order, which were on hand when we bought the concern, which we are bound to close out at any price.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with Section 1.

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

Real Estate.

Desirable Estate
AT PRIVATE SALE.

The convenient and well located HOUSE and the lot of 4000 feet at the corner of Lincoln Avenue and Broad Street, is offered for sale on easy terms. The house has a fine prospect, is located in a portion of the city where gentlemen are rapidly selecting sites for dwellings, and where the best houses are being erected. The house has well arranged rooms, a very cheerful outlook on either side, is supplied with excellent well water introduced into the house, and has garden plot and well built henery attached. The site is peculiarly pleasant, and the opportunity of purchasing a house built for a residence for the owner, and sold only because his business requires his presence in another city, is one that well deserves the attention of any one who desires a home for immediate occupancy. The premises may be examined on application to

For Sale in Greenland.

THE fine country residence and farm formerly occupied by Rev. John F. Adams,—buildings in thorough repair, land well divided into mowing and tillage; fine fruit orchard, etc., well known for the large quantity of splendid strawberries produced. The house has an evergreen hedge around it and the buildings are in thorough repair. There is a fruit orchard of 300 apple trees, 30 cherry trees and as many pear trees—and a nursery with 1300 young apple trees. From the grape vines on the place fifteen bushels of fruit have been sold in a season, besides abundance retained for home use. Part of the land heavily wooded and there is a great quantity of muck on the estate. In the pasture there is a never-failing spring. The farm is situated midway between depots of Eastern and Concord railroads. For sale at a bargain, if enquired for immediately,—of O. G. ROBINSON, on the premises, or Butler & Laighton, Market Square, or Bailey & Co., Market street. jel

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years again was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic, and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the cause of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agents. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, &c.

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.
